MISS SPRINGHILL WINS

Miss Louisiana Crown Declined By Judy Cathey

By JIMMIE HATTEN
State Editor

LAKE PROVIDENCE—A West Monroe girl Saturday night rejected the Miss Louisiana crown for the love of her man.

She is Judith Ann Cathey, 20, who said, "I can't accept the crown." Then she explained to a startled audience that she planned to be married in August and that she felt she could not ask her fiance to wait another year, the length of her reign.

LINDA GAIL BAUCUM
. . . . Miss Louisiana

Miss Cathey turned the title over to Linda Gail Baucum, 18, of Springhill, who exclaimed: "I don't see how she could do it, but I understand."

Miss Cathey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cathey and entered the pageant as Miss North Louisiana Cotton Queen.

MISS SPRINGHILL

Miss Baucum entered the pageant as Miss Springhill and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Baucum.

She plans to enter Louisiana Tech this fall.

Miss Cathey said she plans to wed James Robert Cook of Jonesboro. Cook came out on stage shortly after Miss Cathey's announcement. He said, that he agreed with her decision. They explained that they had been planning to marry previously, but Miss Cathey won the Miss North Louisiana Cotton Queen title and the marriage had to be postponed.

Miss Cathey said she thought Miss Baucum will, "make an excellent queen. I've grown to know her during the pageant, and she's very beautiful and talented."

Long after the pageant ended, Miss Baucum sat on stage sobbing.

First runner - up was Miss Holiday in Dixie, Patsy Lowderback, 20, of Shreveport and second runner - up after a hasty re - tabulation by the judges was Miss Northeast Louisiana State

Red Boss Hit In Magazine Of Red China

TOKYO (AP) — Red China distributed today an article by a British monthly which indirectly accused Soviet Premier Khrushchev of smearing Peking from "a ready-made cesspool of so-called de-Stalinization."

The latest sideswipe at Khrushchev was contained in the "Malayan Monitor," published in London, on the 15th anniversary of the unsuccessful Chinese-supported Communist rebellion in Malaya.

The official New China News Agency, monitored here, circulated a 1,000-word report of the monthly's June 30 article over its international services.

Referring to the word "dogmatism" which Khrushchev and his supporters have used to describe China's rigid interpretation of Marxism, the agency quoted the monthly as saying:

"The word dogmatism has been much distorted by the imperialists and the modern revisionists" (Russia). "They used the term merely to vilify, giving no factual argumentation to prove their charge. Like the intellectual sloths they are, they dip their brush in a ready-made cesspool of so-called 'de-Stalinization' and smear all and sundry who question their 'new' and 'revised' thinking. They prefer imposition (especially on 'smaller countries, parties and individuals) to mutual exploration and advice on an equal footing."

Guerrilla Fire Kills Lieutenant

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. Army first lieutenant was killed Saturday when the helicopter he was piloting was hit by one shot fired by a Communist guerrilla west of the town of Danang, a U.S. military spokesman said.

The death of the unidentified pilot brought to 68 the number of U.S. servicemen killed in combat in South Viet Nam. The total number of U.S. deaths in the country, including such causes as training exercise accidents, is now 94.

The pilot was dead on arrival when the helicopter was flown to the Danang base by the co-pilot.

The heavily-armed, gas-turbine helicopter was escorting two U. S. troop-carrying helicopters on an assault mission when it was hit.

More Troubles Likely To Come After Balloting

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, (AP) — Argentine military forces went on the alert Saturday for the election today of a new government. But the balloting-aimed at restoring fully democratic government — is likely to lead the nation to more strife, unrest and possibly even bloodshed.

Army commander in chief Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania ordered the alert both to insure orderly voting and to guard against a threat from the ultranationalistic "fourth force" to set off a revolt to impose a right-wing dictatorship.

Many Argentines considered the "fourth force" threats as just talk —psychological warfare in a nation still jittery after two revolutions within a year and innumerable crises within the past five.

'VOTE BLANK'

In addition, the shadow of Juan Domingo Peron, the ex-dictator who ruled by welfare state opportunism, darkened the scene from his exile in Spain. He has ordered his followers, believed to be three million strong in the ranks of 11.5 million voters, to "vote blank" because of a bar to Peronist candidates for key offices.

Such orders have been heeded to the letter in the past.

If Peron polls enough blank votes there is little chance that any of the three candidates remaining in the race for president will be able to claim the clear cut victory needed for a popular mandate.

Peron's orders—seconded by deposed and imprisoned President Arturo Frondizi — removed from the race the one candidate who appeared to have a chance for a clear victory. He is Vicente Solano Lima, 61, a bald, conservative-turned-semi-Peronist.

He, too, joined in the call for a

Traffic Toll May Exceed 1961 Record

Fourth Of July Holiday Fatality Count Tops 350

By United Press International

The Independence holiday traffic toll topped the 350 mark Saturday and a National Safety Council spokesman said it now appeared the total for the 102-hour holiday would exceed the 1961 record.

During the first half of the holiday the death pace was running well below that of the four-day 1961 July 4th holiday period.

"It looked like it would end below the 500 mark," the spokesman said, "but since noon the trend has changed and it is running ahead of the record pace. This is quite meaningful at this stage of the holiday and it now looks like we will exceed the record of 509 for a July 4th holiday."

Americans were dying on the highways at the rate of nearly five an hour for the holiday period but the pace exceeded six an hour during a seven-hour interval late in the day.

The safety council had estimated before the holiday that from 550 to 650 persons would die in traffic accidents during the MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, in a seeming rebuff to Peking, was disclosed Saturday to have left Moscow as negotiators from Communist China and Russia met in the first business session of their historic showdown conference.

Khrushchev, who had returned to Moscow only two days ago from a trip to East Germany, was in Kiev. The premier's absence from the city at the time of the vital talks was disclosed by Moscow Radio.

There was no explanation of Khrushchev's seemingly pointed absence from the Soviet capital during the talks, but there was little doubt about the obvious indirect rebuke to the Communist Chinese delivered by publication Saturday of a new peace appeal from President Kennedy.

ANOTHER REBUFF

The Soviet news agency Tass revealed Kennedy's Friday appeal as the Soviet and Chinese Communist ideological experts met in the headquarters of the Communist party Central Committee. The publication was seen as another rebuff to the Chinese Communists who have rejected Khrushchev's policy of "peaceful coexistence" with the West.

The message from Kennedy to Khrushchev thanked the Soviet premier for his July 4 offering of good wishes and urged a joint effort to solve "key problems which divide us."

Reliable informants said the two negotiating delegations confined their secret session Saturday to a presentation of "position papers."

The Soviets were led by Mikhail Suslov, a presidium member, and the Chinese Communists by Teng Hsiao-ping, secretary general of the party.

Park Raided By Carloads Of Negroes

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Five carloads of prowlers, using bricks, ballbats and a revolver, swept through the city's largest park on a midnight foray and attacked three groups of young persons.

Police said the prowlers, 17 to 24 years old and all Negroes, left their cars three times in Swope Park. Fist fights, stone throwing and one shooting incident resulted.

Five white teen-agers reported injuries.

The shooting occurred, police were told, when Hugh Pembleton, 17, stopped his car to repair a flat tire. Pembleton, his passenger Jim Webb, 18, and Douglas L. Duvall, 16, who stopped to help, were surrounded by the prowlers.

SHOT AT

Pembleton and Webb said they were struck with fists and a ball bat. They ran from the group and bullets whizzed past them, they said.

Duvall told police a Negro fired a bullet into the front tire of his car, then pointed the gun at other occupants. Onal Neil Glinn, in the driver's seat, said the Negro ordered "get those white gals out," referring to two girl passengers.

Glinn said he drove the car off at high speed and a bullet struck the roof of the car.

Later police stopped a car near the park and found a .38 revolver in the glove compartment. A bat was under the front seat and another in the trunk.

A beautiful sunset on a hill area lake, teenagers relaxing, a little girl watching a duck, and a large dog keeping vigil by a sleeping child—these were the subjects of photographs which won first place $5 awards in the initial week of the Morning World and News-Star Photo Contest.

A candid study of a little girl sitting on a foot bridge across a park lake watching a white duck which had stopped nearby, brought first prize in the Babies and Children category for Mrs. G. C. Bedenbender, 411 Woodrow St. West Monroe.

First Place winners in the other three categories were:

Civil War Seige Of Port Hudson Is Played Back

PORT HUDSON, La. (AP) —The boom of black powder muskets and the crash of Civil War cannon Saturday gave a pint - size recreation of a seige here 100 years ago that made history.

Spectators and some 75 or so gray - clad men who took part on the high bluffs near the Mississippi River had fun. It was sponsored by the local chapter of the Sons of the Confederate Veterans, under Col. Ed Borsky.

Six cannons rolled onto the scene early, about 20 miles northwest of Baton Rouge.

This was the last Confederate strongpoint on the river. Nearly 4,000 men in blue were lost despite greatly superior strength. The Southerners had 6,000 barefoot, tattered, starving stalwarts.

The North gained unlimited Mississippi passage with the fall of Port Hudson, three days after the surrender of Vicksburg, Miss.

New Jersey Negro Caught After Spree

LINDEN, N.J. (UPI)—A husky Negro laborer who killed his wife and sister-in-law, wounded his brother and two neighbors, terrorized a white family and forced their teen-age daughter to accompany him in a wild bid for freedom, was captured Saturday and said "I'm sorry about the whole thing."

"I'm sorry about the whole mess," said Richard (Teddy)

Coleman, 37, a mill operator, after his arraignment on murder charges.

Coleman, with bloodshot eyes and appearing tired and listless, quietly surrendered to two rookie Newark, N.J. policemen early Saturday after a 10-hour reign of terror in which he was sought by police in 13 states.

ASSAULTED

He was apprehended at the Newark airport in a stolen car after trying to run a police roadblock, authorities said.

The 18-year-old blonde teenager abducted by Coleman told police he sexually assaulted her. Doctors at Elizabeth (N.J.) General Hospital confirmed the possibility of rape.

Police listed Coleman's victims as:

Dead:

Millie A. Coleman, 37, his wife.

Ruby Coleman, 43, his sister-in-law.

Wounded:

Harry Coleman, 52, a brother and husband of Ruby Coleman.

Marianne Kube, 27, neighbor's duaghter-in-law.

Leroy Edwards, 48, a neighbor.

Coleman was in poor condition at Elizabeth General Hospital Saturday and Edwards and Mrs. Kube were listed as fair. All were shot by one or both of two pistols used by the berserk Coleman in his rampage.

Police gave the following account:

Coleman was on vacation. He had quarreled regularly with his wife, and his brother and sister-in-law entered the squabble Thursday.

His wife called police at 3 p.m. Friday and asked for protection while she moved her belongings and her four children out of the house. She said she was afraid of her husband.

A police car went to the Coleman home and waited for two

Red Subversion 'To Continue,' Lawmaker Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., said Saturday that Communist subversive activity emanating from Cuba would continue to increase in Latin America until the United States takes "a firm and positive attitude" to clear it out.

Since last fall's Soviet missile crisis, he said, "we have seen more deterioration in Latin American . . . than ever before." He said it would continue until positive steps were taken to check it and not simply contain it.

In a recorded television program, Allott kept up the recently intensified Republican attack on Kennedy administration policies toward Cuba and Castro-led attempts to subvert other Latin American countries.

In another radio-television program earlier Saturday with Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, Allott also rejected arguments that his proposal for recognizing a Cuban government-in-exile at Guantanamo Bay, site of a big U. S. naval base, would violate treaties under which the base was set up.

Allott said economic and dipomatic pressures on Cuba so far represented only a "policy of containment and a very, very weak policy of a containment at that." He said his proposal for recognition of a government-in-exile at Guantanamo would be an effective step toward eventually bringing down the regime of Premier Fidel Castro.

NEW FACES FOR OLD

Legislative Races Come Into Focus

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Political sideshows began to draw voter attention Saturday to the 1964 legislative races, although overshadowed by the main event for governor.

A flow of announcements marked new names seeking the 105 House and 39 Senate seats in the Dec. 7 primary.

Legislators seeking another four-year term under the next governor faced tough statistics which showed past turnover rates were uncomfortably high, sometimes as high as 65 per cent.

"Those who keep coming back year after year," a veteran legislator once said, "just know how to satisfy their people."

A new fight stirring statewide interest was beginning in Acadia parish, where Rep. Jerry Ashley has challenged Sen. W. J. Cleveland of Crowley.

Cleveland, one of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' top legislative leaders and legislative budget chairman who helped design the $933 million state budget for this year, held major rank under the late Gov. Earl K. Long, when he was Senate president pro tempore.

But Ashley decided to help Arceneaux and fight Cleveland.

"He helped cut his own Acadia Parish in representation," Ashley said, "and when he made that fight, I made up my mind to run against him for senator.

"He was obligated to his own people to fight for our House seats and he didn't do it."

Cleveland, tough, astute, experienced, but with troubles of his own, snapped Ashley was "the biggest man physically in the legislature, but I'm going to cut him down to size in politics."

"I will run on the record of my achievements, especially in the last four years, and during the previous 16 for the benefit of my people and the people of this state."

He could have filed a protest vote against the administration house reseating plan, Cleveland said, "but it wouldn't have changed final results.

"And I favored the legislature acting rather than a federal court, which might have forced all our representatives to run at large. Acadia might have lost both House members then."

Two legislators have big ambitions. Sen. Speedy Long of Jena, and Rep. Louis Michot of Lafayette have pitched their hats toward the mansion. The recent legislature was informed by House Speaker Tom Jewell, another Davis leader, he hoped to be back, but would not seek the speakership post.

Rep. Robert Angelle of St. Martin, former speaker often mentioned as a possible lieutenant governor candidate, said he would seek re-election. He is dean of the House.

Prentice McKellar, Kirby Cole, Richard Doornbos and L. B. Griffin Jr., have announced for the Beauregard Parish seat. The incumbent, Mrs. John Lewis, only woman in the House, is not running.

Camille Gravel, Alexandria attorney who helped steer John F. Kennedy around Louisiana when he was planning to run for president, has announced for the Senate post held by Sen. Cecil Blair.

A federal court said recently the legislature's action reshuffling the House seats according to population met its test of constitutionality.

Unless new legal attacks in both federal and state courts interfere, by the middle of September parish democratic executive committees will call for election of representatives according to the new setup.

The Lafourche Parish police jury called a meeting in Thibodaux Monday night to determine if parishes losing seats want to make a second state court attack. It would be aimed at the local party committees preparing for the first primary under the new seat arrangements.

State Dist. Judge Elmo Lear has turned aside a drive by St. Landry Parish taxpayers to prevent Secretary of State Wade Martin from publishing the new reapportionment law.

A second federal suit filed by the law firm of Rep. Jules Mollere of Jefferson seeks Senate redistricting. No hearing has been set.

Body, Debris Found At Sea

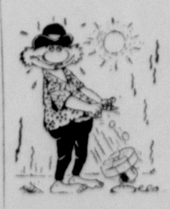

MIAMI (UPI) — The Coast Guard said Saturday night a body has been found by the U.S. aircraft carrier Wasp in the area of the Caribbean where the fishing ship Sno' Boy has been missing for five days with 40 persons aboard.

The Coast Guard said it has no identification on the body but "it was found floating in the same general area as debris" from the missing ship.

Earlier Saturday, a deck house, life jacket and a white spar, believed to be from the missing ship, was spotted by one of at least 10 Navy and Coast Guard planes in the search.

AMONG CIVIL RIGHTISTS

Intensification On Goal Effort Is Causing Split

EDITOR'S NOTE: The major civil rights organizations agree on their ultimate goal but they vary on the degree of militancy of their campaigns to reach it. This intensification on efforts, and the competition among the various groups for prestige and funds, is discussed in the following dispatch by a (UPI) correspondent who has covered every phase of the integration struggle for the past 10 years.

By AL KUETTNER

ATLANTA (UPI)—An all-out influence struggle among Negro movements has temporarily taken much of the spotlight away from the overall desegregation effort.

The latest division among the Negro high command broke into the open at the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) convention in Chicago where a nominally orderly group booed several speakers into silence or off the platform. One was Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

James H. Meredith, a Negro who was enrolled at the University of Mississippi with strong NAACP support, was rebuked by an NAACP youth leader as being too moderate. His reception was cool.

Meredith said the "bigotry and intolerance" among his own people brought him to tears for the first time since childhood.

Meredith's reaction recalled the shocked surprise that hit Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. recently when his car was pelted with raw eggs by militant Negroes in New York.

NAACP AMONG FIRST

Until a few years ago, practically all the efforts of Negroes in their move up the civil rights ladder were centered in activities of the NAACP. That agency, among the first organizations formed in the United States to advance the cause of Negroes, chose the sometimes tedious methods of the courts and face-to-face conferences with white leaders.

A similar approach was taken by the Urban League, an agency that has long been in the forefront of improving housing, sanitary and recreation facilities for Negroes in the big cities.

The change in the tempo of the Negro struggle started with three events — the Montgomery, Ala. bus boycott, the sit-in demonstrations which originated with four young Negroes at Greensboro, N. C., and the "Freedom rides."

The Montgomery campaign was run by King, then a young Baptist preacher in the Alabama capital city. His movement became the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), dedicated to non-violence.

SIT-INS CATCH ON

The sit-ins caught fire like dry prairie grass and became the chief tactic of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) and the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), a group that also argued for peaceful methods but was much more militant than the SCLC. "Snick," as it has come to be known, is made up mainly by high school and college students. King's younger brother, the Rev. A. D. King, whose home was bombed recently in Birmingham was an early leader in that organization.

The "freedom rides" were organized by CORE, which remains one of the most militant of the desegregation groups although it too professes to believe in nonviolence. The CORE organization collected clergymen, students white and Negro integrationists and university teachers.

Sometimes all of these "direct action" groups, plus the NAACP get involved in a single campaign but each has its own sphere of influence and its own war chest. Each has its own jealousies. These are coming rapidly to the surface now in a massive bid for influence over the integration effort.

STRUGGLE APPARENT

The internal struggle is bound to have a pronounced effect on such demonstrations as the civil rights protest march planned for Washington in August.

Complicating the struggle for leadership is the occasional animosity among local Negro groups running their own private civil rights campaign when the larger organizations, such as those run by King, move in "and take over."

A number of Negroes have spoken out against the march.

Some have openly questioned the massive street demonstrations in the South and North.

There has been talk of a "summit" meeting between the major organizations, or even a possible alliance.

One such conference was held in New York recently. While the participants agreed their ultimate goal was the same — the abolition of discrimination — there was no closing of the ranks or formation of one overall group with a unified high command. There is no one leader at the forefront to pull of the gigantic task.

It is not likely this will happen anytime soon and the struggle for leadership, the competition for funds and the rivalry for prestige will continue.

MARY KAMINSKI, 18, arrives at police headquarters in Linden Saturday by auto to confront Richard (Teddy) Coleman who is accused of abducting her during a berserk rampage. He later released her before he was captured by police early Saturday on route one near Newark Airport. Coleman, 36-year-old father of four, is also accused of slaying his wife and sister-in-law and shooting three others, including his brother. (AP Wirephoto)

MARINE IS SILENT

Astronaut Glenn May Try Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military circles are buzzing with speculation that Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. might step out of the space program next year and take a crack at politics.

Some Ohio politicians say they would not be overly surprised if Glenn turned up as a candidate for the Senate seat now held by Democratic Sen. Stephen M. Young.

Glenn, at 41 the oldest of the astronauts, has maintained silence about his future. He told reporters recently he knew of no plans for any of his group to leave the program in the next year.

Nevertheless, the situation in Ohio is such that politicians think Glenn would make an attractive candidate if he decides to take off his Marine uniform. The astronaut's politican affiliations are unclear at this point.

Young, 74 last month, has left up in the air the question of whether he will seek another six-year term. When he first was elected in 1958, Young announced this was the last political office he would hold and that he wasn't interested in more than one term.

But Young isn't so sure about that now. He likes his job, says he feels great. He added that he won't make up his mind about running again for some months.

Viewing the potential Republican opposition, Young said in an interview that if he does seek re-election and gets his party's nomination again "I'll be running as the underdog."

Republicans are maneuvering warily toward a possible primary clash next May between John W. Bricker and Rep. Robert Taft Jr.

Bricker, who lost his Senate seat to Young in an upset, has made it clear he wants to try for a comeback. A former governor and former senator with a strongly conservative record, Bricker is well-known to the voters in the state.

I-Winged Bird Settles Down With Caretaker

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Ike, the old cardinal with the amputated wing, has settled down to life in Cologne, Germany, along with his caretaker, Margaret Herkrath.

The bird has been cared for by Miss Herkrath since it was found 14 years ago after apparently being shot by a youthful hunter.

But Miss Herkrath, housemother at St. Margaret Hospital in Kansas City, Kan., had decided to spend her retiring years in her native Germany.

Friends drove Miss Herkrath and the redbird to New York a week ago for the jet plane trip to Germany. A U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service permit was required to permit the bird to leave the country.

But in Germany, a letter from Miss Herkrath related, there was no red tape. She merely handed the bird over the airport fence to her sister.

Modest Steps Taken Toward Race Solution

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP)—While Cambridge's racial problems appeared far from being settled, some modest steps toward that goal were being taken this weekend.

Members of the Cambridge housing authority said Saturday they had been directed by Mayor Calvin W. Mowbray to go ahead with plans for a $1-million, 100-unit housing development for Negroes. An improvement in housing is one of the demands Negro integrationists are making in their intensive integration drive here.

The management of the Dorset Theater, the town's only movie house, consented to meet with the city's new Human Relations Committee, scheduled to be named July 16, to discuss plans for integrating the theater. The theater has been a favorite target of integrationists in past demonstra-

National Guard troops, meanwhile, will remain on the scene until Monday.

The guard has been in Cambridge since June 14 after violence erupted during demonstrations. Negro leaders have called a mass meeting for Monday night—after the guardsmen have departed.

A threat to the shaky accord between city officials and Negro leaders came from a Cambridge businessman Saturday.

Robert Fehsenfeld, owner of a lunch counter known as Dizzyland, said a group would meet Monday to discuss the possibility of petitioning the city's new charter amendment to referendum.

The amendment, approved last Monday, requires eating places and other public accommodations to serve Negroes as well as whites. Fehsenfeld, whose eating place also has been picketed, would not laborate.

The law will take effect Aug. 19 in the absence of petitions for referendum. Petitions must be filed by Aug. 9 and city officials say the names of petitioners will be published.

Negro leaders, who had urged adoption of a city ordinance instead, have said the amendment is not acceptable because it may be petitioned to referendum and defeated at the polls. A city ordinance is not subject to such action.

Student Pleads Innocent To Arson

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI) — Richard Edward Owens, 26, pleaded innocent Saturday to arson charges in connection with a $50,000 fire at William Carey College here June 16.

Owens, a student at William Cary, was also accused of attempting to set another fire at the college after the burning of the school's student center.

Dist. Atty. James Finch said Owens confessed to igniting a building which housed the school's bookstore, post office, grill and department of speech.

The sandy-haired, 6-foot native of Hernando was arraigned before County Court Judge William Harrelson, who set a sanity hearing July 13. He was remanded to jail pending grand jury action.

Harriman Set For Mixed Up Mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman leaves July 11 on a mission to Moscow that's somewhat mixed up before it even starts.

When set up last month, the talks starting July 15 were to be on prospects for a nuclear test ban. Now Soviet Premier Khrushchev has brought up an added starter—a proposal for a nonaggression pact—but no one here knows yet just what he's offering.

Finding an answer to that question will be a first objective for Harriman, a former ambassador to the Soviet capital.

Aides to the undersecretary announced Saturday he will leave next Thursday and stop over in London for a day of consultations there. The British are the third party to the Moscow talks and their group will be headed by Science Minister Lord Hailsham.

Harriman's party will be a relatively small one, about a dozen specialists including Adrian Fisher, deputy U.S. disarmament director.

The Moscow meeting has been officially scheduled as a renewal of the lengthy three-power discussions on a nuclear test-ban treaty —but recent events may make it a landmark in current Cold War history.

Khrushchev put a new face on the parley with a vaguely worded proposal, in an East Berlin speech Tuesday, for a partial test ban and "simultaneous" signing of a nonaggression pact between the NATO and Warsaw military alliances.

Either or both Khrushchev's propositions may prove unacceptable to the West, and U.S. officials said it still is not clear whether Khrushchev is offering an all-or-nothing package.

But President Kennedy is keeping the door open for a possible agreement—and Harriman's main job, it was stated, will be to determine what the Kremlin offer really amounts to.

Washington strategists are watching two events for further clues prior to Harriman's departure:

1. The trip to Moscow this weekend by Belgium's foreign minister, former NATO Secretary-General Paul Henri Spaak. Spaak's report is expected to be made available to the Western allies.

2. The Soviet-Red Chinese meeting on the rift between the two, now under way in the Soviet capital. U.S. experts do not expect the Communist antagonists to bury their differences. But they think the talks' results could influence the Kremlin's postur toward the West.

The Russian leader's offer of a ban against all except underground atomic tests sounded similar to what the United States and Britain have proposed — provided Moscow does not insist again on an accompanying uninspected moratorium on underground shots.

But the nonaggression pact proposal raises a wide range of other issues and would require participation by most of the countries of Europe, particularly the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations. The Warsaw bloc, it is presumed here, would do Moscow's bidding.

But some NATO members, particularly West Germany and France, having strong reservations about any nonaggression pact which might involve recognition of Communist East Germany or endorsement of the East-West division of Germany.

Negro Admits To Attacking White Woman

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—A 24-year-old Negro, Leon Brent, has admitted stabbing a white woman, officers said Saturday. The victim told police she was knifed while resisting a rape attempt.

Dist. Atty. Sargent Pitcher Jr. said he will ask the East Baton Rouge grand jury Friday to indict Brent on charges of aggravated rape and attempted murder.

Aggravated rape carries the death penalty. Pitcher reported Brent did not admit any attempt at rape but said he stabbed the girl because she threatened to call police.

The 19-year-old girl said the Negro wandered into her downtown office yesterday afternoon, pretending to seek a job as janitor.

She was in satisfactory condition at a hospital. She was stabbed in the neck during the struggle. Her screams attracted a man from a nearby office and the attacker fled.

Polcie said Brent, when arrested, had blood on his clothing.

Coroner Chester Williams said there was no definite evidence of rape.

Yugoslav Note Raps Subversion

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) —Yugoslavia handed a note Saturday to the Albanian charge d'affairs "sharply protesting subversive and intelligence activities" of Albania.

The direct cause for the protest was the interception and killing of an Albanian citizen who tried to infiltrate into Yugoslavia June 28 and the seizure of another Albanian a day later on the Yugoslav-Albanian border.

Comedian Visits Moscow Temple

MOSCOW (AP) — Comedian Danny Kaye went to the Jewish Grand Synagogue here today and told correspondents afterward that people will always find a way to worship.

Kaye, here for the Soviet Film Festival, attended the regular Saturday Jewish service in the synagogue, principal one left in use here. He sat with the Israel ambassador, Yosev Tekoah, and later went to the envoy's home for lunch.

"People will find a way to worship under any conditions whatsoever," Kaye told newsmen who accompanied him to the service.

The Soviet government denies there is any discrimination against Jews or any measures hampering their religious worship. Jews insist privately that they operate here under handicaps.

Punch Is Lost By Squall Band

MIAMI (UPI) — A Caribbean squall had lost some of its punch Saturday and odds are against development during the next few days, the Weather Bureau reported.

A Navy hurricane hunter plane which flew into the easterly wave about 1,600 miles south of here today reported that its 40-mile-an-hour winds had dropped to between 25 and 30 miles an hour.

Another plane was scheduled to take off from Roosevelt Roads, P. R. Monday to check on the area.

The squall line extended from the Virgin Islands to Curacao and was moving toward the west at about 15 miles an hour, the Weather Bureau said.

Confused Dog Off To Church

OTTAWA, Kan. (AP) — Every Sunday morning when Sam hears the bell ring he heads for church a mile away.

After the services he rides back home with the preacher.

Sam is a devoted dog, but he couldn't be expected to know about patriotism, the Declaration of Independence and the Fourth of July.

So, on Thursday when the bell in the tower of Globe's Bethel Methodist church rang out as part of the "Let Freedom Ring" project, Sam left a cool basement and trotted off to the church.

But there were no services and Sam had to walk back home.

Prostitution Boom Feared By British

LONDON (AP)—She stood in the dock of West London Magistrates Court convicted of helping run a brothel.

She was just 19, a pretty slip of a girl. Her long hair was black, her eyes were big, dark and sullen.

Her sentence: one month in jail. The magistrate recommended her deportation to Ireland, saying, "We don't want Irish prostitutes here. We have enough of our own."

He may have been thinking, as other people have in recent days, that there soon may be many more prostitutes in Britain. For tons of newsprint have been devoured in the past few months detailing the hard cash to be gained by easy virtue.

Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies, 18, pert blonde, revealed in a recent court case that she found herself at 16 with a well-heeled protector who presented her on her 17th birthday with a high-priced auto, mink and jewelry.

When he died, said Mandy, "I had enough in jewelry and mink to keep me over the next years."

Both girls testified at the pretrial hearing of Dr. Stephen Ward, the society osteopath who introduced Christine to Profumo.

Christine came to London with apparently no assets beyond her attractiveness to men and the willingness to make fullest use of this. By doing so, she gained an entry into famous homes and met on equal terms important people whom other girls call "sir" or "madam."

Christine is not being socially ostracized. Instead she will go down in history as the redhead who rocked the government. At 21, she is collecting a lot of money from newspapers for her life story.

How must this image seem to all the other equally pretty young girls—the nurses, typists, teachers—as they go wearily home after colecting their meager pay.

"The answer," said one woman in a letter to the Sunday Telegraph, "must be obvious: Why not all become prostitutes? This seems to me to be the real moral lesson to be drawn from the sensational revelations of the past two weeks."

One of those alarmed by the situation is Miss Alice Bacon, a leading Laborite legislator. She said in the House of Commons Friday that prostitution had become glamorized in recent weeks.

"We cannot grumble if we see young girls thinking that prostitution leads to fame, fortune and films—not forgetting VIP treatment at airports," she declared.

One woman writer to a newspaper suggested that part of the trouble might be traced to the use by news media of the euphemistic term "call girl." The writer suggested deglamourizing these women by calling them by the old Anglo-Saxon word ——.

Lord Stonham, a life peer and former Laborite member of Parliament, is expected to bring the attention of the House of Lords Monday to a special report on the spread of prostitution.

He suggests there is evidence of an increase in procuring, exploitation of and trafficking in women since the passing of the Street Offenses Act of 1959 designed to clear streets of prostitutes. He plans to ask the government if it will make an immediate inquiry into the act's effects.

British Soldier Goes To Reds

BERLIN (AP)—A British army corporal apparently has defected to the Communists and a British army spokesman Saturday night identified him as a member of the intelligence corps.

The spokesman made the disclosure after the official East German news agency ADN said Cpl. Bryan Patchett had asked for political asylum in East Germany.

LONG-PENDING DECISION

Concern Deepens About New Carrier

WASHINGTON (AP)—A long-pending decision on awarding a contract for a new Navy carrier, which could cost an estimated $280 million to $336 million may not come before this fall—if then.

Indeed, there is developing concern in some Navy quarters that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara might decide finally against going ahead with construction of the carrier, either with lower-cost conventional power or higher-cost nuclear design.

Authorization for building the carrier, with conventional power, was given by Congress last year and the Navy prepared to award a construction contract to a private yard under the fiscal 1963 shipbuilding program. That fiscal year ended on June 30 and the authorized funds are carried over into the current year.

In August 1961 the Navy submitted to McNamara a proposal to begin building one nuclear-powered carrier like the Enterprise in fiscal 1963, 1965 and 1967. McNamara then approved the program, but stipulated that, for reasons of cost differences, they should be conventionally powered. The Navy, which says it has urgent need for new flattops to replace older ships, accepted this.

But there followed other developments.

The Navy, on its own initiative, started studies of probable future requirements for carrier strike forces. McNamara asked that the study be broadened. Involved in the studies is the question of building nuclear-powered as contrasted with oil-burning carriers.

Then a few months ago, the Atomic Energy Commission told McNamara there have been some substantial changes in nuclear-power plant capabilities.

Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth informed a House Appropriations subcommittee that each of the proposed new atomic reactors could produce about the same shaft horsepower of two reactors in the eight-reactor plant of the Enterprise.

Moreover, Korth said, the cores —fuel—in the new reactors would have twice the life. And, he added, the initial fuel loading for a new reactor would cost $32,000, compared with $64,000 for a reactor in the Enterprise.

The building cost of a conventional carrier was calculated at $420 million using the older reactors, but estimated at $336 million with the new four new-type reactors.

However, changing weapon technology and missions for weapons systems, under McNamara's overall approach to defense, appear to have raised the question of whether new carriers, either convention or atomic, should be built at this time.

The Navy completed its studies of carrier strike forces and nuclear versus conventional carriers some weeks ago and delivered the findings to McNamara.

A spokesman said Saturday that McNamara has sent the report back to Korth for further study, with the expectation that it will be returned to the defense chief's office some time in August. Then McNamara will consider his action.

The Polaris submarine, under the current Defense Department military posture, is casting a heavy shadow over the carrier in the latter's traditional strategic warfare role. The missiles of the Polaris submarine now are being assigned potential targets formerly allocated to the attack planes of the carrier.

More Troubles Likely To Come After Balloting

—Retired army Gen. Pedro Eugenio Aramburu, 60, who headed the interim government after the military ousted Peron in 1955. He is the candidate of two parties, the Union of Argentine People and the Progressive Democrats. He campaigned on his claimed ability to maintain order. But he steered clear of heavily Peronist areas.

—Dr. Oscar Alende, a physician who observed his 54th birthday Saturday. He is the candidate of the Civic Union of Intransigent Radicals, the party founded by Frondizi. But he called on Argentines to ignore the "vote blank" order.

—Dr. Arturo Illia, 62, an unassuming country doctor who is said to have no political enemies. He is the candidate of the Civic Union of People's Radicals.

Aramburu, Alende and Illia are given equal chances for victory.

The election is to select a new government—including a Congress—to replace Guido's regime. Guido reluctantly took over the presidency in March 1962 to serve as the front man for military leaders who deposed Frondizi on charges of being soft toward Peronists.

Midway in his term, Ongania stepped in as strong man behind Guido and, although a moderate anti-Peronist, promised to guarantee the election.

The new president and vice president will serve six-year terms. Also at stake in the voting are 192 seats in the Chamber of Deputies, 46 in the Senate, 22 governorships and posts as provincial legislators, mayors, justices of the peace and other minor offices.

The Argentine voting system works partly like that of the United States, with an Electoral College for the office of president.

The voter ballots for an elector. But in the Argentine case, the elector is not required to stick to the mandate of the voters. If there is no majority—51 per cent of the votes cast—the elector is permitted to throw his vote to another candidate.

The Electoral College is scheduled to meet July 31. The new president will be sworn into office on Oct. 12.

Traffic Toll May Exceed 1961 Record

four-day period which began at 6 p.m. EDT Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday.

California led the nation with 35 traffic deaths. Pennsylvania counted 34, New York 27 and Michigan 25. Ohio had 19 deaths, Illinois and Indiana 17 each and Texas 16.

Four accidents which claimed five lives apiece set the pace for the carnage on the highways.

Five youths were killed in a two-car collision near Bad Axe, Mich., Saturday, less than 12 hours after a runaway truck crashed into a car at a Lansing, Mich., intersection, killing five occupants of the auto.

Five West Virginians died when their car rammed the side of a truck at a Mechanicsburg, Ohio, intersection. Four Californians and a Texan were killed when two cars collided head-on near Holbrook, Ariz.

An analysis by National Safety Council experts of figures supplied by United Press International showed that 30 per cent of the holiday fatalities resulted from speeding, 15 per cent from failure to yield the right of way and 15 per cent from crossing the center line.

The analysis was obtained through reports of the causes of fatal accidents in a cross section of key states which were then projected on a national level.

New Jersey Negro Caught After Spree

hours while Mrs. Coleman packed, but Coleman did not show up. The car left. Twenty minutes later Coleman arrived.

He renewed his argument with his wife and they were shouting at each other when he pulled a gun and shot her in the head.

Coleman then went to the adjoining apartment of his brother, where he fired a fusillade of bullets at his brother and sister - in-law. Ruby Coleman was killed instantly. Harry tried to run and was gunned down, shot in the head.

Coleman's daughter, Betty Ann, was upstairs in his house and the other children were playing outside.

He left Betty Ann unharmed and ran into the street.

He leaped into his 1962 station wagon and started to drive down the street. Then he stopped and went toward the home of Marianne Kube, shooting the woman as she ran out to protect her 8-month-old son.

Leroy Edwards, a neighbor was outside his house preparing to wash his car. Coleman called him over and shot him, then roared off in the station wagon.

He turned up minutes later at the home of Michael Kaminsky about half a mile away. Barging in, he held the family at gunpoint as they were getting ready for dinner.

Mrs. Kaminsky was home with her five daughters, one of her sons and John Walusz, 21, of Elizabeth, a friend.

Coleman forced Walusz to herd the family into a bedroom and tie them up with neckties and socks. When the father and an older brother arrived, they, too, were tied up.

For four hours Coleman sat drinking beer and forcing Walusz and the older son to drink with him. He gave them cigars. Frequently he broke into tears as he related the afternoon's events, they said.

"What have I done?" he moaned several times.

The fugitive made young Michael Kaminsky back his car into the family garage and ordered and older daughter, Anna, 20, to come with him as a hostage. She fainted and he took Mary, 18, with him, a gun at her head.

Coleman and the girl disappeared for more than five hours. New York City police, alerted he was headed there to kill one of his five married sisters, put all five women in one residence under police guard.

The Kaminsky girl later was found on an Elizabeth street corner, hysterical, her clothes blood-stained and disheveled, and suffering from a head cut.

She hailed a passing police car and was taken to the hospital in fair condition.

Police guards were set up at the George Washington Bridge leading into the city and on New Jersey thoroughfares near Linden.

Two Infant Bodies Found In Arkansas

OXARK, Ark. (AP) — Authorities in Arkansas, New Mexico and California worked Saturday to tie the threads of a bizarre case involving the deaths of two infant girls whose decomposed bodies were found Friday in a shallow mountainside grave.

Police at Albuquerque, N.M., said the father of the children contends one died of natural causes and the other smothered accidentally while sleeping with an older sister in a station wagon.

A map sent to Arkansas State Police from Albuquerque led to the bodies, which were wrapped in a yellow blanket under a thin cover of earth. A huge rock and some brush were piled on the grave.

Capt. Paul McDonald of the State Police said both infants were about three months old.

McDonald said the children apparently died March 18 in a roadside park at Russellville, 37 miles east of the grave site, and charges if any, probably would be filed there.

Prosecutor Jeff Mobley of Russellville said a group of at least three adults and several children camped out in the park when they ran out of money.

McDonald said the story of the burial came out when the parents of the mother of one of the girls, a Santa Ana, Calif., woman, asked her where her baby was. She provided the name of the Albuquerque man who is being held, police said, on a charge of robbing a motel.

Albuquerque police got the location of the grave. They said the man offered to take a lie detector test to prove his story about the deaths. He said the baby who died of natural causes was "always sick."

Police withheld names of the principals pending further investigation. Mobley said it was unlikely that any charges would be filed before Tuesday.

Man Is Drowned In Auto Accident

MOOREVILLE, Miss. (AP)—Lee County coroner Bill Sides said James B. Leslie, 64, drowned Saturday after his car flipped off the railless Bogue Fala Creek bridge and fell into the water.

His overturned car was spotted by a passing motorist, Charles Patton, who summoned two other men to recover the retired railroad man's body.

Relatives said Leslie was subject to coughing siezures and said he may have had an attack when he crossed the bridge.

Sides ruled the death accidental drowning after an inquest.

'Crib Deaths' Still Puzzle Researchers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—In the last two weeks of June, 30 apparently healthy babies were put to bed here for the night and died—adding a new puzzle for medical researchers to unravel in their long study of "crib deaths."

In reporting the rash of deaths Saturday city Medical Examiner Joseph W. Spelman said he couldn't explain them.

He was asked about a report that the recent high incidence of deaths might have resulted from a severe heat wave and dehydration of the victims.

"It's true, more or less, that the deaths coincided with the heat wave, but we had a couple more yesterday and there certainly was no heat wave," Dr. Spelman said.

And a pathologist who studied many of the crib death cases for Dr. Spelman's office, Dr. Marie Valdes Dapena, says some objective studies support the dehydration theory. But, she adds, "this is just one little brick in the wall."

Dr. Dapena, on the staff of St. Christopher's Hospital for Children, said that in about 85 per cent of the cases she lists the death cause as undetermined.

Spelman said that Philadelphia annually averages about 150 crib death reports, with the highest incidence in the cooler months. Normally, the summer average is about 5 a month—compared with 15 a week for the last two weeks of June. It was in this period that Philadelphia experienced eight straight days of 90-plus temperatures.

The victims ranged in age from 2 weeks to 15 months.

Dr. Dapena's years-long research and that of others investigating this world-wide problem is underwritten in part by the Mark Addison Roe Foundation of New York City. It was established by a New York stock broker whose infant was among the victims of crib deaths.

Winnsboro Man Dies Of Wound From Deer Rifle

WINNSBORO (Special) — Homer Lee, a 36-year-old farmer and father of six, died en route to a hospital Saturday morning from a gunshot wound reportedly self-inflicted with a deer rifle. Franklin Parish Deputy Sheriff Jimmy Guice was en route to the victim's farm owned by Frank Cliff in search of a runaway girl from Wisner when he arrived just after the shooting at 11:40 a.m.

Coroner Dr. Earl Brashear attributed death to a gunshot wound above the heart which severed the main artery to the heart.

Deputy Guice said the victim was still alive when he reached the house and he treated him for shock.

The weapon was a 30.03 caliber British-made deer rifle. Mr. Lee was found by his oldest son and father in a rear bedroom of the house.

Deputy Guice reported the contents of a two-page note left by the victim, a veteran of World War II, revealed that he had been in ill health.

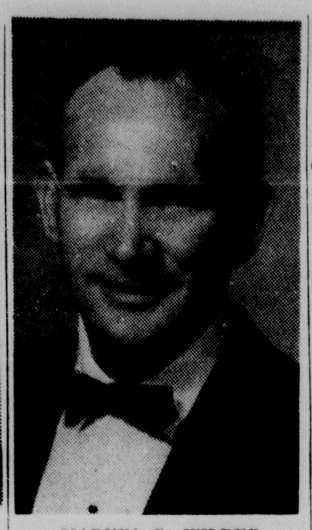

Mr. Lee had moved to the Cliff farm about two months ago.

Funeral services will be at 4 p.m. today in First National Funeral Home here with the Reverend Smith officiating.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Lucille McDaniel Lee, route one, Winnsboro; three sons, Ivy, David and Homer Lee Jr., all of Winnsboro; three daughters, Misses Emma Mae, Rebecca and Wanda Jean Lee, all of Winnsboro; his father, Ivy G. Lee, Winnsboro; a brother, Henry T. Lee, Beaumont, Tex.; and two sisters, Mrs. Norma E. McDaniel and Mrs. Josephine Fatheree, both of Beaumont, Tex.

Negro Woman Free On Bond At Jonesville

JONESVILLE (Special) — Bessie Smith, a 50-year-old Negro woman of Jonesville will face arraignment in the fall term of court here. She was released recently from Catahoula Parish jail after posting $1,000 bond on an attempted murder charge.

The Smith woman was arrested June 17 at her home here following the alleged shooting at Silas Curry, 65-year-old Jonesville Negro.

Arresting officer, City Marshal Jack Taunton, quoted Curry as saying the woman shot at Curry while he was standing on his porch. The marshal said the Negro woman was reportedly standing in the yard of Curry's home.

Two shots from a .32 caliber pistol narrowly missed Curry, Taunton said. One bullet lodged in a porch pillar a few inches above Curry's head, the marshal reported. A third bullet failed to fire.

An argument preceding the shooting was reported to have started over a division fence between the two parties' property.

Injuries At Zoo Fatal For Man

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Fred Liermann, 80, died Saturday from a skull fracture suffered Friday when he stepped over a chain fence at the Cincinnati Zoo and tried to pet a giraffe.

The giraffe swung his head, knocking Liermann into an eight-foot-deep dry moat.

Zoo officials said the giraffe, named Champ, killed his mate shortly after he was brought here years ago.

Goldwater Assails JFK's Trip, Negro Leader

NEWPORT BEACH Calif. (AP) —Sen. Barry M. Goldwater Saturday assailed President Kennedy's recent European trip and said Negro leader Roy Wilkins "would destroy our constitution."

During a news conference the Arizona Republican also said, "I haven't even got around to thinking of announcing for the presidency."

He said it would be foolish to announce this early.

Assailing President Kennedy's trip, Goldwater said: "I don't know of one Rusian who has left Cuba because of the President's trip. I don't know of any change in the situation in Laos or Vietnam because of the trip.

"I suggest, instead, that it would be better to visit Birmingham, Detroit and other American cities where people have problems. He'll do it in the campaign anyway, but then people will be excited about the election.

"It would be better to do it now when people have the problems on their minds."

Goldwater was asked about a statement by Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"I think Wilkins' position is a purely political one taken by a Negro politician," he said.

Wilkins had remarked that the Republican party's attitude on segregation and the Negro might be the key in the 1964 presidential election.

Goldwater said, "The Republican party is the only one which has done anything for the Negro.

"I have invited him (Wilkins) to come to my office and talk to me repeatedly in the past three years, but he failed to come.

"And yet I'm still the prime target.

"The question is whether our Constitution can survive against the pressures of this group. We will give them exactly what the Constitution calls for and nothing more.

"Wilkins would destroy our Constitution. Instead of a representative republic, he would substitute a monarchy or dictatorship."

Goldwater declared that laws won't resolve problems of discrimination, but that discrimination problems will be solved when man realizes that they are man's problems.

Goldwater said he thinks the President's public accommodation clause in the civil rights proposal is wrong.

"A man who owns a business," Goldwater said, "should be able to run it his own way.

The senator said he was once a member of the NAACP but no longer belongs.

"I have done more for the Negro in Arizona than any other man," he said. "But why should I belong to an organization that is trying to kill me?"

Border Guard Shot, Killed By Deserter

PASSAU, Germany (AP) — An American Army deserter shot and killed a West German border patrolman Saturday while fleeing into Austria, West German police reported.

Police said Edward Manns, 19, stationed with the 11th Cavalry in Straubing, Germany, killed border patrolman Franz Gruber, 34, with two shots from a revolver before he fled across the Danube River to Austria.

U.S. Army officials said Manns is from Baltimore, Md.

Police gave this account:

Manns drove up to the West German customs house on the Austrian-German frontier near here in a taxi.

German customs officials and border patrolmen noticed he carried a counterfeit pass and asked him to enter the customs house.

Manns made a dash for a Volkswagen car parked nearby. Border patrolmen hauled him out of the car, but Manns managed to free himself and run behind the taxi.

He fired four shots at the border patrolmen. Two struck Gruber.

After Gruber fell, Manns swam across the Danube into Austria where he was taken into custody by Austrian officials.

German officials said they will ask the Austrian government for Manns' extradition to stand trial before a German court.

U.S. Army officials confirmed West German police reports concerning Mann's alleged desertion and killing of Gruber.

In Lintz, Austria, police said Manns tried to shoot an Austrian customs guard before he was overpowered and taken to a prison.

Austrian customs guard Heinrich Draxler said he saw the soldier swimming to the Austrian shore and waited there for him. When Manns saw him, he pointed his gun at Draxler and pulled the trigger several times, but the wet weapon failed to fire, police reported.

Manns was quoted as telling Austrian police later:

"The German border policeman did not need to check me. I only wanted to be free because I was oppressed all the time in my unit. The policeman betrayed me. My martyrdom would have continued."

4 Marchers At Air Base Are Arrested

ROME, N.Y. (AP)—Four self-styled peace marchers were arrested Saturday when they sat in the road leading to the main entrance to Griffiss Air Force Base and refused to move in response to police orders.

Three, including a young mother, pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct charges and were jailed. The fourth pleaded innocent and was jailed, pending trial, when he failed to post $50 bail.

Joanne Collier, 33-year-old mother of three from Highland Park, N.J., was the first arrested. She was sentenced to three days in the Oneida County Jail.

George C. Kanoun, 24, of New York City, and Eric A. Robinson, 20, of Lompoc, Calif., were sentenced to 10 days in jail and ordered to pay fines of $50 apiece or serve an additional 10 days in jail.

Robinson, who refused to walk, was dragged into City Court by two policemen. They supported him throughout his appearance and dragged him out afterward.

The innocent plea was entered by Jack M. Shapiro, 20, of Detroit. His trial was scheduled for Tuesday.

Mrs. Collier was carried to a police patrol car when she ignored police orders to move from the road.

Two other members of the committee, Russell Goddard, 20, of Columbia, Mo., and Robert Cooper, 22, of Merrick, N.Y., climbed over a fence into the base.

Civilian guards ejected them.

Members of the committee came to Rome last Wednesday from Boston, Cleveland and Quebec City on a "peace march" that has as its eventual objective the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

The little girl is Susan Marcovitz, Mrs. Album's niece who was visiting in her home and had been asleep for about three hours with the dog by her side, when the picture was taken.

There were two double award winners in the first week's competition. Richard G. Lowery, P.O. Box 42, Haile, entered second and third place winners in the Teenager and Adult activities category. His second place photograph showed a young lady, almost in silhouette, holding a flower. Third place showed a group of teenagers diving into the Ouachita River from a springboard located out in the stream.

Wiley Richardson, Downsville, scored twice in the Scenics and Table Tops. His second place entry showed an archway of trees, and third place was a snow scene.

Other winners were:

In Babies and Children category, second place, showing a child seated on the grass looking at a pet bird standing nearby, was taken by Miss Ruth Tatum, Star Route, Box 39-B, Ferriday. Third Place, a little girl gazing thoughtfully into a mirror, was by Mrs. Helen C. Koone, Route 3, Winnfield.

The Pets and Animals class drew interesting entires to capture second and third place awards. Second place, showing a fuzzy dog in a pose as if he were playing chess with a small boy, was taken by Jack Noble, 411 N. 7th, West Monroe. Third place photo winner was centered on two pigs in a galvanized wash tub. It was taken by Loretta Zeagler, Route 2, Box 67A, Bastrop.

Judges offered some advice to photographers entering the contest. They noted that some of the pictures submitted would have been more effective if they had been properly cropped in printing. Another pointer offered was that closer attention to composition would add considerably to the power of pictures. Some photographs meeting these specifications were not in clear focus.

Deadline for submitting black and white photographs for th's week's judging is Thursday, and winners in each classification will be announced Sunday.

The contest will close August 18, giving amateur photographers around the area a number of chances to compete for the local prizes. At the end of the contest, top winners in local competition will be entered in national competition for big prize money.

Hunt Launched For Men Who Attacked Police

NASHVILLE (UPI) — Police said two gunmen disarmed two patrolmen Saturday, fired a shot at them and apparently kidnaped a youth to hold as hostage in their escape attempt.

The men, heavily armed with a variety of guns including three stolen from the policemen, apparently were holding the youth hostage by forcing him to drive them in his car, police said.

The apparent kidnap victim, Jerry Snow, 19, was ast seen when two men flagged his white convertible and told him to take them to see a dying brother at a nearby hospital.

The men answered the description of those who assaulted two Nashville policemen earlier in the day. Police said there was no case involving a dying man at the hospital.

Snow was last seen only a few hours after two men assaulted a team of patrolmen who stopped their car to check a hit and run accident.

Patrolman J. E. Hatcher said he and his partner, M. M. Waggonner, stopped the car and were questioning the men when one of them reached under the seat and drew out a 357-magnum pistol.

The gunman told Hatcher: "Okay buddy, don't try to be brave or you're a dead man."

"Waggoner started to pull his gun," Hatcher said. "But I begged him not to. He had the gun pushed in my ribs so hard I bent over. I thought he was going to shoot us."

Hatcher described the gunman as in his 30s, with thinning hair and a dark mustache. He said the man wore expensive clothing. The other man, who remained in the car, appeared young and had blond hair, Hatcher said.

Hatcher said he and Waggoner were ordered to stand against their car and "look natural." The gunman then disarmed them, taking their 38-caliber service revolvers and a 12-gauge shotgun, called a riot gun, from the car.

The gunman then took the ignition keys from the police cruiser, yanked the wiring from its two-way radio, got back in his car and rode off.

Report Says Latin Revolt Is Necessary

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A Princeton University report released here Saturday said the United States government must accept the "necessity for drastic —and sometimes violent—revolutionary change in Latin America" in order to save the Alliance for Progress.

The report, listed as "Policy Memorandum No. 27" is entitled "Land Reform and the Alliance for Progress" and was written by Dr. Edmundo Flores, an internationally known Mexican agricultural economist.

Dr. Flores, who was a visiting professor at Princeton's Woodrow Wilson school of public and international affairs in 1962-1963, made available to United Press International a copy of the study, printed by the university's center of international studies.

To prevent the Alliance for Progress from being fatally sabotaged by vested interests and to block Communist efforts to control Latin America's revolutionary upsurge, Dr. Flores urges that the United States "learn to live with popular, nationalistic, and democratically oriented movements . . ."

He specifically cautions against United States backing of "quasi-fuedal and militaristic governments in power," under whose control "there will be a pretense of economic development and alliance funds will be misallocated and wasted without changing the conditions responsible for political unrest and economic stagnation."

Mesa Ordeal Related By Housewife

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 100-pound housewife told Saturday of surviving six days on a desolate New Mexico mesa beside her dead husband and their crashed plane.

Mrs. Wendell Tweed's only food through the long ordeal was a piece of pastry. Her only drinking water was what she could catch on maps when rain fell last Tuesday. Days were broiling, nights near freezing.

She dragged tree branches over her husband's body to guard it from animals and said last rites.

"My prayers and my determination to live saved me," Mrs. Tweed, 47, of suburban Van Nuys, told the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner by telephone from her bed in a Grants, N.M., hospital.

A Civil Air Patrol plane found her Friday in a semidesert area 7,100 feet above sea level six miles southwest of Grants.

A helicopter took her to Cibola Hospital. She had second-degree burns on the feet, a cut over the left eye and numerous other cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Tweed, a technologist at the Burbank, Calif., medical center, and her pilot husband, 47, a Marquardt Aviation Co. engineer, were flying home from Iowa last Saturday.

"I don't think he ever had an accident in 20 years of flying," she said.

"We were about an hour and a half out of Albuquerque when our little plane (a two-seater Globe Swift) started losing altitude. "Wendell started trying to raise Grants Airport by radio, but for some reason it wouldn't work.

"We were in a down draft and couldn't fight it.

"We ripped through some trees about 45 feet high. The instruments buckled in and hit my eye. I lost consciousness for a minute."

The plane's canopy and a wing were torn off. Her husband was unconscious.

"I smelled smoke and flames started eating up through the bottom of the cabin," Mrs. Tweed continued. "I stomped them out, dragged Wendell out into the little shade of the plane and slapped him until he regained consciousness.

"His first words to me were, 'Frances, I'm so sorry. I don't know what happened.' He was bleeding."

Meredith Dishonored By Own Race

CHICAGO (UPI) — James H. Meredith, a hero to his race only a year ago, wept "my first tears since I was a child today" over the "intolerance and bigotry" he said he found at the convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Meredith, the Air Force veteran who integrated the University of Mississippi in the midst of a bloody riot, could not sleep following the tongue-lashing he received for the moderate views he expressed at an NAACP youth meeting Friday night.

"I shed my first tears early this morning since I was a child," Meredith said as he sat on the edge of his rumpled bed and talked to a United Press International reporter.

"Throughout all of the other ordeals I have encountered, I was able to maintain my composure. However, the discourtesy shown me last night by the group before which I had been invited to speak overwhelmed me. My make up cannot endure this kind of intolerance and stand to be so dishonored by my own people," Meredith said.

MOVEMENT ENDANGERED

The spirit which he found at the NAACP convention, Meredith warned, endangers the entire civil rights movement.

Roy C. Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary, had no sympathy for Meredith. Instead, he attacked the "Ole Miss" Negro for using the phrase "burr heads" in his speech before the Youth Freedom Fund banquet.

A UPI reporter encountered Wilkins outside Meredith's small hotel room in the Morrison Hotel and told him of what the Mississipian had said.

"Did he say that he was responsible for the treatment he received?" Wilkins snapped. "Did he say that he was criticized because he called the audience 'burr heads' or did he otherwise tell why he was treated as he was?

"The NAACP is not going to issue an apology to Mr. Meredith," Wilkins said. "If anybody is going to do any apologizing, it should be him for making such statements."

RIFT SEEN

Meredith's humilitation symbolized a widening rift between civil rights leaders which has been mountingly evident during the NAACP's story, weeklong convention.

The rift is between the "moderate" wing of the civil rights movement and the "direct action" advocates of a mass march on Washington to put pressure on Congress to pass an equal rights program even more sweeping than that proposed by President Kennedy.

The struggle among the ranks of the integrationist leaders erupted on Independence Day in an uproarious demonstration which drove Chicago's Mayor Richard J. Daley and the Rev. James H. Jackson, prominent civil rights campaigner and leader of 5 million Negro Baptists, from the speakers stand at a mass rally in Chicago's Grant Park.

Before Meredith spoke Friday, hundreds of NAACP delegates walked out on a Detroit civil rights leader who had criticized his local NAACP chapter of "dragging its feet."

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS

—Seventy of the 283 civil rights demonstrators who were arrested in a July 4 "freedom march" at Baltimore still faced court action.

—The school board of Virginia's Albermarle County was fired by the county board of supervisors for refusing to back down on an order banning all integrated extra-curricular school activities.

—The Detroit NAACP branch staged its third "freedom march" through an all-white neighborhood in the city's Grand River-Seven Mile area.

—A Negro boycott of white merchants was scheduled at Savannah, Ga.

—North Carolina's Gov. Terry Sanford urged a statewide "summit" meeting of 300 mayors, city managers and civic representatives "to display wisdom and courage and to understand that every child of God on earth desires a chance for life and human dignity." Sanford added, "I don't intend to dance to the tune of extremists on either side."

INCENSED AT MEREDITH

In Chicago, rumors swept the NAACP convention Friday night that Meredith would be booed off the speakers' platform in the same manner as Daley and Jackson. NAACP leaders were incensed by Meredith's reference to the "low quality and ineffectiveness of our Negro youth leaders." Wilkins and other NAACP leaders did not appear particularly concerned in advance about Meredith's statement that':

"Anyone of you burr heads out there could be the owner or manager of a large department store, president of a corporation, or even mayor of the city of Chicago. Only believe, all things are possible, if you only believe."

Instead of boos, Meredith got a cool reception and a few polite handclaps from the crowd of 600. He had left the room when James Davis, 22-year-old Rutgers University pre-law student from East Orange, N.J., and head of the NAACP's college and university division, arose and said "I am sorry I have to do this."

The throng came to its feet with shouts and cheers as Davis ripped into Meredith, charging he was a man who had strayed from the feelings of Negro youth and saying "I am extremely sorry anyone would come before you and tell you 'only believe'."

Gas Overcomes 24 Workers In Railway Tunnel

FIELD, B.C. (AP) — Overcome by fumes as they worked in a railway mountain tunnel, 24 men were rushed to a hospital Saturday and were reported recovering. A doctor said they could probably leave the hospital today.

There were 170 men in the tunnel work party, a Canadian Pacific Railway spokesman said, when suddenly some started to collapse.

First reports said the men were trapped, but a CPR official explained later the men keeled over as they were changing rails in the tunnel five miles from this town in the Canadian Rockies.

Some were brought out on railway flatcars. Others were able to walk to the entrance.

Doctors camping in the mountain resort area were rounded up, nurses were called and ambulances, trucks and station wagons took the men to a hospital at nearby Golden, B.C.

Officials said the fumes may have come from equipment being used on the job.

The men were in the Lower Spiral Tunnel through Cathedral Mountain, 43 miles west of Banff, Alta., on the CPR main line.

"Suddenly the men started staggering around and choking," said Walter Pollick, a gang supervisor. "Some managed to reach the end of the tunnel before collapsing. Others had to be dragged out."

Dr. Gordon Lapp of Golden said the men had carbon monoxide poisoning but probably could leave the hospital today.

JFK Visit To Stabilize Italy

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following analysis of President Kennedy's visit to Italy was written by United Press International's chief diplomatic correspondent in Washington, who accompanied the President on his European tour that ended earlier this week.

By STEWART HENSLEY

ROME (UPI) — President Kennedy's visit to Italy may be a factor in stabilizing this country's domestic politics for the present.

The President certainly would reject any suggestion he came here to meddle in Italian internal affairs. However, it is an inescapable conclusion that Kennedy's West European swing lessened Italian Socialist opposition to cooperation with the pro-Western Christian Democrats in maintaining a stable government.

The Socialists so far have refused to join Prime Minister Giovanni Leone's Christian Democrats in the government but are expected to permit it to survive.

The Senate Friday night voted 1330-110 to support Leone's government. The chamber of deputies is expected to follow through next week with a similar vote of confidence for Leone who has promised to step down in the fall after leading the government through the summer months.

During the President's trip to Italy the Socialists were impressed by two things:

—Kennedy's "strategy for peace," holding out the olive branch to the Kremlin.

The Socialist newspaper Avanti gave prominent display to this, declaring the Kennedy-Nenni talk was "cordial."

But Avanti noted with pleasure the 15-minute talk was the longest Kennedy held with anyone that evening and appeared to onlookers to be giving rapt attention to Nenni's remarks.

If the United States follows through strongly in the direction of a "strategy for peace" Nenni probably will be able to pull his followers back into the government—or at least into support of the government.

Texas Eastern Asks Approval For Expansion

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Texas Eastern Transmission Crop. has asked the Federal Power Commission for authorization to begin a $195 - million expansion of its natural gas system, the largest expansion in company history, according to Baxter D. Goodrich, executive vice president.

This latest expansion for the Houston based pipeline company will add 400 - million cubic feet to the daily delivery capacity of the firms natural gas system, according to Goodrich.

The expansion will be accomplished over a four - year period with the first phase facilities going into service during the fall of 1964.

To accomplish this expansion, Texas Eastern plans to construct approximately 800 miles of various diameter pipelines ranging in size up to 36 inches in diameter. The 36 - inch line would be used to connect Texas Eastern's system at New Rhodes, La. with a new source of supply at Venice, La. and most of the remaining construction will be along the route of its existing system between Opelousas and Lambertville, N. J., he said.

In addition, three new compressor stations with a combined total of 18,500 horsepower will be constructed; a new metering and regulating station will be added to the system, and special equipment changes will be made at a number of currently operating compressor stations that will increase the amount of natural gas they can handle.

"An important part of the expansion will be the conversion and development of the accident gas field in Garrett County, Md. for use as an underground storage reservoir for natural gas," Goodrich said.

"In addition to these new facilities, we have asked the Commission to allow us to amend a previously authorized construction project to enable us to construct a 20 - inch diameter pipeline instead of a 14-inch diameter line between Castor and West Monroe. The increased capacity through this line will be used in conjunction with this latest expansion."

The gas needed for this expansion is to be supplied by Gulf Oil Corporation under the terms of a gas purchase agreement recently announced by Texas Eastern, he said. Reserves available to Texas Eastern under the agreement amount to more than 4.4 trillion cubic feet with initial deliveries amounting to 150 million cubic feet daily and increasing in five years up to a daily contract quantity of 500 million cubic feet.

Texas Eastern will take delivery of the gas at the discharge of a processing plant to be built by Gulf at Venice, and will pay a maximum price of 20.9875 cents per thousand cubic feet for a take or pay value of 80 per cent of the contract quantity with the price decreasing to 19 cents per thousand feet cubic at and above the contract quantity.

MINOR STORM BLOWING

Mixed Parties Objected To Be African Leader

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd's white government strongly objects to social gatherings of whites and Africans.

On July 4th, U.S. Embassy officials and other white guests mingled with blacks at an Independence Day reception on embassy grounds.

A minor storm was still blowing over it Saturday.

South African government officials boycotted U.S. Embassy Independence Day celebrations in what one South African newspaper called a clumsy rebuke to a friend.

In an attempt to get around the rules of Verwoerd's segregation policies, U.S. Ambassador J.C. Satterthwaite decided on two 4th of July celebrations at Pretoria, the nation's administrative capital.

One was scheduled in the morning for government officials and diplomats. It was all-white. The second was an afternoon reception to which both Africans and whites were invited.

Representatives of the government boycotted the morning reception. The decision apparently was made some time in advance.

The Foreign Ministry issued a statement before the reception saying the government was not represented at the reception.

The statement suggested, however, that the reason for the boycott was not racial but rather in line with a directive issued to the diplomatic corps a few weeks ago by Foreign Minister Eric Louw. The directive said that morning diplomatic receptions often were the cause of considerable inconvenience and asked embassies to discontinue them.

Louw knew when he issued the directive that the U.S. Embassy had planned the morning reception for whites, and the multiracial afternoon reception.

"This is now clear," said the Rand Daily Mail of Johannesburg. "It was Louw's intention to try to compel embassies to toe the apartheid line and to get them to hold a whites-only function to celebrate their national days. The effort at compulsion having failed, the government most inadvisedly decided to administer a clumsy rebuke by staying away from the Independence Day reception."

Satterthwaite intends to continue inviting nonwhites to U.S. receptions here.

"Our government has decided as regards our 4th of July receptions that we should from now on follow the customs of our own government rather than those of the South African government," he said.

Police Activity Stays Quiet In Twin Cities

Police activities in the Twin Cities remained on the quiet side Saturday, with officers hoping it lasts through the rest of the Fourth of July holiday weekend.

Monroe officers logged two counts of driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and reckless driving Saturday, and booked two others for theft.

Booked for theft in connection with shoplifting incidents were Wanda Morris, 21, and Dorothy Russell, 19, both of P. O. Box 1762, Monroe. They were taken into custody in Safeway Store shortly before 1 p.m. Saturday.

Booked for DWI and reckless driving at 12:40 a.m. Saturday in Monroe was Turner L. Fuller, 25, Sterlington. He was taken into custody in the 3900 block of Jackson Street.

At 3:30 p.m., Hazel A. Bell, 29, of Rt. 1, Box 46, West Monroe, was booked for DWI and reckless driving. She was apprehended at Plum and South Second Streets, and held under $435 bond.

In Monroe, three persons were injured but none seriously, when two cars collided at the intersection of Cole Avenue and Brevelle Street around 4:45 p.m. Saturday. This marks the first injuries through auto accidents in the Twin Cities during the four-day holiday weekend.

Betty Jean Wilkerson, 31, of 1703 McGuire Ave., and Randy Wilkerson, 4, of the same address both sustained minor injuries. The woman was treated for lacerations at St. Francis hospital and released, while the child was to be taken to a private physician for checking later. Shirley Smith, 17, of Swartz, however, sustained severe lacerations and was suffering from loss of blood. She was treated at St. Francis hospital and held overnight for observation.

The two Wilkersons were passengers in a car driven east on Breville by John J. Shelton, 40, of 206 Tennessee st., Monroe. The vehicle collided with a car driven by Louise E. Smith, 15, of Swartz. The Smith girl who was injured was riding in the car driven by Louise Smith, headed north on Cole Avenue when the collision occurred.

Two persons also sustained minor injuries in West Monroe in a two-car collision at Wellerman Road and Warren Drive. Jack H. Dana, and 13-year-old Jean Katherine Dana, of 112 Avant St., West Monroe, were rushed to Glenwood hospital for emergency treatment. Dana, with the young girl a passenger in his car, was headed south on Warren Drive. The other vehicle was operated by Ray M. Acosta, 57, of Jackson, Miss. Acosta was charged with reckless driving.

Youths Escape Serious Injury In 2-Car Crash

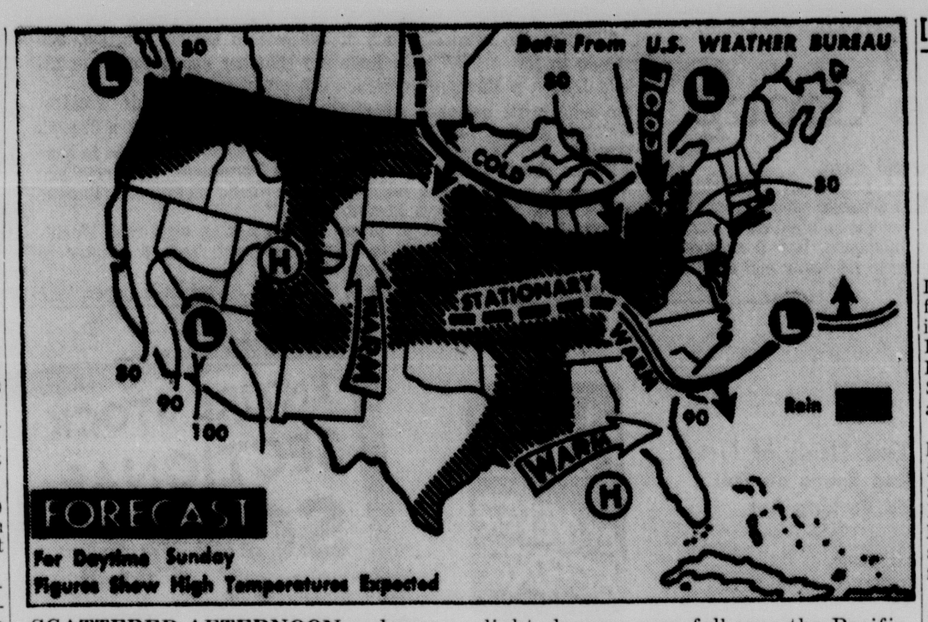

Two Monroe youths narrowly escaped serious injury in a two-car collision at Spencer Avenue and Orleans Street on the north side of town late Saturday night.

Monroe police identified the injured boys as 15-year-old Walter Dunn, 2215 Beechwood St., and David W. Chennault, of 804 Jamar Dr., both of Monroe. They were rushed to the hospital for emergency treatment by Mulhearn ambulance.

Witnesses at the scene stated the Chennault boy was apparently driving south on Spencer Avenue when he collided with the rear of another southbound car driven by James Goldman, 19, of 3600 Deborah Dr. and crashed off the street into a deep ditch.

Goldman told investigating officers that he had just pulled onto Spencer Avenue off Orleans when the collision occurred. Two passengers in the car with him escaped injury.

Police were still investigating the incident late Saturday.

SCATTERED AFTERNOON and evening showers and thundershowers are forecast today from central and north central plains eastward through the Mississippi, Tennessee and Ohio valleys to the central Appalachians. A few light showers may fall over the Pacific northwest and the Florida peninsula. It should turn a little cooler over the upper Great Lakes and continue cool through the Pacific northwest states. Senator Denounces Civil Rights Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., denounced the administration's public accommodations bill and other parts of its civil rights program Saturday and said "a lengthy filibuster" against it can be expected.

Tower, predicted "it would take a virtual police state to enforce" the proposed ban on racial discrimination in stores, restaurants, theaters and other privately owned places of public accommodation.

Tower takes part in the strategy sessions of Southern senators opposed to enactment of the administration package bill.

Calling for action on a voluntary rather than a compulsory basis, Tower said the measure has implications far beyond civil rights.

"I think it brings the federal government in this business of regulating the use of private property," he said in a transcribed broadcast for stations in Texas.

Tower said that substantial progress has been made throughout the South and elsewhere in the country in voluntarily desegregating places of public accommodation. He cited Dallas, Houston, San Antonio and other Texas cities as examples.

Tower also objected to administration proposals that he said would allow the attorney general "to act as the counsel and the lawyer for plaintiffs in civil rights cases."

The legislation provides that, under certain circumstances, the attorney general may bring injunction suits on behalf of individual citizens to force desegregation of schools and places of public accommodation.

Polish Porter Asks Asylum

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) —The porter of Poland's Embassy has asked for political asylum because he feared he had fallen from grace with his superiors, police said Saturday.

The porter, 56, had been called home to Warsaw.

After getting the notice, he walked straight to a police station and asked for asylum for himself and two sons, aged 12 and 18.

Police, as is usual in such cases, gave no names or other details. They said only formalities remained before granting asylum.

Louisiana Gubernatorial Hopefuls Talk To Press

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Five Democratic gubernatorial hopefuls "met the press" in a speaking session before the Louisiana Press Association Saturday. One Republican, Charlton Lyons of Shreveport, who said he was not a candidate, also spoke.

Claude Kirkpatrick, state public works director, described Louisiana as "a sleeping giant." He said that state politics have hurt Louisiana in luring new industry. He added he could give the state stability by taking powers away from the governor's office.

Kirkpatrick said he favored filling appointments at a local level.

When questioned who he would back for president, he said "Right now, I am not sure that the Democrats will nominate Kennedy or the Republicans will nominate Goldwater."

Rep. Louis Michot of Lafayette Parish said it was unpredictable what the state voters would do in December. He said they might overlook the real issues and vote on emotional issues. He predicted a political revolution in December, saying, "The voters are confused, fed up, dissatisfied. That's why you have so many candidates."

Michot said he believed in blue ribbon boards. He said they gave the governor a chance to divest himself of undue power and afforded citizens a chance to serve the state. But, he argued, that it is within the power of the governor to curtail expenses of board members and the governor should set the tone for an administration.

Michot said he would back Goldwater.

DeLesseps S. Morrison, U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, told the LPA there is a need for greater financial responsibility and for demonstrated leadership and ability on the part of the governor. He said he felt he had exhibited these qualities in his 24 years of governmental experience.

The former New Orleans mayor said he felt that state boards were very essential, but should operate as advisors. He said the way to reduce the governor's power is to reduce his power over the Legislature.

When queried on segregation, Morrison said, he recalled that in 1960 Gov. Jimmie H. Davis and others had declared they would go to jail in defiance of federal orders to integrate rather than comply, adding, "I do not recall anyone going to jail."

On race problems, Morrison said he supported the rule of reason.

Morrison said he would go along with the Democratic nominee for the president.

John J. McKeithen, public service commissioner, told the newsmen he favored a code of ethics, a listing of state employes and a more realistic law providing the investment of idle funds.

He said he had no connection with the state administration or the national administration, and he did not expect help from either one.

McKeithen charged that the Davis administration is obligated to "a few, very large contributors."

He said, "I am not a controlled candidate. . .not from Washington and not from Baton Rouge."

McKeithen called blue ribbon boards a "roost for deadheads. . . making more money than they ever did before." They are placed there from campaign obligations, he said.

McKeithen said that he felt it was too early to consider backing a presidential candidate.

Clyde Johnson, a Greensburg minister, urged a constitutional convention to replace a document dating from the "mud and buggy days."

The lay apostolic preacher said he has adopted a 20-point program formulated by the Public Affairs Research Council.

He promised to promote industry and that he would not "knock" other candidates in the campaign. He said he favored lowering the minimum welfare age for old age benefits to 60 years.

Lyons, who said he was a Goldwater Republican, told the association he was present to assert the GOP view in state politics.

He blamed the structure of Louisiana government for an unhealthy economic climate and cited inequitable treatment for industry in the property tax structure. He declared that Louisiana has become known among industrialists for instability in government and for "gouging industry."

Lyons charged the State Democratic Party with "demagoguery" in its political promises of the past.

PRESTONBURG, Ky. (AP) — A recent flood was disastrous to many residents along the Big Sandy River but to four enterprising men it was a glorious business opportunity.

They soon ran into a backlog of orders after establishing a house - raising service. They raise the houses on jacks and put in higher foundations, out of the water's reach.

HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Organ Enthusiasts Are Strange Group

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP)—"What kind do you have?"

"How many ranks?"

"Over 200 stops, you say?"

It's a continual chatter about ranks, pipes, manuals and mixtures as more than 200 persons from all over the country assemble for the annual convention of the American Theater Organ enthusiasts.

L. A. Waldsmith, captain of the sheriff's patrol for Montgomery County at Dayton, Ohio, can't even play an organ but likes to rebuild them.

And Lowell Ayars, Bridgeton, N.J., a public school music teacher, bought an eight-rank Wurlitzer by telephone, had it shipped 700 miles to his home and installed it himself.

"They're the craziest bunch of people in the world," said Reinhold Delzer, a Bismarck contractor who with neighbor Charles Welch is playing host to the convention.

Delzer should know.

He built an expensive addition to his home for his own 21-rank organ. A rank is a set of pipes which may number from 61 to 97. He used 22 tons of reinforcing steel and 167 cubic yards of concrete in the construction, and the chamber can accomodate 125 persons.

Loderhose explains his "greatest organ in the world" is a 42-rank Wurlitzer which used to be in New York's Paramount Theater—"you know, Jessie Crawford's famous organ."

Ayars has an eight-rank Wurlitzer removed from a theater in Appleton, Wis.

"I saw an ad in a paper," he explained, "and wrote a letter."

But the Wisconsin organ owner refused to believe anyone from New Jersey was really interested in his instrument. Ayars finally resorted to the telephone and got the organ, along with a bill for $750 in shipping charges.

Organ enthusiasts and some well known professional organists mostly talk shop during the convention.

Powerful Air Arm On Global Mission

The Strategic Air Command, global strike force of the U.S. Air Force, has a peace time mission of deterring aggression. In event of war, from its underground control center, it will direct a devastating array of aircraft and missiles against the enemy. Here is a report on its operations.

The United States Strategic Air Command, described as the world's most powerful military force operating on a global basis, has a key role in deterring aggression and a vital mission if war should come.

The nerve center of the Air Force's global strike force is in an underground command post located beneath SAC's headquarters building at Offutt Air Force Base, near Omaha, Nebraska.

In time of war, SAC's aerospace force of aircraft and missiles would be directed against the enemy by controls in one room of the underground post.

SHREVEPORT POST

By picking up a red telephone, the senior SAC controller can speak directly to more than 80 subordinate command posts spread across the northern hemisphere. One of these posts is that of the Second Air Force at Barksdale Air Force Base, Shreveport.

Through this system, each SAC base receives notice of alerts, practice or real, from coded messages.

Another telephone, gold in color, gives the controller a direct line to the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington and to other major command headquarters.

SAC missile sites located near Barksdale at Shreveport are for the GAM-72 Quail and the GAM-77 Hound Dog missiles.

The Quail is a decoy giving a bomber-like return on radar. It is designed for inflight launching to confuse enemy radar and further improve bomber penetration ability.

The Hound Dog is a supersonic guided missile with nuclear warhead, carried by B-52 and launched hundreds of miles from target. It blasts the way in for the B-52 and can strike widely separated targets.

'SHORT ORDER'

Through a radio network called "Short Order," the command post can contact SAC tactical aircraft in flight over any part of the world. A principal purpose of this system is to pass the execution order ("Go Code") to the bomber forces, if specifically ordered by the President of the United States.

The control room, one of the most impressive facilities in the underground command post, is 140 feet long, 39 feet wide and 21 feet high. Within 30 seconds, vital operational data can be taken from an original printed source and flashed on a screen before the entire battle staff.

The screen is 96 feet long and 17 feet high. Six different displays of information can be projected on it simultaneously to provide a wide range of vital operational information to the staff.

Operational information pertaining to weather, force deployment, aircraft, missiles, and other elements, is transferred from the original source to plastic transparencies and projected on the screen.

Using transparency film and a dry process copying machine, film and original documents can be reproduced in four seconds. Critical data from electronic computer printouts is also reproduced on a transparency for immediate screening, and battle staff evaluation.

UP TO DATE

Since SAC's emergency war plan can change frequently as new data becomes available, the data display is continually kept up to date with information fed from computers.

Source of most of the information flashed to the controller is a battery of International Business Machine computers located nearby which stores information pertaining to the SAC force, including status of aircraft and missiles, crews, bases, war plans and supplies. In time of war, the machines would record the progress of the strike force, serving as an invaluable aid to the SAC commander in chief in making his decisions. Strike information would be processed automatically in minimum time, giving SAC immediate and continuous knowledge of its strike force.

Through an electronic device known as the "situation display system" in the command post, the controller would receive early warning of missiles or aircraft approaching the U.S. from over the polar regions. The SDS, which provides visual display of any such activity, is connected with the ballistic missile early warning system and Headquarters North American Air Defense Command.

In a trajectory center in the SAC underground, intelligence specialists, aided by electronic computers, mathematically establish trajectory and space data for the command's intercontinental ballistic missiles. Information compiled here is fed into the missiles' guidance systems which direct payloads to their targets.

The SAC underground would be sealed off in time of war. Food stored there would support persons working in the command post independent of the rest of the base or headquarters.

In case the SAC underground command post was knocked out, which would require a near direct hit by a nuclear weapon, control of the SAC force would be passed to an alternate command post or to an airborne command post that is maintained in the air 24 hours a day.

Already flying airborne command post missions are five specially modified KC-135 Jet Stratotankers of the 34th Air Refueling Squadron at Offutt. One of these is aloft at all times.

The airborne command and control capability of SAC has been increased with additional specially modified KC-135 and B-47 aircraft as part of the airborne command post system. The increase in aircraft will permit a number of other SAC units to have the command and control capability, should it become necessary.

The control team aboard the airborne command post is headed by a general officer designated as airborne emergency actions officer. His staff is comprised of highly experienced operations and communications personnel.

Once airborne, ultra - high frequency and single side-band radio gear is used to establish and maintain contact with the SAC underground, alternate SAC command posts, the U. S. Air Force command post at Washington, D. C., and the Joint War Room, also in Washington.

The airborne command post contains two ultra - high frequency transmitter-receiver systems and four single side-band units. One of each can be used for simultaneous transmission, or all six can be used at the same time to monitor various channels.

In addition to the Second Air Force at Barksdale AFB in Shreveport, other major subordinate commands within the continental United States consist of Eighth Air Force, Westover AFB, Chicopee Falls, Mass.; 15th Air Force, March AFB, Riverside, Calif., and the First Strategic Aerospace Division, Vandenberg AFB, Lompoc, Calif.

CONTROL SCOPE

Each of the numbered air forces controls approximately equal numbers of SAC's mixed force of operational bombers and intercontinental ballistic missile units.

Overseas, two air divisions and a numbered air force direct SAC activity. Sixteenth Air Force at Torrejon Air Base, Madrid, Spain, is responsible for SAC's operations in Spain and North Africa, The Seventh Air Division, located at High Wycombe Air Station, near London, England, controls SAC bases in the United Kingdom. The Third Air Division on Guam in the Marianas is concerned with SAC activity in the Far East. In addition, there are several other units outside of the continental United States responsible to the stateside numbered air forces.

Goose Air Base, Labrador, Ernest Harmon AFB, Newfoundland, and Ramey AFB, Puerto Rico, are operated by the Eighth Air Force. SAC is a tenant at Hickam AFB, Hawaii, and Elelson and Elemendorf AFB, Alaska. These units are under jurisdiction of the 15th Air Force.

The command does not base tactical aircraft or missiles permanently in any foreign country. It does, however, have bombers and tankers in Puerto Rico.

SAC's deterrent mission is symbolized by its motto, "Peace is Our Profession."

Deterrence is many things, according to Gen. Thomas S. Power, SAC commander in chief, who describes it this way:

"Deterrence is more than bombs and missiles and tanks and armies. Deterrence is a sound economy and prosperous industry. Deterrence is scientific progress and good schools. Deterrence is adequate civil defense and a stable professional military force. Most of all, deterrence is the determination of the American people to prevent and, if necessary fight and win any kind of war, whether hot or cold, big or small."

SAC's jet bomber force, through aerial refueling, has global range. Day and night at least 50 per cent of the force is on ground alert in the U.S. and overseas, armed and positioned to take off within the warning time of an ICBM attack as provided by the ballistic missile early warning system. The concept of airborne alert has been tested, and found feasible, and all SAC heavy bomber units are engaged in regular airborne alert training.

ICBM's are constantly on alert, supplementing SAC's manned bomber force. The bomber force is composed of 600 B-47's; 600 B-52s; 500 KC-135s; 400 KC-97s and 80 B-58s.

MISSILE FORCE

The missile force consists of 126 Atlas, 54 Titan I, and a rapidly increasing force of Minutemen, of which a total of 950 are now programmed. In addition, six squadrons of advanced Titan II missiles will be operational prior to the end of this year. SAC's total missile force will be increasing at the rate of more than one a day throughout this year.

The B-47 Stratojet is a six-jet medium bomber which travels at near sonic speed.

Other aircraft and their capabilities: B-52 Stratofortress, eight-jet heavy bomber, near sonic speed. B-58 Hustler, supersonic bomber, flies more than twice the speed of sound. KC-97 Stratotanker, four-piston engine tanker. KC-135 Jet Stratotanker, four-jet tanker, near sonic speed.

In addition to the Quail and Hound Dog, other missiles and their capabilities are SM-65 Atlas, ICBM, liquid fuel, operational, 6,300-mile range. SM-68 Titan, ICBM, liquid fuel, operational, 6,300-mile range; SM-80 Minuteman, ICBM, solid fuel operational, 6,300-mile range.

SAC carries on a continuous program of combat training, and more than 17.5 million flying hours have been completed to date.

PERSONNEL

More than 280,000 officers, airmen, and civilian employees are assigned to SAC. It's combat crews have extensive experience. Aircraft commanders on senior and select crews, for example, average about 34 years of age, the oldest being 46 and the youngest 21. Forty-one per cent have flown in combat in World War Two or the Korean conflict and have participated in an average of 19.5 combat missions. The average length of service as an officer for those in this category is 12 years, nine months.

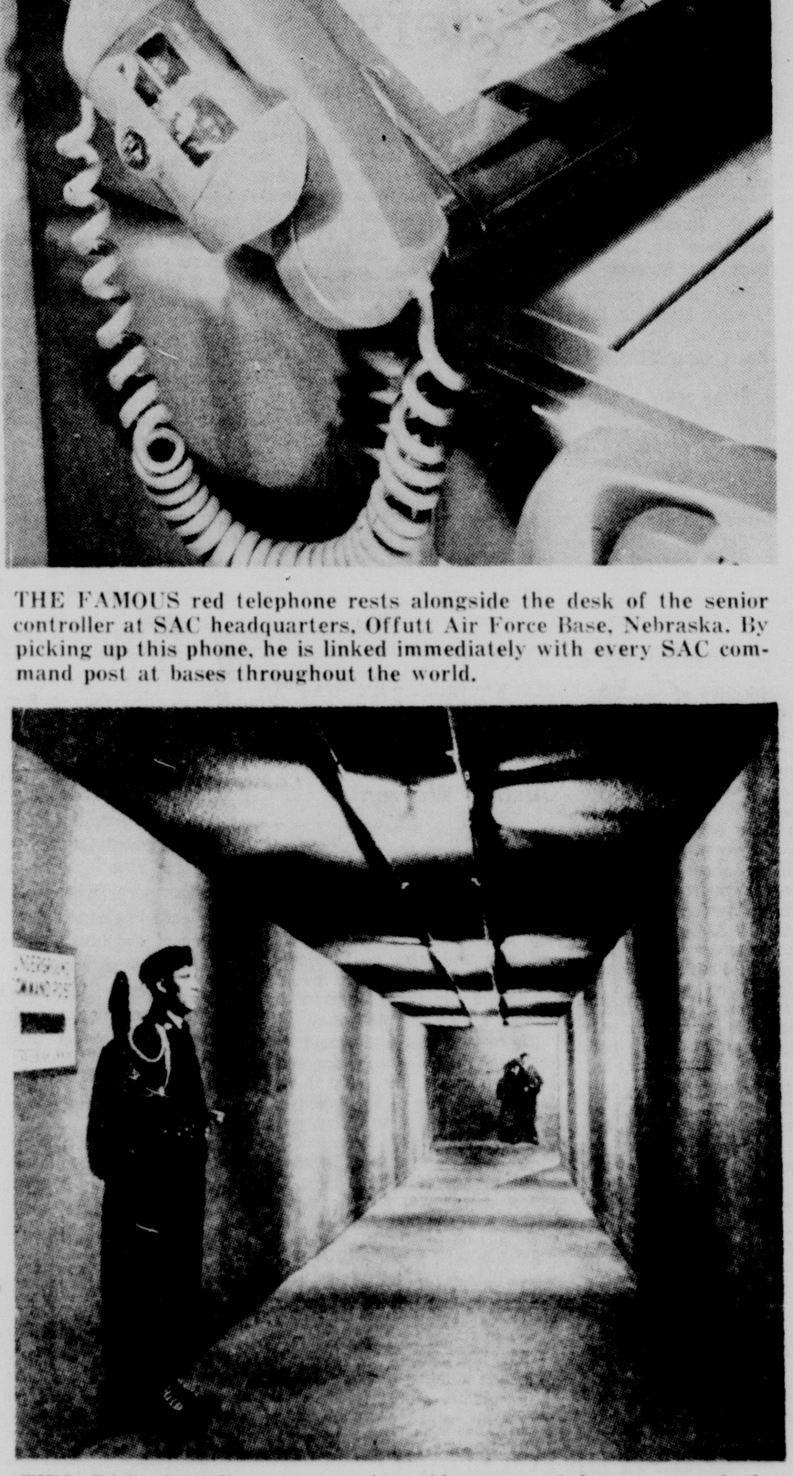

WARNING STATUS

In event of warning of an attack received from the North American Air Defense Command, getting the bombers airborne does not send SAC to war, officials said, but it does insure survival of its ground alert aircraft should the warning prove valid.

After reaching a certain point on their routes, well outside of enemy territory, the bombers automatically return to their bases unless they receive positive coded voice instructions to proceed to their targets. Authority from the President is the only means whereby the SAC force would proceed to target, beyond the "positive control" point. And the "go code" would be authenticated by several levels of command and ultimately by more than one member of the bomber crew.

THE FAMOUS red telephone rests alongside the desk of the senior controller at SAC headquarters, Offutt Air Force Base, Nebraska. By picking up this phone, he is linked immediately with every SAC command post at bases throughout the world.

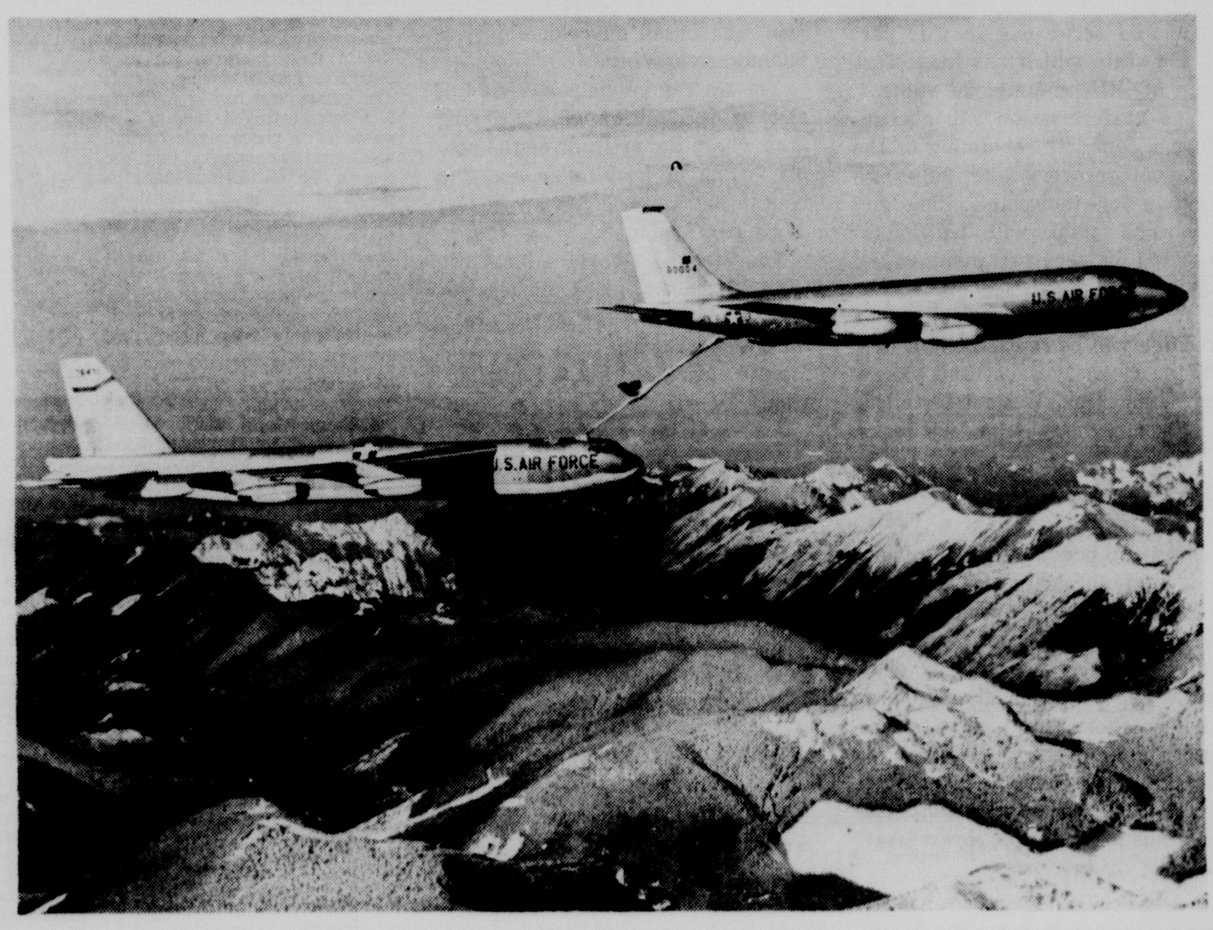

TWO SAC air policemen, wearing sidearms and berets, guard the corridor to the SAC underground command post at Offutt Air Force Base, Nebraska.

A TITAN MISSLE rises from its underground silo at Vandenberg AFB, California, home of SAC's 1st Strategic Aerospace Division.

NOW OPERATIONAL with the Strategic Air Command's aerospace force is the General Dynamics-built B-58 "Hustler," the Free World's first supersonic bomber, and the holder of numerous world speed records. Capable of altitudes and speeds far beyond any other bomber now in existence, the Hustler can carry a nuclear bomb, a battery of cameras, or electronic countermeasures equipment in the disposable "pod" mounted beneath its fuselage. (USAF Photos)

A STRATEGIC COMMAND KC-135 refuels a B-52 Stratofortress. The KC-135 Jet Stratotanker puts additional punch into the striking power of SAC's global jet force. Jet-to-jet refueling means that SAC's 600-miles-per-hour medium and heavy jet bombers can take on a full load of fuel while on course and at operational jet speeds and altitudes.

Timely Venture

There is more behind the recently announced plant expansion of the Olin Mathieson kraft pulp and paper facility in West Monroe than a simple enlargement of a local industry.

The willingness of the corporation to undertake a multimillion dollar modernization is a vote of confidence for Monroe, West Monroe and all of northeast Louisiana as an area suitable for industrial growth.

The Morning World congratulates es M. H. Collet, vice president and general manager of the forest products operation of Olin's packaging division, for his ability to speak in positive terms as to the value of larger and more modern plant facilities here.

Paper manufacture is not new to this area. But Olin's modernization of the West Monroe plant launches a new era for all forest products in Louisiana if not in the entire South.

Wood handling facilities will be enlarged with the addition of new debarking and chipping equipment to permit separate handling of pine and hardwood pulpwood. The use of hardwood in pulp and paper manufacture is a definite step forward, since there is much cottonwood and scrub oak in this part of the state which has heretofore been of little commercial value.

The modernization will also include a complete rebuilding of the chemical recovery and pulp mill portions of the plant. Pine and hardwood pulp will be manufactured in separate pulping and washing systems.

An existing 40-year-old paper machine will be replaced by a new 500-ton capacity paper and paperboard. machine. When installed, this machine will increase the plant's capacity to 1,000 tons per day in paper and board products.

While a major portion of the announced multimillion dollar investment will go into the pulp and paper mill operations, a sizeable sum will also go into Olin's paper converting machinery. New corrugated container and folding carton facilities will be located in regional markets.

Collet said work on the modernization projects would be phased over a three-year period with completion on the program slated for mid-1966.

Olin's packaging division produces packaging products including kraft paper and paperboard, corrugated containers, cartons, multiwall shipping sacks, standard and specialty bags and cellophane. Other packaging products include lumber, hardwood flooring, treated wood products and lightweight papers. Such a list of products is impressive in light of the fact that nearly all of the raw materials are obtained from local or regional sources.

The conclusion of a large, international corporation pointing to the Monroe, West Monroe area as a suitable site in which to invest such a sum on plant modernization was based on cold, objective business reasoning.

Yet we cannot help but view it also as recognition of a growing area where the attitude of the people is one of hospitality and "an honest day's work for an honest day's pay."

The Morning World salutes the Olin Mathieson plant modernization program. We feel it will prove timely, worthwhile and profitable for the entire northeast Louisiana area.

Drones And Dead Weight

Since the beginning of the "new deal" some 30 years ago, an influential group of Americans has pushed a variety of programs and projects which amount to dead weight on our society. Liberal thinkers, though they point to centralized government as "more efficient" than private enterprise, apparently believe also that the government should support a large group of drones.

In the beehive, there are drones whose idleness is somehow taken care of by the balance of nature. But in a productive, tax - paying society, there is no place for the dead weight of overloaded government payrolls.

This dependent population is growing all the time. And the "new frontier" wants to expand social services to the dependents, sending young people from crowded urban conditions into a national service corps and providing medical care to the aged who have not set something aside for a rainy day.

Among other writers, Eugene Davidson, editor of Modern Age, has discussed the dead weight problem in an article entitled "The New Poor and the Old Baloney." He warned that we are witnessing in this country "constantly escalating" demands for such matters as a five - hour day, for a built-in system of resetting newspaper advertisements that are already in type, for extra stage hands who do no work, and for railroad telegraphers who take no messages.

It is ironic that those persons who want to work hard and have no work are in some cases actually prevented from taking any job. This growing barricade results from certain laws and practices created by the "social uplift' advocates. For example, a man in a documentary film on the unemployed list in West Virginia said he would take any kind of work from house painting to ditch digging.

"But," pointed out author Davidson, "he won't if the unions can help it; he would undercut the market for the overtime construction workers and for the house painters who with their narrow brushes and artificial scales actually help keep houses unpainted."

The newspaper strikes in New York and Cleveland earlier this year serve as examples. Demands placed on companies had the overall effect of abolishing employment rather than bettering working conditions. Many a newspaper has failed in the United States because of the skyrocketing demands of labor officials. In the New York strikes, several of the unions realized that tendency in time to avert such shutdowns.

There are other aspects. Artificial wage requirements hold down private construction below the level of what it should be. Meanwhile, the proponents of government projects increase their demands for more public housing in the name of "slum clearance." The middle class earners are loaded up with additional taxes while the slum dwellers have new developments constructed for them.

Statistics from New York City and other metropolitan areas show that these new units have become expensive strongholds of crime and idleness.

Only rarely do the hard facts about such dead weight projects get a thorough airing. But an official of the Illinois Public Aid Commission remarked at a meeting last April:

"Let's face it. Seventy-five per cent of the people on relief (in the State of Illinois) are Negroes."

Every good society aims to be humanitarian in the best sense. We need welfare programs for those persons who actually are in need. But today's social welfare philosophy is actually hurting the very people it is supposed to help. The dependents in our country are not being aided in learning or even relearning self-reliance. Instead, they are being taught to live permanently as drones at public expense. The Aid to Dependent Children scheme, for example, actually adds fuel to the fires of immoral parenthood.

This sort of subsidy cannot provide a true social upturn for the United States.

Views Of Our Readers

Senator Long

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:
The following has been sent to Senator Russell B. Long.

From some of the articles you have published, I presume you are in favor of Mr. Kennedy's one-world government and one-world police force. I am sure you have sincere convictions for your thinking in these matters, but as a patritoic, freedom-loving, American citizen who has seen Chiang Kai-Shek betrayed and Castro promoted to power while communism has dominated a vast portion of the world, if is hard for me to sit idly by and take things easy as some of our elected officials are asking the American people to do. I feel the Khrushchev, if there is a spark of truth in him, would be the first to admit that this could not have been accomplished without money and material received from America.

I am asking you to search your conscience to ask yourself where you, the people of Louisiana, and the people of America would stand if these goals were attained.

These are not "untruths" that I have dreamed up but are real facts that have been revealed before the eyes of America. So, I am asking you to do everything in your power to help regain the freedom we once enjoyed and to turn the tide of this trend toward communism. Work, not talk, will do it.

Report On JFK

Monroe, La.

We are sending you a report on JFK'S European trip:
Listen my children and hear what I say,
And I will tell of the trip of JFK
What it's about I am not so sure
But he wants his Image not to be abscure.
To Bonn he went and such a picture he painted
The people went wild and the women fainted.
He thought his troubles at home were only ant hills
He could just raise the deficit to pay all the bills.
Forgot the Monroe Doctrine and Fidel Castro.
He told them sweet stories on that bright summer day
But failed to mention the Bay of Pigs in a round about way
How without a murmur he handed Cuba to that Communist Clown.
But he promised Berlin faithfully he would not let them down.
From Bonn to Dublin he traveled with glee
To visit his relatives in the old north country.
He told these good people a little white lie
Hoping they would forget it betore they die.
He told them Boston was the oldest town in our nation
Is St. Augustine too far south or too low for his station?
While his heart was in Ireland and from home far away
What cared he of Panama's fate in a not distant day?
From Dublin back to London he went
To visit Macmillan and get his consent
To give in to the Russians for a ban on the tests
Don't displease the Butcher of old Budapest!
Why is he always apeasing this big lumpish clod
Who in his heart says, "There is no God"?
Then on to Rome with a song and a dance
A cold shoulder given to Portugal and France

Respectfully,
Mrs. Lloyd H. Elliott

Crashing Type

Alexandria, La.

To the Editor
The first objective of socialism-communism, either the creeping or the crashing type, is the abolition of private property. Bear that in mind always.

Forewarned is forearmed. Two State governors (Kentucky and California) have issued executive orders by-passing their legislatures to bring about the President's private property - destroying civil rights laws in advance of action by the U. S. Congress, and just in case Congress fails.

It is said that President Kennedy has at least two favorites in the race for Governor of Louisiana and that he will be as happy with one as with the other ecause both will carry out his orders to the letter and will even anticipate him in certain trends. Even a slightly informed Louisianian can guess who these two candidates are.

Should we not then try to outsmart the plotters and vote for a man we know positively will be for the people, for preservation of private property and free enterprise and not for one who is ready to sell out to the would-be dictator? Think!

True Story

Alexandria, La.

To the Editor:
Some times the items that newspapers conceal are more revealing than the ones they print. There was the murder of William L. Moore, for instance, as he walked through Northern Alabama in a one - man demonstration against segregation. All the newspapers, radio and TV made a big deal out of the case. There were stories about Gov. Wallace posting $1,000 reward, about President Kennedy's shocked statement that it was an "outrageous crime, about memorial pilgrimages to the scene of the murder, etc..

There is absolutely no denying that such a coldblooded murder should not be tolerated, but it is odd that in all the detailed press, radio and TV stories of this terrible deed, one angle was completely omitted. That significant feature was the fact, as revealed in NATIONAL REVIEW of June 18, that in the cart Moore had been dragging behind him on his trek through the South there was a large painted sign that read: "WANTED — THE CAPTURE OF JESUS CHRIST. HE WAS AN IMPOSTER."

Makes you wonder, doesn't it?

Justice Warren

To the Editors:

The purpose of this letter is to bring the attention of as many people as read this to the fact that there is a very good possibility that Chief Justice Earl Warren can and may be impeached for failure to stand up to his oath to uphold the Constitution of the United States of America.

There is such a movement now underway and in order for those people who are interested in preserving our way of life which has been sufficient for so many years to do something constructive about it NOW, there is being offered by the 'Movement to Impeach Earl Warren', a packet which you may order and read and pass on to others.

Enclosed is a sticker which if you will reprint will give all the necessary information which anyone interested will need in order to receive this packet.

Thanking you in advance for your reproduction of this, we are,

Yours sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. Royce Pace

Pentagon Whiz Kids

Can We Have Faith In Secretary McNamara?

THE TFX investigation of the Senate Government Operations subcommittee drags along, but what it will accomplish is in the laps of the political gods. Perhaps there will come a time when the story of this experimental plane and the $6.5 billion earmarked for its development and production will be told. It is all in the subcommittee's record — but no newspaper would have the space to publish it during the unfolding — and few would want to.

There will be some who insist that all the sound and fury of a senatorial investigation is not worth the bother. Probably the TFX will never go on the production line. A billion dollars or so will be spent in developing it — and then the Whiz Kids, their slide rules squeaking, will be chasing another weapons system will-o'-the-wisp. This has been the story of Defense Secretary Robert McNamara's Pentagon ever since the military men were told to go polish their belt buckles so the Ph.D.'s could take over.

While the Soviets buzz away here and there, translating from blueprint to actuality their ideas of offensive and defensive systems, the United States has produced nothing but a lot of expensive art - work since President Kennedy took over. There has been not one new weapons system since January, 1961. Every time something begins to look good, the Whiz Kids decide not to go into production because another thing looks better. When the day of reckoning comes, we can wave blueprints at the Soviets.

THE TFX scandal, however, has had one terrible effect. It has shaken the faith many of us have had in the Defense Department. Other outfits in government played footsie with facts, but the Pentagon (whether right or wrong) was honest. We could disagree, let us say, with the policies of President Truman's Secretary Louis Johnson. (They led to the parlous state of American military defense when the Korean War broke out.) But there was no hanky-panky about it.

In the case of the TFX, we have been given phony facts and phonier figures. And the evidence has conclusively demonstrated that the plane which the Defense Secretary contracted for was costlier (over $400 million) and less satisfactory than the one recommended by the Navy and Air Force experts. Mr. McNamara's arguments in favor of his decision have been shown to be specious. And there is uncontradicted evidence that he had a team of assistants preparing those arguments long after he had awarded the contract to General Dynamics.

A STUDY of the as-yet unprinted testimony turns up a real shocker. It should be recalled that the rejected Boeing plane included thrust reversers necessary for shorter landings. The General Dynamics plane did not, though the Navy and Air Force had listed them as a vital requirement.

Secretary McNamara, however, told the McClellan subcommittee: "I want to point out that in selecting the General Dynamics proposal, we retained the option to apply thrust reversers to the aircraft design."

A LITTLE over a week after Mr. McNamara's categorical statement, there was testimony to the contrary from A. W. Blackburn, former Marine flier, test pilot, and aeronautical engineer—perhaps the most expert witness to appear. Major Blackburn had been on the inside at the Pentagon through the period when Boeing and General Dynamics were competing.

Executive Turnover

Change Of Jobs At The Top Level Is High In U.S.

HE IS UNDER 50, is earning a salary of at least $20,000, is a middle-management executive reporting directly to the top brass. If he is this man, the chances are high he quit his last job after holding it only 24 to 36 months; 41 per cent of a cross-segment of this key group in American industry quit their last jobs after this short period. The chances are overwhelming that he stayed on his last job less than 10 years; 78 per cent of this group resigned their last posts well before the 10-year milestone.

The middle-management man in American industry holds a position of crucial importance to our economy's future. His brainpower, drive, initiative, dedication can push a corporation to the top or doom it to dry rot. His ideas and freedom to follow through on ideas will help determine whether a company is or becomes mediocre or vice versa. Moreover, this man costs big-time money to find, to hire, to train, to keep.

Yet, this 41 per cent figure reveals an astounding turnover at this executive level.

IT REPRESENTS a "hidden cost" to corporations which never appears on a balance sheet, isn't even admitted by most leaders of industry but runs into countless millions of dollars a year.

"Why this tremendous turnover?" I asked Donald Wright, partner in the New York executive recruiting firm of Antell, Wright & Nagel, new president of the Assn. of Executive Recruiting Consultants and the man who has been gathering these pioneering statistics on executive turnover.

"I was stunned by that 41 per cent figure myself, still am," Wright answered and he's extremely concerned about the reasons given for quitting. The three most-mentioned reasons involving the corporation were "reorganization and realignment of responsibilities," meaning the company was merged or bought out; "poor management," meaning the company was losing money; "stagnant situation," meaning the company was going downhill and the man wanted out. The three most-mentioned personal reasons were: "promotion block," meaning the man's ambitions were frustrated; "poor direction," meaning he made a mistake in the first place; "at ceiling," meaning he couldn't go higher.

THE HIDDEN cost of executive turnover explains why the executive recruiting profession, virtually unknown before World War II, is now firmly entrenched at the highest level of business management. These firms are not employment agencies. They work only for the corporation seeking executive talent, are paid a fee for professional services only by the corporation, and their association, formed in 1959, has set a stiff code of ethics.

There is a serious indictment of American industry today implicit in this report, and both Wright and Hardy Jones, of the firm of Ward Howell Associates and past president of the Executive Recruiting Consultants Association, were refreshingly frank in our discussion of it the other day.

The strong trend toward mergers and acquisitions is making us more and more a society of "organization men" who conform or else. "So many men of high calibre are frustrated and making compromises they shouldn't make," said Wright. "What we are creating are vast acres of mediocrity in our industrial society."

"THE WAY a few families or a dozen or so men control the industrial and social life of many major cities in this country profoundly worries me," added Jones. "This fact is collapsing the middle-management segment of our society. If a man isn't accepted by these few, he's 'dead'. And once he gives up and resigns himself to staying on a plateau, he begins to go down." Both Wright and Jones named names of cities and families. They are deadly serious about this.

Is there any way out? Both men resent the trends because of what they are doing to the individual man, but neither sees a way out now. They advise any man of drive and initiative to develop a specialty as early as possible in life as a "protection" and, said Jones at one point:

"My two sons aren't going into industry. One is going into medicine, the other into newspaper work. They will not be caught in what we see day after day. . ."

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER
U.S. Senator From Arizona

The administration and its spokesmen keep telling us that there is nothing further that can be done about Cuba without running the risk of a nuclear war. What's more, whenever the Republicans in Congress criticize the policy of watchful waiting, which is really coexistence with the Soviet presence in the Western Hemisphere, they are challenged to offer an action program of their own.

Along the New Frontier, of course, the myth is maintained that the only answer anti-administration forces have for the Cuban situation is to go to war. This, of course, is ridculous.

Time and again, Republicans in Congress have proposed the kind of steps needed to come to grips with the problem of Communist poisoning of the Western world. And in every instance, they have been brushed aside by the administration because an element of risk is involved which might anger Mr. Khrushchev.

Just recently, however, a Republican senator came up with a new and provocative idea which deserves the close attention of the American people, regardless of what the New Frontier thinks of the proposal. The suggeston, offered by Sen. Gordon Allott of Colorado, proposed that the United States permit the Cuban exiles to establish a Free - Cuban government on the American - leased naval station at Guantanamo Bay.

SENATOR ALLOTT presented his idea in a full - dress speech on the Senate floor. But, like so many other Republican proposals regarding Cuba, it received only scant attention from the news media of the country. Regardless, I believe we are destined to hear a great deal more about this suggestion as time goes on and the New Frontier continues to procrastinate with a situation which daily grows more ominous and foreboding for the cause of freedom.

In offering the plan, Senator Allott told the Senate:

"The United States - leased naval station at Guantanamo Bay is perfectly located to become a Free - Cuban outpost upon the very island of Cuba. It is there. It is fully equipped. It can serve as a moral rallying point for all Cuban patriots on their own land. It is, in fact, exactly what the Bay of Pigs operation was meant to secure: a territorial beachhead on Cuban soil, a place for a seat of government for provisional officials upon the very sands of their homeland and a focus for eventual liberation operations.

"THESE ARE THE UNIQUE basis of an operation committed inflexibly to Cuban liberation—resources that would form the the manpower and the territorial beachhead itself. But something more is needed — indeed, it must be the first order of business —and that is a Free - Cuban government, as widely representative as possible of all Cuban democratic groups and parties.

"Up to now, we have treated a Free - Cuban government as a stumbling block to liberation; and we have greatly contributed, by our own indecision and our own failure of nerve, to the confusion of competing and sometimes conflicting forces, each claiming to speak with the voice of Free Cuba.

"No one, and certainly not this nation, can say for sure just who does represent a Free Cuba. Only the Cuban people themselves, in free elections, can ultimately give the answer — and even then, only after the full restoration of freedom and the gradual rebuilding of the basic institutions of Cuban society.

"But what we can do — and do now with a candor to match our bold purpose — is to call on the Cuban patriots to compose their own differences and unite behind the one supreme goal of liberation."

Senator Allott proposed that Congress, acting in the vacuum left by the administration's refusal to move, spell out the details of a policy aimed at Cuban liberation. In my next column, I shall cover the senator's suggestions for spelling out his proposal on the establishment of a Free - Cuban government on Guantanamo.

How do you stand, sir?

The Week In Focus

Not To Appear Too Soft

What was the real purpose behind President Kennedy's visit to West Berlin and Premier Khrushchev's visit to East Berlin? The people who should know says JFK's touch line in Germany which was explained in speeches last week during his European tour from which he returned the past week, was designed to answer the suggestion by President de Gaulle of France that Americans will make a deal with Khrushchev and abandon Europe. Khrushchev's tough line—on his visit to East Berlin two days after Kennedy left — is designed to answer China's similar charges against the USSR.

KENNEDY

Many West Germans, it is reported, are afraid both leaders may be carried away in their efforts not to appear soft as they explore the possibilities of the "initiative for peace." West Berliners were glad to hear declaration of U. S. steadfastness, but became distinctly nervous when the speeches got too fiery.

On leaving from East Berlin on Wednesday, Khrushchev issued a new call for Communist unity and warned the West "not to stick its nose into the East's affairs." And he went on to say that the "damocles sword of war" still hangs over the world and again called for a German peace treaty — on Russian terms — although he emphatically refrained from setting a deadline for setting such a treaty. He also once again reaffirmed his policy of so-called peaceful coexistence" with the West.

During the fanfare of Kennedy's visit, German businessmen as well as government officials were continuing their discussions with the Soviets to relax East-West restrictions, especially in Berlin and they don't want these negotiations jeopardized.

Kennedy's almost impossible task in Europe now is: to stay on a tightrope between bolstering NATO and encouraging the allies and yet not scaring off Khrushchev from easing East-West relations.

Things You Didn't Know

In case you haven't heard about it, there has been a sharp increase in the divorce rate among prominent middle-aged couples after many decades of marriage. The hike has finally attracted notes and comment in U. S. psychiatric circles. Bluntest analysis of the trend now comes from a University of Illinois psychiatrist, Dr. Harold M. Visotsky, who claims he found two main reasons for it. They are: (1) Unhappily married couples in the 1930's and 1940's still believe in "staying together for the children's sake." The children have now grown up. (2) Many wives wait as long as 30 years for their husbands to die, counting on comfortable widowhood to set them free. After 30 years of war, they got tired of waiting and turned to divorce. Dr. Visotsky attempted to identify a set of "danger signals" which might constitute an early warning system on impending domestic crack-ups. Only predictable sign: Outbreak of persistent imaginary illness in either partner . . .

AN EXTENSIVE SURVEY by Dr. E. J. Sternglass of the Westinghouse Research Laboratories — has come up with a powerful new argument against X-rays for expectant mothers. The study — the largest ever undertaken in the U. S. on children, cancer and radiation — found that the average cancer mortality rate was about 40 per cent higher among children who had been X-rayed in the womb than those who had not. The report was based on a survey of 734,243 children of whom 548 died of cancer or leukemia. The study also showed that the peak mortality rate for childhood cancer is about the fourth year of life . . .

A JAPANESE SONG called "Sukiyaki," fast moving into international hit status, was originally titled "Ue o Muite Aruki," which means "Let's Walk With Our Chins Up" and has nothing to do with Japanese food. Composer Kyu Sakamoto was told no other word but sukiyaki would impress Americans. In Holland, the number is titled "My Unforgettable Little Geisha." . . .

Auto Murder On Highways

The Insiders Newsletter came up with an interesting report the past week. It said although it is still being denied publicly, police, insurance and university researchers working independently in California, Michigan, Ohio and New York have all come up with evidence that many of the nation's 40,000 yearly auto accident deaths are, in fact, homicides and-or suicides. Tampering with brakes and steering mechanisms is a factor in anywhere from two to five per cent of all moving vehicle collisions resulting in fatalities, and another one to three per cent may actually be planned collisions, usually of a heavy car into the left front section of a lighter car. According to Newsletter, all of this could mean a hair-raising 3,200 premeditated and unpunished vehicular murders a year . . .

Where Were You That Night

An interesting bit of news from London. Since the John Profumo revelations, London private detective agencies report the heaviest rush of business in their history. Cabinet ministers and other prominent officials are hiring gumshoes to follow them night and day. The purpose is not to be caught in the act but exactly the contrary. The written reports from the detectives detailing their activity hour by hour documents that they are on the straight and narrow in case new scandals should erupt. The anxiety grows from the cascade of rumors involving big names in the wake of the Profumo scandal.

Meanwhile spicy new details have been revealed in the case which broke when it was disclosed that Profumo, at that time minister of war, had as his mistress Christine Keeler, London playgirl, at the same time she was mistress to a Soviet spy.

After hearing lurid testimony from playgirls and their male companions the past week, a judge ordered society osteopath Dr. Stephen Ward to stand trial on charges of living on immoral earnings. Ward is the go-between that introduced Profumo to Miss Keeler.

The scandal has rocked the government of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan — even as a new one developed. It came when it was disclosed that Harold Philby, former British diplomat in Washington, was indeed the "third man" whose tipoff allowed turncoat diplomats Guy Burgess and Donald McLean to skip behind the Iron Curtain. Both were Foreign Office officials. Philby, who has been revealed as a Communist, is also believed to have fled to an Iron Curtain nation . . .

ELSEWHERE IN EUROPE. President Kennedy told the population of Communist - ruled Bulgaria in an Independence Day message that the U. S. is dedicated to peace, freedom and friendship with all nations. In a move unusual for the Communist bloc, the President's message was conveyed to millions of Bulgarians by Mrs. Eugene Anderson, U. S. minister to Sofia, over the government network. And in Vienna, foreign Minister Bruno Kreisky reports that Communist Romania appears to be seeking closer economic ties with the West in an effort to strengthen its industrial potential outside the Moscow bloc. He said on returning from two days of talks with Red Party Chief Gheorgiu-Dej that Romanians were eager to exploit all possibilities for increased trade with Western countries, especially in the industrial field. In Hungary, another sign of friendliness. U. N. Secretary-General U Thant says Hungary's amnesty of 3,000 political prisoners in April is a "big step toward the restoration of normal relations with other countries. And finally at Bonn, Germany, it was revealed that NATO troops now must face West German courts when accused of violating West German laws . . .

News In A Nutshell

INSIDERS NEWSLETTER also reports the next probes into possible graft and other abuses in highway construction will probably be centered on Louisiana and New York states. Investigators for the special house subcommittee on roads, the report says, have been spending a lot of time in these two states recently, with rumors of real pay dirt especially in Louisiana . . .

ASSISTANT DEFENSE Secretary Paul Nitze—slated to replace Deputy Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatrick, has apparently run into Congressional resistance and may not get the job after all. In any case, Gilpatric's resignation has been delayed until after the TFX hearings are over, so that he won't seem to be quitting under fire . . .

AND IN WHITEHORSE, Canada, a magistrate told a 72-year-old woman charged with being a common prostitute — "I don't know whether to congratulate you or condemn you." . . .

Meetings In Moscow

Red China and Soviet Russia, two Communist giants in violent dispute with each other over what course to pursue — started an important meeting in Moscow during the weekend—a meeting that appeared doomed even before it opened.

For months there have been charges and counter-charges. The big dispute hinges around the best course to follow with the West. Premier Khrushchev of Russia seeks what he calls "peaceful coexistence." The Red Chinese say violence is the only way.

Even as the Red Chinese delegation was arriving in Moscow, the charges grew hotter. The Soviets accused Red China of carrying on a vast "illegal propaganda effort designed to mislead Soviet public opinion." China angrily disputed the charges and said it "cannot agree to the distortions, accusations, and attacks" of the Russians.

Earlier in the week, five Chinese were expelled from Russia for distributing forbidden documents by the Red Chinese which accused the Soviets of being soft among other things.

The main Chinese delegation was slow about arriving for the talks. Members didn't even leave until the day the conference was scheduled to open and then they took their time arriving.

It was still not clear what effect the dispute will have on the West. It could be a good thing, and then again it possibly could increase the cold war tensions and actually result in hot small scale wars throughout vital areas, particularly in the Far East where the Red Chinese have been active.

Reports From Washington

A BIG SPY ring was smashed by the FBI the past week. Two couples were arrested on charges of conspiring to steal data on U. S. missile bases and other military information for Moscow. Seized in a raid on a Flushing, Long Island apartment were Ivan Dmitrievich Egorov, 41, and his wife, Aleksandra Egorova, 39. Egorov is a personnel officer in the secretariat. The other two were arrested in a Washington apartment. While the FBI called them "John and Jane Doe" in its complaint, it said they were living under the names of Robert Keistutis Baltch and Joy Ann Garber. The names were taken, the FBI said, from innocent citizens — a Roman Catholic priest and a Connecticut housewife. The arrests came shortly after the U. S. had ordered the expulsion of a Soviet Embassy official for attempting to recruit a Russian - born U. S. intelligence official to spy for the Reds . . . Russian hotly demanded the U. S. release the Russian UN employe and his wife, but the request was rejected . . .

PRESIDENT KENNEDY, it is indicated, appears likely to quietly ignore a hint that he send a representative to the Vatican. An indication in a Vatican newspaper editorial that the Roman Catholic Church would like to have a U. S. representative at its headquarters had brought mixed reaction from senators. There has been no American among the international representatives at the Vatican for 13 years. In 1950, President Truman proposed sending Gen. Mark W. Clark, an Episcopalian. There was such an outcry that the matter was dropped. Said Senator John L. McClellan of Arkansas — "If we can't have prayer in the schools I don't see any sense in sending a representative to deal with the Pope." Before winding up his European tour early last week, Kennedy made a call on Pope Paul VI . . .

HIGH U. S. officials believe the U. S. is far ahead of Russia in numbers of nuclear weapons, despite strong Soviet efforts to catch up. An analysis prepared for the U. S. Disarmament Agency estimates this country has some 40,000 nuclear warheads and bombs . . .

A GROUP OF WEST Coast businessmen say they have been encouraged by a presidential adviser to attend trade talks with Red Chinese officials in Hong Kong. Ernest T. Nash, co-chairman of "The Committee for a Review of Our China Policy reported the group had been sent an encouraging letter by McGeorge Bundy, special assistant to the President on national security affairs. But the Department of State said the statement was not true . . .

The Racial Front

Racial flareups, charges and countercharges and threats continued unabated the past week. At Philadelphia Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, as had been expected, took to the highways and byways in an effort to sell the administration's Civil Rights package.

JOHNSON

In an address, Johnson called for less talk and more action to secure the civil rights of all Americans. He added— "The words of the Declaration of Independence — the words of the Constitution of the U. S. — do not need to be further interpreted. They need to be implemented for all Americans." It had been expected that Johnson, who has been used sparingly by the Kennedys thus far, would be called on to sell the civil rights proposals.

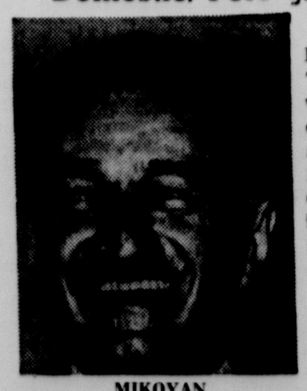

Two mass demonstrations occurred by Negroes, meanwhile, on Independence Day. At Baltimore, Md., police arrested wave after wave of white and Negro demonstrators protesting racial segregation at a suburban amusement park — including the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake — top official of the Presbyterian Church. Police reported at least 254 persons were arrested, including Blake, who is clerk of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in the USA and Bishop Daniel Corrigan, head of the Protestant Episcopal Church Center's home department in New York City.

IN CHICAGO, Mayor Richard J. Daley was booed off the speakers' stand in an uproarious climax to a "freedom march" by thousands of Negroes which he had led through Chicago's Loop. The crowd roared out of control almost the instant Daley arose to speak from the bandshell of Grant Park. Daley, boss of the most powerful big city political machine in the nation, stood for 11 full minutes as shouts of "Daley must go. . . We don't need Daley, ghettos, Jim Crow schools" swelled from the front row seats. Then with a shrug, the mayor wheeled and walked from the platform. As he left he met Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois who was also scheduled to speak. Douglas said, "Mayor, I didn't know it was this rough. Maybe I shouldn't go in there. Daley replied "No, go ahead." The mayor blamed the Republicans for the outburst.

Meanwhile, the NAACP has threatened to work actively for the defeat of congressmen in 1964 who fail to support strong civil rights legislation. At the same time the organization announced plans for a series of nationwide demonstrations to rally support for its own proposals for legislation to eliminate all barriers to integration. The demonstrations will culminate with a giant national civil rights legislative convention in Washington Aug. 6-8.

In Washington, Attorney Gen. Robert F. Kennedy — in a third day of testimony on the President civil rights package —denied any new principle or any effort "to shackle business" is involved in the public accommodations bill, a key part of the administration's program. The bill would prohibit racial discrimination by stores, restaurants, hotels, theaters and other private establishments engaged substantially in interstate commerce and catering to the general public.

Domestic, Foreign Issues Briefly

MIKOYAN

IN MOSCOW, First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan says "It now depends on the "West whether agreement is reached on a nuclear test ban in talks scheduled to begin there July 15. He said the Soviet Union considers that all conditions have been met for a partial test ban. The Soviets proposed a vague offer of a limited nuclear test ban and an East-West nonagression pact to be signed between NATO and the Warsaw Pact nations. It was not known what attitude the White House had in regard to the proposals, but in London, the British said the proposals would be "far better than nothing." . .

INDIA HAS charged that the Chinese Reds killed in cold blood many Indian prisoners taken in the Himalayan border conflict last fall, while in Damascus, the Iraqui government says its only casualties in crushing a Communist revolt were one soldier killed and two officers wounded. .

IN OXFORD, Miss., a federal court jury acquitted a Georgia segregationist Melvin Bruce — of charges he interferred with U. S. marshals during the "Ole Miss" integration riot. A former National Guard officer testified that he pointed an unloaded pistol at federal marshals to halt an alleged beating of Bruce. . .

IN DETROIT, the National Education Association has approved a civil rights motion, then took the first step toward integration of its affiliates. Currently in 11 southern states there are separate local affiliates for white and Negro NEA members. The motion called for formation of "consultative committees" to facilitate the removal of racial membership restrictions in local and state organizations. . .

SPEAKING IN DALLAS, a New Orleans Baptist leader — Dr. H. Leo Eddleman, president of the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary, questioned the motives of President Kennedy's Civil Rights program, accusing the president of making "a political football out of sacred human rights! He said, "I do not think it is right for a man of high political office to send his brother to get another man out of jail when that man had twice been in jail and politicians had never before indicated an interest in him."

South Viet Nam, Fighting For Its Life, Now Facing New Buddhist Threat

EDITOR'S NOTE — South Viet Nam, fighting a life and death struggle against Communist forces, faces an additional threat from a new, militant Buddhist movement. In an exclusive interview, the man generally regarded as the power behind the scenes in South Viet Nam gives his views about his country's troubled present and its uncertain future.

By ROY ESSOYAN

SAIGON (AP)—The man widely regarded as the power behind the scenes in Communist-threatened South Viet Nam believes his troubled country should be able to face the red danger on its own in three years with today's mammoth military aid from the United States reduced to a secondary role.

Ngo Dinh Nhu, brother and political advisor of President Ngo Dinh Diem declares:

"We owe it to the United States and to the morale of our people to try to resist on our own. We cannot lean on a philosophy of banking indefinitely on aid from the United States."

The rarely photographed and seldom interviewed brother of the president said he supports a study aimed at gradually reducing U.S. aid to South Viet Nam.

UNDER PLAN

Under this plan, U.S. military aid to South Viet Nam, estimated at 500 million dollars a year, would be gradually, but steadily, whittled down.

He admits that some aid probably will always be needed, however.

"Everything depends on what the enemy is going to do," he said "but it is absolutely essential to move in this direction."

Nhu believes neighboring Laos, also seriously threatened by the Communists, can be saved if the United States commits itself to the same military effort there that it has in South Viet Nam.

More than 12,000 U.S. servicemen are assisting and devising Vietnamese troops and frequently are under fire in the war against Red Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

In Laos, the United States is committed to supporting a neutralist government that includes Communist Pathet Lao representatives.

Turning to the subject of recent Buddhist riots in South Viet Nam, which have claimed at least 13 lives including that of an aged monk who cremated himself in public, Nhu said "the government's problems with the Buddhists have been resolved and we do not expect further eruptions."

Buddhist leaders disagree, and warn of new trouble.

Nhu claims a solution of the Buddhist problem was delayed because of the inability of various Buddhist factions to agree to negotiate with the government. He denies Buddhist allegations that the government has oppressed the Buddhists.

Nhu blames periodic friction and misunderstandings between the United States and South Viet Nam on what he calls "widespread misinformation" in the United States about his country.

He points to the American press as the cause for much of the misunderstanding and says it is "basically hostile" to his brother's government.

"We cannot speak out too much in our own defense," Nhu said. "Sometimes we feel gagged. If anybody is oppressed in this country it is the Vietnamese government."

He describes himself as "more of an intellectual than a dogmatist."

"All my desires are built on fashioning out of this under-developed country a political, economic and social system that will be capable of resisting Communist subversion on its own and will depend on foreign aid only as a secondary resource. I think that if Americans and Vietnamese can get along, resolve misunderstandings and work together we can achieve this system within three years."

U.S. POLICY

Nhu criticizes the U.S. policy toward Laos and says efforts to neutralize that country have been a failure.

Nhu is convinced the fate of Southeast Asia hinges on the snowballing events in Laos, especially in the south of that little country where pro-Communist troops are on the offensive and meeting with some success in the area around Attopeau.

"American public opinion," Nhu declared, "should be focused at this moment on Attopeau and not on Saigon. The Communists in Laos obviously are determined to seize southern Laos."

Nhu predicts Communist forces in his own country will resume a military offensive, probably in the fall after the rainy season. He is confident that the Communists are doomed to failure "because they do not have a just cause and we have established a good program of military and civil action."

Nhu places a lot of faith in the so-called "strategic hamlet" program which he directs.

The program aims for political, social and economic reforms for villagers who are, under its provisions, reorganized in hamlets protected by troops. The object is to protect villagers from Communist terror so that the government can proceed with its reform indoctrination.

Nhu says discussions about the strategic hamlet program between U.S. advisors and Vietnamese officials have been worthwhile and successful but he admits this can be difficult.

"To organize a system involving foreign advisors is a delicate and difficult problem," he says. "—the advisors are not infallible and neither is the Vietnamese government."

UNDER A big photo of President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam, his younger but influential brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, is seen at a rally in Saigon. His brother's political advisor, 52-year-old Nhu is regarded generally as the power behind the throne. In an interview, he foresaw the possibility that within three years U.S. military aid, now estimated at $500 million a year, could be cut. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

April 20 Incident In Britain Causing Greece Woes Today

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—"Let my husband go!" the wild-eyed woman cried.

The sanctuary of a stranger's home saved her from the shouting demonstrator and her friends who, the queen later claimed, were chasing her.

That panting April 20 encounter was staged by skillful Communist planners, in the view of the British and Greek governments. The crisis it sparked for Greece has not yet ended.

In the wake of the incident, the eight-year-old regime of ex-Premier Constantine Caramanlis has fallen, the Hellenic throne has grown more wobbly, British-Greek relations have worsened, and Communists and their friends have reaped a propaganda harvest.

Still in jeopardy is the outcome of a four-day state visit to Britain King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece begin Tuesday. A mixed bag of leftish Britons—from Communists to ban-the-bomb campaigners—have vowed protests and incidents.

The tangled story began soon after World War II when history sucked many strong-willed personalities into the troubled affairs of Greece.

One was Betty Ambatielos, English wife of a Greek Communist labor organizer. It was Betty, a middle-aged brunette, who squared up to Frederika in April and demanded freedom for her husband Tony, who is spending his 18th year in jail as a political prisoner.

Frederika herself is another leading player. The attractive German-born queen, 46, impulsive, with a reputation for extravagance, for years has been reproached for political meddling and for influencing her husband, King Paul. During the embittered days of the Cyprus dispute she expressed anti-British sentiments. Before the war she was a member of the Hitler youth movement. All this had made her easy prey for Red propagandists.

THIRD KEY

A third key character is the shrewd, pro-NATO, anti-Communist ex-premier, Caramanlis. He quit office June 11, because Paul and Frederika had refused to call off their London visit as he advised. Caramanlis, 56, figured new incidents in Britain would make trouble for Greece. And anyway he felt, by all acounts, an exit now would give him a better chance to win looming new national elections.

On the surface, a Greek royal visit to Britain seems to be eminently desirable. The Cyprus hatchet needs formal burial. It should be a happy family reunion. Paul and Frederika are closely related to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip. Philip is a grandson of George I, who founded the Greek dynasty. Queen Elizabeth's great-grandmother, Queen Alexandra, was a sister of George I. Frederika is Elizabeth's third cousin, a direct descendent of the English King George III, and a granddaughter of Kaiser Wilhelm II.

Yet this first visit of a Greek sovereign to Britain since 1905 might do as much harm to British-Greek relations as its cancellation or deferment.

The reason for this lies precisely in the danger of incidents. A variety of demonstrations have been planned. The organizers say they will go on despite one of the strictest British security clampdowns since the war.

Worried Foreign Office men have assured the Greeks Paul and Frederika will be protected against insults, molestations or attacks. But they have confessed they cannot ban orderly demonstrations, and these are almost sure to take place.

What lies behind the threat of demonstrations which have come from men like the famed philosopher Lord Bertrand Russell, Canon John Collins, the Daily Worker and others?

Perhaps the major factor is one of the most effective propaganda campaigns launched by Communists since the cold war began. Greece today still is a major target of Communist pressure. During the 1940s three Red takeover bids were foiled.

BOOKS

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Book Collection Growing Rapidly

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is growing very rapidly. In the first six months of this year there was a total gain of 5,418 books. More than this have been added, but many of the older books are wearing out and have to be discarded. The book collection now stands at 85,418 books and we hope to reach 90,000 by the first of January. All of the books for the entire system are selected, ordered, checked in, catalogued and processed at the Main Library. When they reach the branches they are ready for the patrons to check out. In the past week some very interesting new books have been added to the collection. Let's look first at the new fiction titles. "The Principal" is the title of a new book by Benjamin Siegel. It is the story of a young educator who moved to a new community and of the problems he met and how he solved them. Anyone who has ever taught school will enjoy this book. "Miss Bannister's Girls" by Louise Tanner is the story of the twenty year class reunion of the graduates of Miss Bannister's finishing school. The author is the wife of Patrick Dennis and she also has a flair for humorous writing. "The Summer Houses" by James Stevenson has its setting on the Maine Coast and is concerned with the efforts of a promoter to make a fashionable resort out of an old established neighborhood. It is well-written and interesting.

Readers of mystery stories will find two new books to interest them. One is "The Late Clara Beame" written by Taylor Caldwell. This is her first venture into the mystery field and it should be an interesting book. "Black Sheep, White Lamb" by Dorothy Salisbury Davis is a mystery story by an established writer and should find a ready audience.

The books of non-fiction offer a great variety of material. "The Fate of the Edsel" by John N. Brooks is an account of that ill-fated automobile venture. "This Is Mental Illness! How It Feels and What It Means" is the title of a very useful book written by Vernon W. Grant. "The Art of Viennese Cooking" by Marcia Colman Morton contains very delightful and unusual recipes and will be welcomed by those who enjoy trying foreign cookery. An interesting book for the collector is "Model Soldiers" by Henry Harris. Two generations ago every boy had a collection of tin soldiers. This is an account of their value to the collector.

"New Poems" is the title of a lovely book of poetry written by Robert Graves. A book which will be of great interest to the history student, the student of English literature or the writer is "Life in Georgian England" written by E. Neville Williams. Although hundreds of volumes about the Civil War have been published in the past four years, there is still a place for such an outstanding work as "Two Roads to Sumter" written by the eminent historians, William and Bruce Catton. This book does a great deal to explain the causes of the Civil War, the personalities of the leaders on both sides and the political issues involved. It is a worthy contribution to the literature of the period. Are you planning a trip to the Southwest portion of our country this summer? If so, be sure to go to the Main Library or the West Monroe Library and ask for "A Complete guide to the Southwest" by Andrew Hepburn. This is a most useful book and I wish I had had it when I made a trip to that region several years ago.

Biographies are always popular and there are several new ones this week. "Patchwork Child" by Brooke Astor is a very interesting autobiography of a man and a period. "Last Letters to A Friend" is a collection of the letters of Rose Macaulay and is a sequal to her previous volume. "Mrs. G.B.S.: A Portrait" is the title of the biography of Mrs. George Bernard Shaw, written by Janet Dunbar. The author has made a real contribution to the literature dealing with the life of Shaw and the book is a very good one.

There are still nearly two months of summer left and if you and your family are not using the Library resources, we invite you to do so.

Dutchman's Story Is A Classic One

Within the compass of a small book, de Hartog has woven quite a magical spell.

His story ranges from a fable-like beginning, through a comedy of errors acted out by a cluster of grotesque figures, and finally into a resolving end that touches heartfully upon the age-old theme of man's ultimate fruition in life.

That's a giant span for a writer to achieve, but it's all here in a few pages.

In Part I there is a story of the Dutch boy Joost Jansen, who likes to draw pictures and is fascinated by the sea. Becoming a cadet in a naval academy, he chances to brush against the lives of two painters of diametrically opposed schools — de Neef, the meticulous recorder of realistic water scenes, and Bangma, the wild, drunken, colormad expressionist. The upshot is that young Jansen takes a conservative course he must earn a living before he can paint.

TOP TEN

SUKIYAKI, Sakamoto
EASIER SAID THAN DONE, Essex
SO MUCH IN LOVE, Tymes
SURF CITY, Jan & Dean
HELLO STRANGER, Lewis
BLUE ON BLUE, Vinton
ONE FINE DAY, Chiffons
IT'S MY PARTY, Gore
MEMPHIS, Mack
TIE ME KANGAROO DOWN, SPORT, Harris

Stories Reveal People's Minds

A HIGH NEW HOUSE. By Thomas Williams. Dial Press. $4.95.

Eight stories have been collected here, and every one of them possesses the unusual quality of sending echoes through your mind.

In subject matter they vary considerably. The title piece is about a young college professor who suddenly discovers that he is too snugly and smugly situated for his own good. The final story, a magical evocation of nature, is about a middle-aged man who, having lost his wife, takes a long trip back into the serenity of a remote woods on a mountain.

In between, there are stories about college boys, a pair of old men in a store of many years ago, and a group of characters who undergo some unusual psychological adventures at a ski resort.

One story, "The Orphan's Wife," set partly in Iowa and partly in Paris, is a revealing installment in the war between the sexes. And several times in this collection the author explores the relationships between husbands and wives, parents and children — in those moments when the bruises and abrasions of mundane existence prove too much.

In short, Williams writes about what goes on inside people. His tales are not for small boys or fluttery females. Sometimes he leaves it to the reader to figure out the significance of what his characters are thinking and feeling. But make no mistake about it — the thoughts and feelings are there, clearly and vividly set forth. On the jacket, the author is quoted as saying these stories are about "the conflict in man between his violence and his gentleness."

This is Williams' fourth book. If you haven't yet discovered this young man's remarkable talent, it is high time to do so now. He is a master.

Repatriates From Algeria Come Crying

PARIS (AP)—The blast of terrorist bombs and pistol shots still echoed in the ears of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Izquierdo as they struggled down the gangplank last summer with baby, bedroll and pasteboard boxes.

The young truck driver from Algiers cursed under his breath, and his pink-cheeked wife cried—emotions that were multiplied 650,000 times as Europeans poured into France to escape Moslem rule in Algeria.

But in a year the Izquierdos have dried their tears and choked back their bitterness.

"We are starting to live again," said Mrs. Izquierdo. "We will never be able to forget, of course, but we can find happiness again."

Like the Izquierdos, most of the repatriates now look ahead with hope rather than back in anger.

Rarely had the modern world seen such a mass migration. With the 150,000 Europeans who got out before the final panic, the repatriates overwhelmed French employment offices and inundated already crowded housing facilities.

For most it was a sad winter, but within a year, all but a hard core of 48,000 "problem" cases were settled into new employment, and construction was stepped up to deliver new apartments earmarked for repatriates.

The Izquierdos may have been luckier than others. They had relatives who gave them a mattress in the corner of a small apartment where four other persons already lived.

For three months they went from office to office seeking a job, government help, and housing. Their passage was paid, they got $180 as settling-down expenses, the usual social security payment of $20 a month for the child, and $90 a month as repatriation subsistence with a limit of 12 months.

When Izquierdo found a job, they moved into a single room with sink and hot plate. A break came eight months later when they got a low-priced apartment in a government project.

The Izquierdos might not have been so lucky if it hadn't been for the crash program of the French Ministry of Repatriation.

Guided by experience with repatriates from Indochina, Morocco, Tunisia and Equatorial Africa, the service set up centers to handle an expected total of 400,000 repatriates over four years. Then the roof fell in on the Europeans' hopes of living under Moslem rule.

For 28 per cent of the Black Feet, as the repatriates called themselves, their arrival in jammed reception barracks was the first contact with France. More than 60 per cent were from families which had settled in Algeria before 1900 and felt more loyalty to the theme song, "We, the Africans," than to the "Marseillaise."

Some families have lapsed into hopelessness. Some still live in garages and eat only spaghetti, perhaps with a television set brought on credit as their only distraction. Quarreling often breaks out over inequalities and minor injusties. Everyone in the hard core is nearing the end of a 12-month subsistence eligibility, but a new set of pensions will take care of the aged and bona fide hardship cases.

Beyond the hard core, the skilled and educated had little trouble landing on their feet.

Negro Is Freed Of Manslaughter In Mississippi

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP)—A 22-year-old Negro whose car struck and fatally injured a son of State Democratic Chairman Bidwell Adam walked out of the city jail a free man Saturday.

A manslaughter charge filed against Elbert J. Sims in the death of Bidwell Adam Jr. was dismissed by Harrison County Prosecutor Gaston Hewes after an unusual special hearing conducted at the request of the Adam family.

Hewes said the family asked that the case not be prosecuted and said an examination of evidence and witnesses indicated there was no culpable negligence on the part of Sims.

Adam, a Gulfport attorney and former state lieutenant governor, said, "In my confirmed judgement and opinion based on the report of officers who investigated the case, I cannot as either a man or a lawyer see any degree of culpable negligence."

"I think it was an unfortunate tragedy," Adam added quietly.

Adam said Sims and members of his family, including his father, Grover Sims, and a brother, Woodrow, who attended the city jail hearing, had shown "concern and consideration" for the Adam family.

Dr. Charles Elkema, a 67-year-old educational survey specialist who witnessed the incident, told of seeing Adam run onto the highway with a raincoat over his head after stepping from a city bus during a heavy rain.

Dr. Elkema said Adam ran onto the highway from the rear of the bus.

He said Sims was traveling at a normal rate of speed for the section of U.S. Highway 90, which is posted for 50 miles per hour.

BUOY OH BUOY

AN OLD PHOTOGRAPH shows how the Salt Lake Council House looked in the mid-1860's, a few years after completion. The structure housed originally the Territorial Legislature and served as a pioneer city hall. It now is the home of the Utah Tourist and Publicity Council.

Amateur Explorer Rushed In

The author was only 20 when this bizarre adventure began. In 40 days he made a one-man walking trip down the coast of Quintana Roo, through more than 250 miles of jungle, infested with insects, reptiles, pirates, disease and natives of questionable intent.

And where is Quintana Roo? It is an isolated area of the Yucatan peninsula of Mexico, containing many ruins of the Mayan civilization. There had been a few sea-borne explorations of this coast, but Peissel explored it the hard way, on foot.

There are two aspects of his account, which is almost like a diary, of the risky — many would have called it foolhardy — trip.

One is that as an amateur archeologist he glimpsed some Mayan temples, pyramids and cities that had been only suspected to exist. The other is that he observed many primitive phenomena, and like an amateur anthropologist he records the jungle life of present day Mayans, ruined plantation owners, vicious chicle-hunters and simple-minded jungle rangers and smugglers.

The author swings frequently into that doughty phrase of the adventure-writers, "Little did I realize that..." with accompanying shivers.

Peissel made some contributions as an explorer. But the real substance of his wordy, detailed narrative is the series of pictures to be found here, of naive, primitive souls in the jungle to whom he entrusted his own fate, luckily.

find Jansen is a retired harbor pilot, a man who has sacrificed every emotion and ambition so that in his late years he may go to Paris in a houseboat and become a painter. The tragedy — which he soon realizes, there in his houseboat on the Seine — is that the juice has gone from his life; in working blindly toward his goal, he has lost his gift of seeing the world as an artist sees it.

But then, the broken and disillusioned old man is swept into some mad scenes involving the river hoboes and a dog. And finally, in a lonely scene of gothic tragedy, there is a closing episode that turns stark failure into a gently liberating flight of the spirit.

For any mind sensitive to the rhythms of human emotion and to the clean, incisive words of a fine writer, this is a little classic to be remembered.

Challenge Seen Of Republicans In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — A member of the Mississippi state Democratic Executive Committee Saturday warned "overnight Republicans" they may be challenged should they attempt to participate in the August 6 Democratic primary.

Tom M. Garrott of Tunica, public information chairman of the committee, said in a statement issued from Democrat headquarters here that "only Mississippi Democrats who expect to support the nominees of the Democratic Party in the general election have a legal right to participate."

Garrott said he felt it his "duty" to point out that Democratic primaries are held exclusively for Mississippi Democrats. When a voter participates in a Democratic primary, Garrott said, he is legally and morally bound to support the Democratic nominations in the November general election.

"It is just dishonest to call yourself a Republican and intend to support Republican nominees for governor or for the Legislature in the November general election," said Garrott, "and vote in the Democratic primaries..."

'PERIOD PIECE'

Former Capitol Of Utah Moved

One of the west's handsomest "period pieces," Utah's one-time Territorial Capitol and Salt Lake's former City Hall is now welcoming the state's visitors to Capitol Hill. The elegant two-story structure, built by Mormon pioneers 106 years ago, has been moved stone-by-stone from a downtown site, and rebuilt opposite the Utah State Capitol as headquarters for the Utah Tourist and Publicity Council.

While already open to the initial flood of 1963 season vacationists and sightseers, the structure, restored with private funds at a cost of $250,000 will be dedicated with formal ceremonies on July 24, during the annual Days of '47 celebration.

One sunny, high ceilinged room has been furnished with "period pieces," including sofas, chairs, sideboys and desks placed on "permanent loan" by history-minded individuals and organizations. An information center for tourists, in which they can obtain ample pamphlets, maps, folders and guides relating to all of Utah's twenty-nine counties occupies a major part of the ground floor. A post-office in which tourist mail will be stamped with a special "Council House cachet" is another feature.

D. James Cannon, director of the Utah State Tourist and Publicity Council, says the name "Council House will now be officially applied to the century-old building." He pointed out that the structure provides ample space for the work of his office staff, and also "provides a dignified, historic official center from which thousands of tourists can start their Utah vacations."

The building is already proving a magnet to photographers, both as a spot providing fine vistas of the State Capitol dome directly opposite, and also because of the charm of the restored building. A graceful dome sheathed with some 10 tons of Utah copper tops the two-story building. It's original and restored walls are of a dark-hued native sandstone, emphasized by crisp white porticoes and a wide cornice.

When completed, landscaping at the Council House will include a "pioneer garden" devoted to flowers and shrubs Utah's early settlers planted as reminders of their former homes "back east." Inside, paintings, prints and furnishings on both the upper and lower floors give the Council House the quality of a "living museum."

However, it is a functional building expected to serve thousands of visitors annually.

Salt Lake City businessman N. G. Morgan, whose philanthropic gifts greatly aided in financing the moving and restoration of the old structure, points out that "more history transpired within it's walls than in any other public building in the city." In pioneer times the Council House served as the meeting place for and Judicial branches of the Territorial government. Statehood was celebrated within the building, and three United States presidents spoke there.

Edward O. Anderson, architect who directed the restoration, notes that the building was designed by Truman O. Angell, the pioneer who designed the Salt Lake Temple.

"It represents the architectural influences a people carried with them across the plains and mountains, mixed with influences of the rugged frontier," he points out.

However, when Salt Lake's present City and County Building was erected, the old structure was allowed to fall into disrepair. It's original cupola was removed, fine woodwork was stripped away, and the old City Hall served as a police station and later as a storage area, until public spiritied citizens and organizations recognized the need for restoration.

Doomed Negro Makes Plea To Supreme Court

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — A Madison County Negro sentenced to die July 12 in the gas chamber for the rape of a teen-age white girl has asked the Supreme Court for a stay of execution, it was learned Saturday.

William Smith Jr., 26, has asked the court for a stay pending review of a habeas corpus petition. He contended in the petition that counsel had not been provided him prior to his trial in time to prepare an adequate defense.

The state Supreme Court meets Monday for a final session of the summer before it adjourns for a vacation until September. Earlier it ruled that there was no doubt the Negro held a knife across the throat of a 17-year-old boy while the two were parked on a "lover's lane" near Canton July 29, 1961.

Smith had appealed the case to the United States Supreme Court but was declined a new ruling. The case was returned to the state court for execution.

Vicar, 'Troops' Trying To Drive 'Invaders' Back

LAESO, Denmark (AP) — Led by a vicar on a bicycle, Laeso Islanders are trying to throw the invaders back into the Kattegat.

The invaders are workmen come to erect 90-foot pylons on this little island in the strait between Denmark and Sweden.

Laeso is a summer vacation spot for Swedes and Danes. The islanders fear the pylons, 50 of them, will mar the native beauty of trees and sand dunes. And discourage tourists.

Angry islanders have clashed with the workmen. A citizens committee headed by the vicar, a schoolmaster and a bootmaker is touring the island on bicycles to rouse the 3,000 inhabitants to action.

A leading Swedish scientist, Prof. Olaf Rydbeck, warned that the high-tension power line may disturb the tracking of satellites by the radio telescope of the Radio Research Institute at Raago, on Sweden's west coast.

The high-tension line will carry electricity from Sweden to Jutland and northern Germany. It will be on the sea bottom all the way across the Kattegat, except for the brief jump over Laeso.

Laeso is about 10 square miles in area. In winter the islanders seldom see a stranger. But in summer Swedes and Danes invade the island for a carefree vacation.

Laeso is nearly flat. Trees are no higher than 40 or 45 feet. Islanders say you cannot find a single spot, where 90-foot pylons would not completely dominate the view.

Earl, Lady Died In Time Of Intrigue

TWO TUDOR PORTRAITS. By Hester W. Chapman. Little, Brown. $4.75.

Miss Chapman is a deft and meticulous writer about the historical figures of 16th Century England, a period in which royalty and the nobility conducted intrigues that make an American mountain feud resemble a Sunday School picnic.

Her first portrait is that of Henry Howard, Earl of Surrey, who met his mortal fate by execution in the time of that fat shark, Henry VIII. She makes it clear that the Earl was a man doubly out of his time — for in establishing a breakthrough in English poetry he was far ahead of his age, yet as a courtier he was living arrogantly in a forgotten, medieval milieu. The latter circumstance was his downfall: in those rugged days, political ineptness was fatal, bloodily.

The second portrait is that of Lady Katherine Grey. She was a sister of another tragic woman who was the subject of an earlier Chapman work, "Lady Jane Grey."

It was Katherine's misfortune that she was a contemporary of Elizabeth I, and a pawn of various court manipulators who were placing their bets — real wagers of life and fortune — on various cousins who might succeed the virgin queen. And poor Katherine is shown here as a foolish young woman who, for love, left herself in a terribly vulnerable position, so that tragedy was inevitable.

Even sophisticated American readers get dizzy in the intricacies of English terminology — baffled when a Howard is called Surrey because of his earldom, or a Grey is called Suffolk for the same reason, or a Seymour is called Hertford. Blood lines were terribly confused in those days. But if you give Miss Chapman close attention, you'll manage.

This double study is not for casual seekers of narrative entertainment. For those who are absorbed in history, it proves to be a careful, chronological and calculated chronical of two generations in a wondrously lusty and fateful era.

85 Competing In Alabama 4-H Talent Contest

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI)—Eighty-five Alabama youngsters from 49 counties begin competing for state honors in the 4-H Club talent contest at the organization's conference here today.

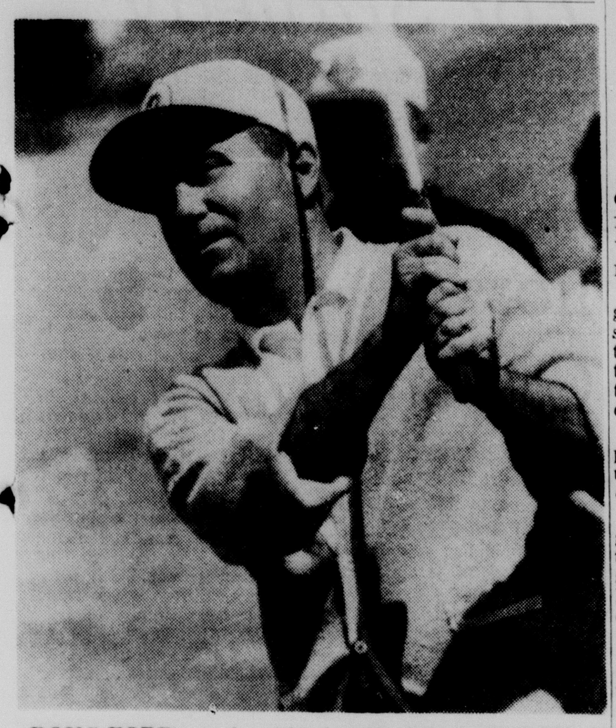

The talent contestants, all winners from their home counties, will try for the $100 that goes to the state winner.

The talent program is always one of the most popular and hotly contested events of the conference. District eliminations are set for Tuesday and Wednesday nights with the winners competing Thursday night for the state title.

The talent competition is only one of many activities planned for the yearly 4-H get-together. Also featured will be election of officers, district and state project awards, workshop demonstrations and other activities.

About 800 boys and girls from every county in the state are expected for the annual event.

Bums' Lead Cut; Giants Grab Second

Ford Captures Canadian Open

TORONTO (AP)—Doug Ford of Yonkers, N.Y., after calmly sinking a 15-foot pressure putt on the 17th hole, won the Canadian Open golf championship Saturday with a 72-hole score of 280, four under par.

Ford, who won the Candian Open in 1959, stood off a challenge by lanky Al Geiberger of Carlton Oaks, Calif., that included an eagle and a five-under-par 30 on the back nine.

Geiberger, 25 and shaped like a 1-iron, finished with 65, the day's best round, and 281, one stroke back of Ford.

The 40-year-old Ford, who has won both the PGA and the Masters title and is one of the fastest players in golf, had a one-under-par 70 for the final round.

Ford had rounds of 69, 67 and 74 before his final 70 over the par 71, 6,738-yard Scarboro Course.

Golf's Big Three, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus, passed up the tournament for the British Open next week. Julius Boros, recent U.S. Open winner, had another commitment.

Geiberger, former University of Southern California star who is 6-feet-3 and only 160 pounds, had three birdies and an eagle two on the par-four 12th hole for his back nine 30. He was in the clubhouse when Ford came to the 17th.

The Yonkers veteran, who led after 54 holes with 210, stroked his 15-footer home there for a birdie and then finished with his par on the 18th. His second shot at No. 18 was only four feet from the hole, and he nursed the ball to the edge and tapped it in for his four.

Bruce Crampton, of Australia, starting six strokes behind Ford, made a charge with a 31 on the first nine of the final round and finished with 66 for 282. That gave him a third place tie with big George Bayer of Pasadena, Calif., who had a final 67, and Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., who also finished with a 67.

Herman Keiser of Barberton, Ohio, two strokes back of Ford after 54 holes, slipped to a 72 for a 284 finish, a stroke behind Bob Rosburg of Portland, Ore., who closed with a 67 for 283.

Also at 284 was George Knudson of Toronto, who had the best score of the home forces and Dan Keefe of Wayland, Mass.

Hypnotics Aid In Tiger Win Over Athletics

DETROIT (AP) — Norm Cash lofted a three-run homer and Bill Faul, his confidence rebuilt by a hypnotic treatment, won his first game in about a month Saturday as the Detroit Tigers defeated Kansas City 8-4 for their fifth straight victory.

Faul, who started using hynotism during spring training as an aid to his pitching, fell behind 2-0 before Cash sent the Tigers ahead in the third. The Tigers added another run in the fourth, three more in the fifth and another run on Rocky Colavito's 12th homer in the eighth.

"I was put under hypnotism Friday for the first time in about a month," said Faul, who hadn't won since June 10 and lost his last three starts. "I felt I needed it to get my confidence back and help me relax."

Faul gave up 12 hits to the A's, but managed to work out of several tight situations before he was lifted in the eighth. Don Mossi preserved his fourth victory.

The Tigers drove out loser Ed Rakow in the fourth when Bubba Phillips doubled and scored on two wild pitches. Two walks and singles by Faul and Jake Wood and a double by Dick McAuliffe accounted for three runs in the fifth.

George Alusik also had three hits for the A's, including a homer off Mossi in the ninth.

Big Winners Due In Hot Springs For Tournament

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Some of golf's top players will be among the 75 pros and 15 amateurs who tee off Thursday in the ninth annual Hot Springs Open.

Drawing the fast field is the prize money of $25,000, raised from last year's $20,000. The first 35 finishers, instead of 30, will share in the take and first prize has been raised from $2,800 to $3,500.

The winner also will get a $1,000 bonus for each previous tournament he has won this year.

Heading the field are Bruce Crampton of Sidney, Australia; Bob Nichols of Midland, Tex.; Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga. and Jacky Cupit of Longview, Tex., all among the leading money winners on this year's PGA tour.

Al Johnston of Montreal, Canada, who beat Bill Collins of Miami, Fla., in a sudden death playoff for the 1962 Hot Springs title, will be on hand to defend. Collins also is an entry.

Dodger's Streak Snapped By Reds

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A blinding sun smiled on Gordon Coleman Saturday, turning his routine pop fly into a two-run double that brought Cincinnati a 3-1 victory over Los Angeles and broke the Dodgers' winning streak at five games.

The Reds pulled out of a three-game losing slump and at the same time cut the Dodgers' National lead to two games over the San Francisco Giants, who took over second place with a 5-3 decision over St. Louis.

Cincinnati's Jim Maloney pitched a seven-hitter and picked up his 13th victory in 16 decisions.

Don Drysdale, who won 25 games last year but has had trouble staying over .500 this season, went eight innings for the Dodgers and took the loss. Drysdale, now 10-10, allowed six hits and struck out seven.

The Reds got their big break in the fourth. Bob Skinner and Vada Pinson singled with one away and moved up when Frank Robinson grounded out. With two out, both runners were moving when Coleman hit a high pop up to the right of second. Jim Gilliam lost the ball in the sun and it landed five or six feet behind him. Skinner and Pinson scored easily.

The Dodgers, who had won 10 of their last 12 games, got their only run in the sixth. Maury Wills opened with a single but was thrown out trying to score on a double by Gilliam. A two-out single by Tom Davis scored Gilliam.

The Reds got their third run in the eighth. Pete Rose reached first on a fielder's choice, took second on a passed ball and came home on Skinner's second single.

Gaspar Ortega Wins Decision Over Billy Bello

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran Gaspar Ortega of Mexico won a surprise 10-round split decision over 20-year-old Billy Bello of New York in their nationally televised fight at Madison Square Garden Saturday night. Bello weighed 151, Ortega 150.

Sonny Banks, 197, Detroit, also won a surprise eight-round decision over 20-year-old Jimmy Jones, 205½, Chicago, in the semifinal. The bout was listed for 10 rounds, but cut short so the Bello-Ortega fight could start on time on television.

Ortega scored win No. 86 in 116 starts. He drew blood from Bello's nose in the second round and kept up a punishing barrage to Bello's face. Both were splattered with blood at the finish.

Bello started coming back strong late in the fight, and the strongly partisan crowd roared. But Ortega was too much for him and won the last round and the fight.

There were no knockdowns, but Ortega staggered Bello in the 10th.

Both referee Johnny Lo Bianco and judge Al Berl scored it 5-4-1 Ortega. Judge Tony Castellano scored it the same for Bello. The Associated Press had it 5-3-2 Ortega.

Ortega has lost 27 and has one draw. He has stopped 40. His sole knockout came in Los Angeles June 3, 1961, in a welterweight title fight with Emile Griffith.

Bello has 17 wins, six losses and a draw. He has never been stopped, and has eight knockouts to his credit.

In the semifinal Banks took an early lead and never lost it in handing Jones his first defeat. The Chicago heavy had a string of 10 straight knockouts going into his Garden debut.

Frankie Narvaez, 135¾, New York, won an unanimous decision over the veteran Tommy Tibbs, 133¾, of Boston, in the other scheduled 10-rounder.

WINS ON SECOND HOLE

Clarkson Defeats Downie In Sudden Death At Kraft

BASTROP (Special) — Tommy Clarkson one putted for a par four on the second extra hole in his championship flight with Mike Downie and won the match one-up in the second round of the Kraft Paper golf tournament here Saturday at the Morehouse Country Club. Downie bogied the hole.

Clarkson who shot a 34-36 for his 2-under-par 70 was tied with Downie who shot a 33-37, at the end of regulation play, and the playoff proceeded.

Both completed the 455 yard first hole with one-under-par fours.

On the 309 yard, par - four hole, Downie pushed his tee shot too far to the right in the rough, came back with a fine shot that hit the green, but rolled over. Downie then chipped up to the green and two putted for the bogie five.

Clarkson had little trouble, getting off a fine tee shot that split the middle of the fairway, landing short of the green. He reached it in two more and one putted for the victory.

In other championship action, Don Sims continued his winning ways, defeating Howard Barker 6-5, and Paul Jones stayed in competition with a 3-2 win over Derrall Foreman. Charles Kennon had little trouble with Bill Duckworth, beating him 7-6.

Ed Michaud, the fine golfer from Louisiana Tech, was eliminated from the tournament Saturday, losing to Brice Pritle 2-1 in their championship flight consolation match. Both lost in the first round action — Michaud bowing 3-2 to pre - tourney favorite Don Sims and Pritle falling to Howard Barker 4-3.

George Luffey, another loser in first round action stayed alive in the consolation play by defeating Raymond Wynn one up. Billy Rawls stepped Henry Cole one up, and Bob Harquist beat George Warren one up in 19 holes in other consolation matches.

George Loftin and George Jones staged a real battle in a Third Flight match before Jones bowed out on the fifth extra hole by a stroke. Hilton Pearce came up with a two stroke win over James Oberworthman in another Third Flight match.

Mike Strausser, who battled Dr. T. A. Brulte for seven extra holes before stopping him Friday in a Seventh Flight match, lost out to John Yelldell without much of a fight 4-3 Saturday, in their semi-finals tilt. Brulte was also eliminated from the tourney with a loss to Lucien Tisdale 2-1 in a consolation match.

Dr. Bernard Soto, first round leader in the Eleventh Flight medal play, lengthened his lead over the field posting a 91 after 18 holes. Hugh McGeever, only one stroke behind after the first nine holes Friday, dropped four strokes behind the leader with a 95.

Cards Drop 7th Straight Tilt, 5-3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie McCovey crashed his fourth home run in four games, breaking a seventh-inning tie Saturday and leading San Francisco past St. Louis 5-3.

The blast off Ray Sadecki with Billy Pierce abroad plunged the Cardinals to their seventh straight defeat and pulled the Giants into second place behind Los Angeles in the see-saw National League race.

Pierce scattered four hits for his third victory against five losses. Sadecki is 4-5.

Until McCovey smashed his 22nd homer of the year, the game had been almost a personal battle between Willie Mays, who scored two Giant runs and drove in one, and Charlie James, who homered twice for St. Louis.

Mays walked to open the second inning moved to second on Felipe Alou's single and to third on a long fly. Mays scored on Tom Haller's bouncer to first even though Bill White first bluffed him back toward third.

Mays' two-out single to left drove home Harvey Kuenn in the third. St. Louis scored in the fourth after Pierce had retired the first nine batters, then tied the game on James' fifth inning home run.

Mays opened the sixth with a walk and when Sadecki's pickoff throw sailed past White, he streaked to third. Willie then scored an unearned run on Alou's fly to the left-field fence.

But James tied the score at 3-3 in the seventh with a home run nearly identical to his first.

Pirates Score Seven In 8th; Mets Drop 9th

NEW YORK (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates paraded seven runs across in the eighth inning and pushed the New York Mets to the ninth straight loss Saturday night, 11-3.

Bill Virdon's three-run homer was the deciding blow in Pittsburgh's big splurge against loser Al Jackson and rookie Larry Bearnarth. Nine Pirates batted before the first out was made, and 13 went to the plate over-all.

Roberto Clemente triggered another Pirate uprising in the ninth with a homer and they counted two later runs. Pittsburgh closed out with a total of 17 hits, 11 of them in the last two innings.

Al Moran opened the way for Pittsburgh in the eighth when he booted leadoff man Johnny Logan's grounder. Bill Mazeroski batted for winning pitcher Don Schwall and blooped a double, then Dick Schofield singled in the tying run before Virdon unloaded the homer.

Donn Clendenon added a two-run double and the last run of the burst scored on the Mets' second error of the inning.

Harvey Haddix and Elroy Face worked the last two innings for Pittsburgh in relief of Schwall, now 4-4. Jackson lost his ninth against six victories.

Clemente had two singles in addition to his homer, and Bob Bailey hit three singles for Pittsburgh.

Orioles Triumph Over Minnesota In Pitching Dual

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles scored twice in the third inning on Jackie Brandt's triple and hung on to beat the Minnesota Twins 2-1 in a duel between southpaw pitchers Saturday.

Dave McNally, 20-year-old Baltimore fast-baller, collected his third victory against as many defeats, although he required help from Stu Miller in the eighth inning.

McNally had yielded seven hits and only one run—Bob Allison's 21st home run in the sixth inning—when he was taken out with Harmon Killebrew on first, two out, and Allison at bat. Miller fanned Allison.

Brandt's two-run triple off Dick Stigman came with men on first and second and two out.

The Twins threatened in the ninth with men on first and second and two out. But Miller got out of the hole when he got Vic Wertz, pinch hitting for Stigman, to fly to right.

COMIN' UP AFIELD

Study Begins For Seasons

With Sam Hanna

Important Days Ahead

Hunting seasons in Louisiana will be determined within the next several weeks, meaning the days ahead are important for sportsmen.

The Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission conducted its annual public hearings for sportsmen last weekend at Alexandria, hearing hunters and fishermen out.

Recommendations were made, including the Louisiana Wildlife Federation's request for a 45 - day duck season with a bag limit of four, plus a bonus of four.

Included in the federation's recommendation was a request for the season to be held as late as possible.

Thus, the commission will set the seasons — all of the seasons with the exception of the waterfowl season — probably before the first of August. It is likely that the first dove season will be around the first of September.

But the subject of waterfowl involves much more than the other seasons, simply because more people are involved in the establishment of the duck season.

Congressman T. A. Thompson of Louisiana will conduct a hearing in Washington on July 18. Sportsmen in this part of the country are hopeful that Thompson's hearing can correct the strict regulations handed down for the past two years by the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service.

Prior to the Washington hearing, government officials, we understand, will make a survey of the waterfowl nesting grounds in Canada.

In fact, a Louisiana delegation, including Ass't. Director Richard Yancey and Charley Bosch of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation, is scheduled to depart today for a swing through Canada.

Following Thompson's hearing, the Mississippi Flyway Council will meet within the next several weeks at St. Louis. There wildlife officials from all the states in the council will make their recommendations for the coming duck season.

Representatives of the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service will hear them out, then return to Washington with reports for the ultimate decision on the waterfowl framework. You'll recall that the framework is handed down to each state and from there each state sets its own season.

Sportsmen should be aware of these steps that must be taken before the hunting seasons are set, because it's really not a simple matter.

And each sportsman can make his own feelings known by advising the Louisiana commission or by writing Congressman Thompson, along with their own congressmen and senators.

In short, there's a lot to do between now and the opening of the first season. And September is just around the corner.

Boeuf Swamp Fading

One of the most amazing changes in the countryside is still taking place in the Boeuf River swamp of Morehouse Parish close to the West Carroll Parish line.

Humble Oil Co. is clearing more land in the swamp. Before the project is finished, many thousands of acres will be cleared for agriculture purposes.

In fact, one section of the swamp that was cleared several months ago is green today with beans.

This swamp was once one of the area's better wildlife sections. In fact, the state at one time almost had it bottled up for a game management area, but missed out.

Of course, the owner of any property has the right to do as he pleases with his own land. We're not arguing that point.

We're merely pointing out that another big wooded area is going by the wayside — not by the ax, which is a slow process, but by the bulldozer, which, in this case, turned a swamp into farmland within a matter of days.

Claim Anthrax Killer

Arkansas' Beulah Island, 3600 acres along the Mississippi River in Desha County, recently lost most of its deer population in a three - week period.

According to Dr. Frank A. Hayes, a biologist from the University of Georgia School of Veterinary Medicine and head of a Southeastern States Cooperative Wildlife Disease Study, an epidemic of anthrax killed the deer.

Anthrax is a highly infectuous disease normally associated with livestock.

The Arkansas Game & Fish Commission reported that its personnel, joined by Dr. Hayes and personnel of the U. S. Department of Health, spent several days examining deer carcasses and making other related studies on the island.

Biologists found 33 dead deer at one time, in addition to 30 head of dead cattle.

Before the wave ended, Dr. Hayes estimated that as many as 400 deer died. He believes the island will lose 75 to 90 per cent of its deer.

"The siutation on Beulah Island is a direct consequence of over population," Dr. Hayes said. "If there isn't more serious thought given to these explosions of deer populations and something done to hold their numbers down, this is only the beginning. We need to facilitate a better harvest of deer.

Cattle can be protected from anthrax by immunization. But with deer, it's a different story.

On Beulah Island, Dr. Hayes said it was obvious that over browse conditions existed. He pointed out that anthrax germs may lay dormant in the ground forever. They can always be transmitted, he said, to the feet of animals or picked up while eating off the ground.

Then when the temperature and other enviromental factors are right, according to Dr. Hayes, the disease may take its toll.

"It takes a high population for a disease of this kind to take hold and cause an epidemic," Dr. Hayes explained. "We suspect that a contributing factor to the spread of the disease on Beulah Island was about 20 acres of wheat which was planted as food for the deer."

He recommended that hunting be permitted next season on the island while Director Nelson Cox said the Arkansas biologists will survey the entire state for other over-populated areas.

While this case occurred in Arkansas, it is food for thought for Louisiana. The Delta had a less-serious die - off last winter after the deer season.

As time passes, more hunters are becoming convinced that the any - deer season is the only way for the proper management of deer.

Little Man's Corner

It was hot, too hot, but the little men made news afield regardless.

Black Bayou has been good for bass early in the morning. H. C. Mills, a local angler, landed one there this week that weighed 6-lb., 13 - ounces.

And Volman Lake at Riverton is good for fishing now. Specs, barfish and bass are biting. Mrs. Oscar Stanley of Monroe landed a string of 25 specs.

Reno Hall of Vidalia caught the limit of bass in Old Rive" at Vidalia. The bass averaged from four to six pounds. Jerry Brewer of Ferriday also got the limit there.

Lee Warner of Ferriday caught the limit of white perch at Deer Park. Getting the limits of bass in Lake Concordia were Earl Wentworth, Ed Carol and Mr. and Mrs. Herb Bailey.

Hollybook in the Lake Providence area continues to be good. Mrs. Sam Foutz and Mrs. Morris Coleman each caught 15 large white perch. J. W. McPherson got the limit too.

Claude Rinicker and Mr. and Mrs. Lehman Murray landed nice strings.

Houston Extends Richard's Pact For Six Years

HOUSTON (AP)—The National League Houston Colt .45s announced Saturday they have extended Paul Richards' contract as general manager for six years.

Roy Hofheinz, Colts president, said "Richards has done an outstanding job of laying the foundation for a successful club in less than two years."

"We wanted to make certain that nothing interfered with his task of building the .45s into a contender by giving him a long-term contract," he added. "This is our way of showing the baseball world that we think Paul Richards is the best man in the country for constructing a winning major league team from scratch."

Richards came to Houston from the field manager's job at Baltimore in September, 1961.

CHUCK MCKINLEY, the new men's Wimbledon tennis champ, and his wife, Wylita, lead the dancers on the floor Saturday night at the Wimbledon Celebration Ball. Traditionally the Ball leaders are the women's and men's singles champions but rain washed out the womens finals Saturday. More than 1,000 guest attended the celebration at London's Grosvenor House. MARIS, BERRA HOMER

Yankees Coast Over Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP)—The New York Yankees scored seven runs in the second inning—the first three on a Yogi Berra homer—then coasted to a 11-6 victory today over the Cleveland Indians. Yankee rookie Al Downing struck out 14.

Downing, a left-hander brought up from Richmond a month ago, had 11 strikeouts after five innings—one more than his total of last Tuesday when he hurled a 3-0 one-hitter at the Chicago White Sox.

The 22-year-old lefty didn't allow a hit until the fourth inning when Max Alvis hit his 10th home run. In the next inning Willie Tasby connected for a solo homer.

The crowd of 57,621 (only 15,416 paid), largest in the majors this season, gave Downing an ovation when he left the game in the eighth inning during a two-run Cleveland rally which Hal Reniff quelled.

Berra, in his 18th season with the Yanks, clouted his fourth home run of 1963 into the right field stands after Roger Maris and Joe Pepitone singled to start New York's big second inning.

Starter Barry Latman retired two of the next three batters as Hector Lopez grounded out, Jack Reed walked and Downing sacrificed. When Tony Kubek singled Reed home, southpaw Bob Allen replaced Latman.

Singles by Bobby Richardson—who had four—and Clete Boyer brought Kubek around, and Maris walked to fill the bases. Pepitone's single off Mike de la Hoz' glove drove in the sixth and seventh runs of the rally.

Maris smashed his 19th home run into the right field upper deck in the sixth inning.

Downing, who has a 4-1 record, gave up six hits. He struck out the side in the first inning and did it again in the third.

Senators Top Angles, 3-2 For 5 In Row

WASHINGTON (AP)—Don Leppert's double in the bottom of the 10th inning brought the Washington Senators their fifth straight victory Saturday night, 3-2, over the Los Angeles Angels.

Leppert belted his decisive hit off Art Fowler, who had opened the inning by walking Jim King. After Chuck Hinton had forced King at second, Leppert came through.

Leon Wagner powered the Angels into a 2-2 tie in the sixth with his 20th homer of the season against Steve Ridzik, who returned to the big leagues earlier in the week when the Senators bought him from Toronto of the International League.

He took over at the start of the second when Dave Stenhouse came out with a sore elbow, and allowed only three hits before being lifted for a pinch hitter in the ninth. Ron Kline was the winning pitcher.

Dick Phillips put Washington ahead with his first major league homer in the opening inning, Los Angeles drew even in the fifth, and the Senators went back in front 2-1 in the bottom of the inning on singles by Don Blasingame, Phillips and Jim King.

Wimbledon Play Stalled By Rain

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The women's singles final of the Wimbledon tennis tournament, plus three doubles finals, were postponed Saturday because of a steady, all-day rain.

They will be played Monday, marking the first time in 40 years the tournament carried over to a third week.

BUT GIANTS WIN ANYWAY

Fans Interested In Heroics; Boo Alvin Dark For Strategy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When Chuck Hiller singled home San Francisco's winning run in an 11-inning 6-5 victory over St. Louis Friday night he helped remove the wrath of Candlestick Park fans from the shoulders of Giants Manager Alvin Dark.

For Dark, in the midst of a ninth-inning rally that tied the game but failed to win it, lifted Willie McCovey, the People's Choice of San Francisco, who had batted in three runs and crashed one of the longest homrs of his career.

The switch was strictly in pattern with Dark's noted penchant for using right - handed hitters against left - handed pitchers and vice-versa, but the 25,665 fans were more interested in heroics than strategy.

Heroics they did not get from pinch-hitter Orlando Cepeda, who struck out amidst a torrent of boos.

The game itself was as see-saw as the National League pennant race, in which the Giants climbed to third and the Cardinals fell from second to fourth.

McCovey singled home a first-inning run to put the Giants ahead 1-0 and he regained the edge at 4-3 in the fifth with an enormous two-run homer that landed 450 feet from home plate in the upper rows of the right-center field bleachers.

Pressed to explain why he lifted McCovey, whose 21st home run marked a career high, the Giants' manager would only comment, "it's just what I wanted to do."

Last year McCovey was allowed to swing only 10 times against left-handed pitching but this year Dark relented and McCovey has played regularly.

"If it weren't for McCovey and Kuenn, we'd be in trouble," said Dark earlier this week as he eyed the slumping averages of most of his other hitters.

But Dark got off the question spot when Jose Pagan opened the 11th with a single, Harvey Kuenn sacrificed and Hiller delivered his safety off loser Ed Baute, now 3-3.

Boston Uses 4 Unearned Runs For Win

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox cashed in four unearned runs against Chicago rookie Joe Shipley in the fourth inning Saturday night for a 6-2 victory over the White Sox and edged into second place in the American League.

The Red Sox have a .550 percentage while Minnesota is .549 and the White Sox .548. All are 5½ games back of the New York Yankees, who downed Cleveland 11-6.

Red Sox rookie Dave Morehead pitched a brilliant three-hitter, striking out 11 and retiring the last 14 Chicago batters in order. All three hits off the 19-year-old right-hander were singles, one a bunt.

Carl Yastrzemski drove in three Boston runs with a double and two singles as he continued his challenge in the batting race. His two-run single highlighted the four-run fourth at the expense of Shipley — just arrived from the Indianapolis farm club.

The outburst was touched off when Ed Bressoud struck out but reached first safely on J. C. Martin's passed ball. Then came a walk and four straight singles.

Gary Peters finished up.

THIRD STRAIGHT TIME

Palmer Tabbed Favorite For British Open Meet

ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Arnold Palmer, top money winner on the United States golf circuit, has been made a 2-1 favorite to win the British Open for the third straight time over the Royal Lytham and St. Annes links Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The only player in modern times who has collared the historic title three straight is Australian Peter Thomson. He did it in 1954-55-56.

Famous old-time Scottish golfers like Tom Morris, Jamie Anderson and Bob Ferguson also captured three straight. But they did it between 1867 and 1882 when the championship was an all-British affair and carried none of the competitive pressures of today.

He won the Cleveland Open in a playoff and boosted his winnings to a record-breaking $85,545 this year.

Now the bookies, as shrewd as they come when betting money is involved, have made Palmer the favorite followed by American Jack Nicklaus and South African Gary Player at 7-1, Thomson at 8-1 and Kel Nagle of Australia at 10-1.

Six Americans were exempt from qualifying—Palmer, Nicklaus, reigning Masters champion, Billy Casper, Cary Middlecoff, Phil Rodgers and Doug Sanders. Two of them have announced they will not compete.

Nicklaus is third in the U.S. money list this year with $62,140 and Player, winner of the British Open in 1959, is fifth with $46,665.

The British Open, a prestige tournament, also carries a vast cash incentive to the winner—in addition to the $4,200 first prize for the winner.

The World Series of Golf at Akron, Ohio, Sept. 7-8 will match champions of the British Open, the U.S. PGA, the Masters (Nicklaus) and the U.S. Open (Julius Boros).

The winner of that exercise will get $50,000, the second $15,000 and the next two $5,000 each.

Normally the British Open starts with the whole field playing qualifying rounds Monday and Tuesday. Even Palmer had to take his luck in those qualifying stages last year.

This time 44 players are exempt including top British players, South Africans Denis Hutchinson, Player, Bobby Locke and Brian Wilkes, Nagle and Thomson, Spain's Miguel Sebastian and New Zealander Bob Charles.

The other entries—a total of 261 from all parts of the world—qualified last Thursday and Friday over the Fairhaven and St. Annes Old Links.

A total of 120 was aimed at the championship over the 6836-yard Royal Lytham and St. Annes—the layout where Bobby Jones won his first British Open Championship in 1926.

The bookies, legal here, made Rodgers a 12-1 shot in the betting with Sanders at 20-1.

The hard winter has made the Lytham greens tricky and club members have not played them for several weeks. It could be that the greens will be the place where the championship will be decided — even more so than usual.

NO BREATHER

Summer Hard On The Coach

By JERRY SCARBROUGH

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Summertime is a long jump from basketball season, but it's still a tough time for coaches, says Abe Lemons of Oklahoma City University.

Lemons' OCU team last season earned a berth in the NCAA regional tournament against such veteran cage powers as Cincinnati, Colorado and Texas.

He regards that as a pretty fair achievement for a school with approximately 1,300 students and no conference ties.

But when he starts discussing his summer chores, he heats up like the weather.

"A coach has to catch up on his correspondence, make travel plans work on future schedules and contact other coaches," says the 40-year old Lemons." And then there's the big job—recruiting."

Lemons had the tallest starting line-up among the nation's colleges last season, fielding a team that averaged a shade over 6-7. It also was one of the best.

To be among the best, Lemons says, "you have to get the boys."

And in the good old summertime is when you lasso them.

"You've got to be a salesman," says the OCU coach. "I'm getting ready to go on a trip to Kentucky and Indiana to see a couple of prospects. That's about a 900 mile trip and then I have to act like I just happened to drop in."

He thinks the main thing about selling the prospects is "being absolutely truthful. You can't oversell your school or the kid isn't interested; you can't oversell because you'll lose the kid when he finds out."

It's an obvious point of pride with Lemons that he's never lost a transfer to another NCAA school. "One boy wrote and said he wanted to come here, and he was a good boy, but I told him I wouldn't take him unless he came here to look things over. He came up, looked around and said he hadn't realized the school was so small.

"He wound up going to a big school. But that's the reason I wanted him to come look around. You don't lose contented kids and I want ours to be happy with what we have."

Lemons describes recruiting as a cradle to court job. "I've had my eye on one boy ever since he was in the eighth grade."

It's difficult to compete with the larger schools for a boy, so "we try to find a boy with good size that might develop into a star even though he wasn't one in high school. We try to get the stars, too, but sometimes we can't."

Braves Sweep Twinbill Over Houston Colts

HOUSTON (AP) — Lee Maye drove across both runs with a pair of clutch hits, sparking the Milwaukee Braves to a 2-0 victory and a sweep of their Saturday twi-night doubleheader over the Houston Colts.

The Braves powered to a 7-1 romp in the opener on homers by Gene Oliver, Joe Torre and Del Crandall.

Maye snapped a scoreless duel between right-handers Bob Shaw of Milwaukee and Hal (Skinny) Brown of the Colts in the sixth inning of the second game with a two-out double that brought in Dennis Manke. Then in the eighth, after a walk to Crandall and sacrifice, Maye singled with two away for an insurance run.

Shaw, recording his second shutout and second complete game of the season, gave up six hits. He pitched his way out of several jams in winning his fourth in 10 decisions.

Milwaukee had an easier time of it in the opener.

Filly Skips Past Spicy Living In Monmouth Oaks

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP)—William Haggin Perry's Lamb Chop took another big step towards the 3-year-old filly championship Saturday when she registered a head victory over Eleanora Sears' Spicy Living in the $56,100 Monmouth Oaks at Monmouth Park.

The finish of the 1⅛-mile Oaks was a replica of the $100,000 Coaching Club American Oaks at Aqueduct two weeks ago when Lamb Chop won by 3½ lengths over Spicy Living, and Mrs. Russell L. Reineman's Smart Deb was third. Smart Deb was third again, by a length and a quarter this time.

Lamb Chop, who had finished third to Spicy Living in both the Acorn and Mother Goose Stakes in New York, was ridden by Howard Grant, and carried 118 pounds to 121 for the runner-up. Jimmy Combest rode Spicy Living, with Bobby Ussery aboard Smart Deb, the 1962 champion 2-year-old filly.

Wheatley Stable's Bold Consort was fourth in the field of eight.

Lamb Chop, chestnut daughter of Bold Ruler - Sheepsfoot, was timed in 1:51 3-5 and paid $6.60, $3.40 and $2.40. Spicy Living paid $3.60 and $2.60, and Smart Deb 3.20.

Cicada Outruns Nubile To Take Sheepshead Bay

NEW YORK (AP) — Meadow Stable's Cicada, world's leading money winning race mare, carried top weight of 128 pounds and held on gamely Saturday to capture the $28,050 Sheepshead Bay Handicap by a neck over Nubile before a crowd of 44,282 at Aqueduct.

It was the first start on grass and heaviest weight ever carried by the 4-year-old, who earned $18,232 and increased her winnings to $758,324. Barnesville Miss and St. Bernard were late scratches, so the purse was reduced and Cicada still remains No. 17 in the world cash rankings behind Bally Ache who earned $758,522.

Nubile, owned by E. C. Havemann and ridden by Con Errico, finished one length ahead of Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Doll Ina, skippered by John L. Rotz. C. V. Whitney's Honey Dear was fourth in the field of seven fillies and mares, a length and a half behind Doll Ina. Nubile carried only 109 pounds, with 117 for Doll Ina.

Cicada paid $4.90, $3.60 and $2.60. Nubile returned $5.50 and $3.90, Doll Ina 3.70.

Markets, Business and Oil

Page Eight-B — Sunday, July 7, 1963

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks advanced this week to 273.1 from 270.9 a week ago. Led by livestock the commodity index advanced for the second straight week, rising to 159.9 from 159.4 a week ago. (AP Wirephoto)

Market Halts Decline By New Supports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week arrested a decline, finding support where many analysts had looked for buying to develop.

As the week ended, the market had shown a shift in mood, rising under the leadership of oils as well as a variety of stocks which attracted speculative buying for one reason or another.

It looked to some observers as if a number of the funds and other big institutional investors were making some mid-year purchases with money received from dividends and other sources.

The trading week — cut to four days by the July 4 holiday — started on a gloomy note with a sharp decline on Monday, bringing the Dow Jones industrial average very close to the 700 level, which has been regarded as a significant area where buyers could be tempted to commit funds to stocks at relatively cheap levels.

The decline continued early Tuesday when the list made a more searching "test" of the support level, then rebounded vigorously, netting the biggest gain in three months.

It was clear sailing the rest of the week. The swap picture stayed higher and, for the time being, those who hope for higher prices breathed more easily.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week rose 9.57 to 716.45.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 2.2 to 273.1, making the largest weekly gain since the week ended April 20 when the average rose 3.1.

Volume in the four-day trading week totaled 13,859,231 shares compared with 19,901,170 for the previous five-day trading week.

The Wall Street atmosphere was dampened early in the week by news that steel production had dipped for the fifth straight week and that factory orders in May had declined slightly from April. A moderate business expansion, however, was forecast for the second half of 1963 and automobile output in June was reported 22 per cent higher than in the same month a year ago.

The ability of Chrysler to sustain a severe wave of profit taking and remain comfortably above 60 brought in considerable short covering and the stock—the outstanding performer of late '62 and early '63 — rebounded smartly to post a fractional net gain on the week.

The government bond market dropped steadily in the holiday-shortened week. There was little movement on corporate bond prices. The pace of the market was draggy, apparently as a result of the July 4 holiday. Sales totaled $16,837,000 par value compared with $24,210,000 a week ago.

Gulf Tests Gas Find At Thornton

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gulf Oil Corp. tested gas Saturday from its Thornton No. 2, sec.35-1n-12e, in the Heidelberg Oil Field of Jasper County.

If completed as a commercial producer it will be the first gas well in the 19-year-old oil field.

Operators are flowing an unestimated amount of gas from perforations in the Selma Creek formation at 4,136-70 feet. The major producing formation in the big field is the Eutaw at about 5,000 feet.

Production tests were under way at a Clarke County wildcat to test commercial worth of oil shows found in the Selma chalk. The Benture Broadhead, Stewart and Dubard No. 1 Gordon sec. 14-2n-14e, about six miles southwest of Quitman. Operators tested a zone at 1,007-25 feet.

A one-half mile northwest extension to the Lazy Creek Field of Pike County appears certain at Cane Corp. Campbell and Moore No. 1, Lewman sec. 8-4n-8e. The venture was drilled to 10,811 feet, and was reported to have logged 48 feet of oil sand in the lower Tuscaloosa formation.

In Jones County, Triad Oil and Gas Co. deepened its wildcat, the Trotter-Collins Unit No. 1, sec. 14-7n-13w, below contract depth of 13,500 feet. Operators released no information on the venture with the depth below 13,560 feet.

Business Outlook For Final Half Of 1963 Favorable; Little Dark

NEW YORK (AP) — Business headed into the second half of 1963 this week with the outlook favorable and only a few dark spots showing.

It was a time when business men put their heads together to look back at the first half and into the future.

The first six months were notable for a remarkable gain by the stock market and booming production in the steel and automobile industries.

What the second half holds for the stock market is anybody's guess but many Wall Streeters expect it to reach new all-time highs. The outlook for steel isn't so good. The automobile industry anticipates continued high output and sales.

They foresaw an increase in the gross national product—total of all goods and services — not quite matching that of the first half. They also envisioned a rise in capital spending by business and an increase in government spending.

But, in their view, the problems of high unemployment and the deficit in the international balance of payments will remain.

Another group of industrialists polled by the First National Bank of Chicago expressed more confidence in a high level of business for the entire year than they had felt six months ago.

Among them, Joseph L. Block, chairman of Inland Steel Co., said, "Although steel production in the second half will be depressed by liquidation of excess customer inventories, it appears to us that steel consumption should be somewhat higher than it was in the first six months of the year."

Austin T. Cushman, chairman of Sears Roebuck & Co., said the retail sales in the second half compared with a year earlier.

In a separate statement, M. Monroe Kimbrel, president of the American Bankers Association, commented:

"There are good reasons to be optimistic about the outlook, and it is obvious that business sentiment has improved considerably. The prospects are that the American economy will expand through this year and into next year, perhaps even more than moderately."

Steel production declined again last week and another sharp drop was inevitable this week. Output last week fell 4.7 per cent to 2,313,000 tons from the previous week. Buyers were holding down orders because, with the new labor contract, there was no further need to build inventories.

There was some cutting back of employment. Pittsburgh Steel Co. said it would furlough 750 to 1,000 workers in the next three months.

The federal government indicted eight steel firms and nine of their executives on charges of price-fixing in the $75-million-a-year steel castings industry.

Companies accused were Bethlehem Steel, Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton Corp., Blaw-Knox Co., Erie Forge Steel Corp., Textron, Inc., General Steel Industries, Inc., Birdsboro Corp. and Penn Steel Castings Co.

The Fourth of July holiday cut into automobile production with output estimated at 124,600 cars, compared with 168,713 last week and 112,327 a year ago.

Production schedules for July call for assembly of about 625,000 passenger cars, which would be the highest for the month since 1955. June output of 689,519 cars was the highest for tnat month in history.

The time of decision drew near in the railroad industry. The railroads said they will put into effect next Thursday work rules changes which the unions have said would mean a strike. In that event, Congress is expected to act to avert a nationwide railroad strike.

Spending on new construction rose in June to an annual rate of $63.74 billion, about $350 million above the original estimate. The June increase of 6 per cent over May was more than seasonal.

Briefly around the business scene: The F. W. Woolworth Co., variety store chain, will acquire the 570-store G. R. Kinney Corp. shoe chain. . . . Major producers raised the price of lead ¼ cent a pound and of zinc ½ cents a pound. . . . Higher dividend payments were made by 668 companies in the first half of this year than a year earlier. . . . About 141 million Americans had some form of health insurance coverage at the end of 1962.

District Oil, Gas Activity Eases Off

Activity in the Monroe Oil and Gas District seems to be slacking off slightly as summer weather comes on in earnest.

Only six new locations were staked this past week, according to Manager Duncan S. Cook, as compared to ten for last week.

Fourteen wells were completed, mainly in Ouachita Parish. Last week saw 12 completions.

Active wells numbered 39, and were spread over nine parishes. Concordia and Tensas led with eight each, and Catahoula and LaSalle had seven apiece. Ouachita reported three, Richland and Rapides each had two, and there was one each in Franklin and Lincoln.

One re-completion was listed at Nebo Hemphill Field in Union Parish. Placid Oil Co.'s J. W. Hailey No. 1, located in Sec. 3-7-3E, was recompleted at 3568 feet.

Ouachita Parish hosted eight completions, with two each in Tensas and Union, and one each in Concordia and Rapides.

Of the six new locations, three were in LaSalle, two in Concordia and one in Catahoula.

In his weekly district report through the Conservation Department, Cook released these data on completions and active rigs for the preceding seven days.

COMPLETIONS OFF

U.S. oil and gas well completions were off about 6 per cent during the first half of 1963 compared with the same period last year.

This preliminary comparison is based on The Oil and Gas Journal's well - completion survey through June 29.

Completions to that date totaled 21,127, compared with 22,463 for the same period last year.

Cumulative total for wildcats is 3,883, compared with 4,348 for the same period in 1962, down about 10½ per cent.

For the one week ended June 29, U.S. operators finaled 724 wells, compared with 763 for the previous week. These included 199 for Texas, 128 for Louisiana, 64 each for Kansas and Oklahoma, and 54 for California, the Journal says.

Dry Weather Spurs Grains

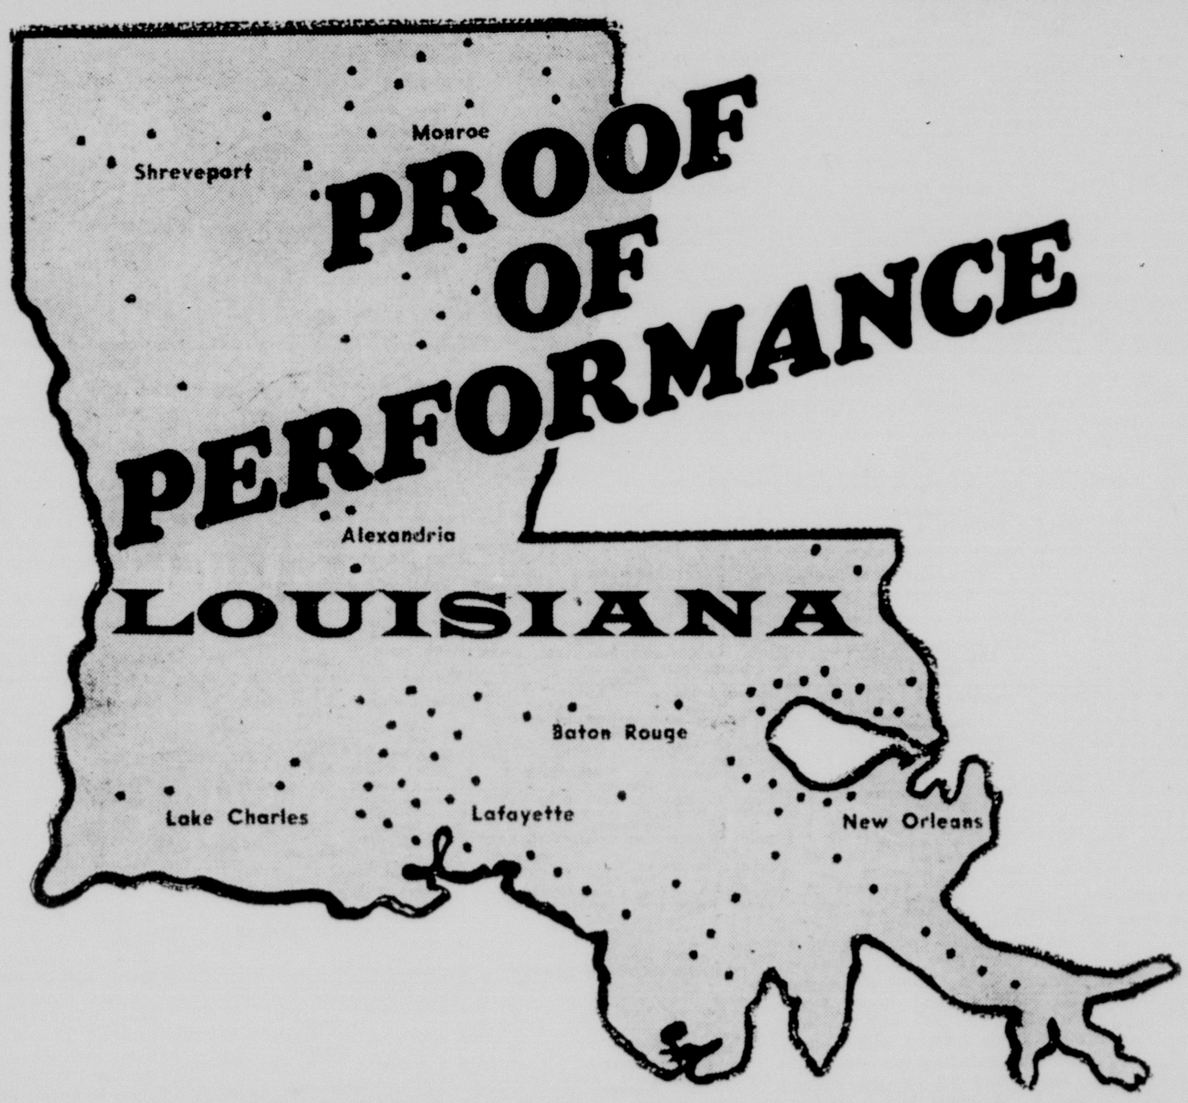

CHICAGO (AP) — A threatened Midwestern drought accelerated activity in the grain futures market last week and prices shifted broadly and rapidly, mostly higher, on the Board of Trade.

Speculation became unusually heavy in soybeans and that commodity posted new gains running to 10 cents a bushel. Extreme gains were on the new crop months. Corn moved up more than five cents, oats and rye two cents or more.

Hedging pressure expanded somewhat in wheat and the nearby months were a bit easier. Brokers said the mill buying which usually materializes at the peak of the harvest had not developed as expected although some had booked requirements three or four months ahead.

By far the greatest activity was in soybeans where trade volume on Tuesday reached a record high of 149 million bushels, up more than 26 million from the previous business day which occurred during the prolonged bull market of a little over two years ago.

ORIENTAL GARDENING

Oriental or Japanese trend in gardening is becoming increasingly popular throughout the country, as well as in Monroe and West Monroe, as evidenced by these pictures of local gardens. Landscaping of formal gardens or small areas adapts well to the use of Oriental theme, with the addition of rocks, shrubs and statuary, native to Japan.

ZIP-UP MINK

A mink coat that zips up the front like old time housecoats are current fuzzy, wuzzy puzzlers. Because the pile is dense, and the zipper one of those new indiscernible kinds, it's impossible to tell by looking just how the wearer gets in and out of it.

MRS. HOWARD H. MORGAN JR.

Morgan-Edwards Nuptials Read In Local Church

Gordon Avenue Methodist Church in Monroe, was scene of the ceremony Friday, July 5 at 7:30 p.m. which united in marriage Miss Thelma Louise Edwards and Howard H. Morgan Jr. The bride is the daughter of J. M. Edwards and the late Mrs. Edwards and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Morgan Sr., of Monroe.

Twin candelabra holding white tapers and baskets of white gladioli against a background of greenery formed a setting for the exchange of vows. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. M. D. Felder of Winnsboro, following a program of nuptial music presented by Mrs. Charles Stratford, organist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie with fitted bodice, featuring scooped neckline and long sleeves tapered to lily points over the hands. The floor length skirt fell into soft pleats from a pointed waistline. Her veil of ivory illusion cascaded from an ivory peau de soie pillbox. She carried a bouquet of feathered carnations.

Miss Barbara Reid served as maid of honor. She wore a dress of pink crystallene over taffeta with fitted basque, scalloped neckline and full skirt. Her headpiece was a pink circular veil attached to a crownless pillbox and she carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Serving as best man was Bill Bragg. Ushers were Will Robert Lambert, Ronald Smith, Freddie Monroe and Kenneth Slusher.

The church social room was scene of the reception which followed. The bride's table, covered with a pink linen cloth, was centered with a floral arrangement in a footed crystal container flanked by crystal candelabra based with wedding bells and ivy. Miss Rheta Davidson presided over the punch bowl and Miss Barbara Reid served the wedding cake.

Fall Fashions Revive Hacking Jackets, Boots

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

The fall fashions in many instances are going to revive that turn-of-the-century cry, "Hey, get a horse!" If collections are right, this will be the biggest hacking jacket and boot season ever. The boots will be the real knee-length kind.

Not only are hacking jackets in every collection, but they are done in country tweeds with suede elbow patches. Coats appear made from horsehide and lined with a horse blanket. Ponyskin is popular for coats and suits.

In accessories, jockey caps and hunt caps, launched way last year, are more popular now than they were then. Jodphurs are the new campus pants rage. Every good handbag collection has saddlebag styles, often in leather and ponyskin combined.

Of course, the authentic riding shops, like New York's famed Miller's, are benefitting, too, since they've always done the elegant riding clothes. Their formal riding habit has been snatched by Seventh Avenue as an evening costume.

Fake Fur Becomes High Style

The sportswear look in high fashion has resulted in a flurry over fake fur. What was beneath notice last year has suddenly become a popular fabric for fall.

Many weskit suits are done with the weskit wholly in fake zebra, tiger or leopard, or with its front only in fur.

Overblouses and linings for coats are in fake fur. Bathrobe sportive coats are as likely to be fake as to be real fur. Boots in fake fur accompany tweed suits.

In real sportswear, where the ski jacket dominates, many jackets for fall will be in fake furs. Matching hats and boots go with them. At-home skirts and long dresses take to fake fur, often trimmed with satin. The most "in" day dress for fall is a skimmer in fake fur.

The idea, of course, is that with all those minks home in the closet, who has to prove status with real fur. Fake is more fun.

SPORTIVE SLEEPWEAR

Mixed Look Seen In Home Furnishings

Today the well dressed room is personal and expressive, devoid of monotonous correctness.

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee reports that some of the year's outstanding collections reflect this decorating trend. Within any one collection are seen a varity of woods, finishes, colors and design details. All are designed to blend harmoniously within any one room.

For example a line of furniture may happily merge a basic Spanish mood with Persian, Moorish and Roman design elements, two or three woods and several finishes.

For the homemaker, such a line makes successful decorating easy. By choosing the pieces she prefers for a room, she may, from the same line, have both continuity and variety.

A general discussion was held during the refreshment hour. Those attending the meeting were Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. Lawrence A. Hunnicutt, Mrs. Clifford LaFrance, Mrs. E. Everett Lawson, Mrs. Earl J. Phelps, Mrs. S. O. Williams, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. McMrs. Tarver.

Females Borrow Haberdashery

Hanging over the counters of haberdashery stores these days are fashion - conscious women trying to locate the proper accessories for their man-type clothes.

Cuff links must be had for shirt suits, shirt shifts, and shift jackets. Women's stores do sell the sissy kind with stones, but many prefer the tailored gold and silver, just like the boys.

Winkin' Jacket New Teen Fad

Teen - age girls too bashful to do their own flirting are expected to spend a few dollars for a white butcher jacket that will do their flirting for them.

Called a winkin' jacket, the back features a full-faced drawing of a dreamboy with a button eye that winks and blinks as the girl moves. Make of washable white cotton, the jacket is cardigan type with a single pleated patch pocket and ¾ length uncuffed, push-up sleeves. The lad on the back comes in three types: blonde, black or red-haired.

An Old Fashion Fourth was celebrated in Monroe this past Thursday with the annual day in Forsythe Park sponsored by Jaycees and Jaycee Jaynes. Families began arriving with their picnic baskets hours before the official opening at eleven in the morning, when Boy Scout troup No. 32 and Cub Scout Pack No. 31 raised the flag.

Activities continued throughout the day, with several bands alternating on the bandstand; swimming, sack races, and Little League as well as impromptu ball games throughout the park. There were even some horseback riders. Fireworks in Neville stadium across the street concluded the planned program.

North Monroe Kiwanis club and Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, CAR, sponsored this year for the first time bell ringing by churches and other bells. This "Bells Across the Nation" is being sponsored by the National Society of Children of the American Revolution in commemoration of the Liberty Bell's ringing the new of the Declaration of Independence.

Home parties are also popular on the Fourth, as any holiday. The HENRY GUERREIRO home on Pargoud boulevard was scene of one outdoor-indoor supper, with the JOHN EBYS as co-hosts. Virginia and June, neither of whom play bridge, entertained a bridge club which frequently invites them to join the group's social affairs. Guests arrived in the informal attire in the late afternoon for swiminmg and or boating on the bayou before supper.

Yellow garden flowers used with dozens and dozens of lemons decorated the buffet table in the dining room. Guests served themselves to smoked chicken, Texas caviar (pickled black eyed peas) and corn saute. They were then seated at individual tables in the dining room or outside on the terrace. Wrought iron candlesticks centered these tables, with hurricane lights used along the edge of the water.

TOMMY and FRED SARTOR entertained family-style, inviting five families with a dozen children for al fresco supper. Each contributed a dish to the meal, with hamburgers cooked on the patio comprising the main item. Homemade ice cream and cake, these traditional Fourth of July items, were served for dessert.

There couldn't have been a better time for a boat ride than last Sunday afternoon, what with all the ceremonies marking the opening of the new boat dock. The JOE DIXONS and JERRY RYANS were hosts at a party honoring the JACK MADDENS, SOON TO MOVE To North Carolina. All eighteen guests were treated to the ready-made show. Later supper was served, with the menu included barbecued chicken, potato salad, marinated cucumbers and tomatoes, and homemade ice cream and cake.

Teedee's parents, Mr. and MRS. THEO KRAMER, were here from Franklin for this party. They left early in the week, taking grandson J. J. DIXON home for a two week's visit.

And speaking of visits with grandparents, young WALTER BATCHELOR LIGON, III, arrived with his mother, EVELYN LIGON, Friday. Flying in from Germany on Thursday, they were met in New Orleans by Evelyn's parents, the FRED AMMANS, and drove home for a month's stay.

Here for six weeks is WILCOX SNELLINGS, visiting his grandparents, the GEORGE SNELLINGS. Marie Louise flew to New York Wednesday to bring him home.

In Chicago this weekend were JEAN and DICK DICKENHORST, their daughter SHERRY, and Dick's mother, MRS. R. H. DICKENHORST of Morrilton, Arkansas. They went up on Wednesday, with tickets for ball games, races, and several plays; and will return early in the morning.

Even busier than Forsythe Park on July Fourth is Strauss Playhouse, where Summer 1963 Theatre Festival is in full swing. First production of the summer series, sponsored jointly by Little Theatre of Monroe and Northeast Louisiana State college is to be "The Desperate Hours," set to open this coming Friday evening, July 12. Already in rehearsal is "The Indian captive," second play, planned for a July 26 opening.

Now Director RICHARD CLARK announces try-outs for "Send Me No Flowers" to be held this afternoon at 2 p.m. at the Playhouse. This play, a farce, is to open August 16 as the third and final production for Summer 1963.

Word has been received here that MR. and MRS. T. C. MEECE celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary Friday in Waco, Texas. The Meeces have a daughter, PAT LARY, and three grandchildren MICHAEL, SUSAN, and NANCY living in Monroe. They have been frequent visitors here and are well known; she as a bridge enthusiast, and he as a prize-winning camellia gardener. The Meeces were married in Buck, Kentucky, when she was fifteen and he, nineteen. They lived 27 years in Shreveport, where he retired ten years ago as an official of Cities Service, now Phillips Petroleum corporation.

Wedding bells set the theme at a linen shower honoring NORMA ANN LEA, bride-elect of DONALD COTTON, last Thursday evening. Silver bells were used in Norma's corsage and in flower arrangements in the living room.

Hostesses ELSIE JONES, EUNICE RENAUD, ALTA KLEIN, ARTIE WRIGHT and FLOSSY THOMAS used a wedding bell tree as centerpiece on the refreshment table. A tiny bride and groom stood beneath the tree, tied with white satin ribbons and hung with bells of various sizes. Red gelatin bells were frozen in the clear ring which floated in the punch bowl. Goodies included honey balls, wedding bell sandwiches, and ring mints.

For her fourth birthday celebration, AMY JACKSON was honored at a backyard party last Saturday. Older sister JENNIFER JACKSON and her friend FRAN HARBUCK planned and decorated for the party, using paper flowers on the patio and in flower beds. Balloons and crepe paper hung in trees. Ten boys and girls who attended "went fishing" for favors: paper sacks decorated with animal cutouts and filled with bubble gum, candy, and bubble pipes. Fruit punch, ice cream and cake were served.

Jennifer, incidentally, joined cousins WES LOFLIN and LYNN LOFLIN for a weekend trip with their grandmother, MILDRED JACKSON over the Fourth. The group went to Winnfield for several days.

Fourteen little girls were invited for a luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club Friday honoring CATHY COTTON on her seventh birthday. The table was centered with a doll cake with a skirt of pink icing ruffles. Cathy's candles stood around the base. Placecards with tiny umbrellas marked the plates.

Our Fourth of July type poem is by Henry Holcomb Bennett, entitled "The Flag Goes By":

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums,
A flash of color beneath the sky:
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!
Blue and crimson and white it shines,
Over the steel-tipped, ordered lines.
Hats off!
The colors before us fly;
But more than the flag is passing by.
Sea-fights and land-fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and to save the State:
Weary marches and sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips;
Days of plenty and years of peace;
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Sign of a nation great and strong
To ward her people from foreign wrong:
Pride and glory and honor, all
Live in the colors to stand or fall.
Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums;
And loyal hearts are beating high:
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

MRS. BOBBY EUGENE PETRIE

Petrie-Johnson Wedding Solemnized In Crossett

Miss Millicent Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wesley Johnson of Crossett, became the bride of Bobby Eugene Petrie, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas Petrie Jr., of West Helena on Sunday, June 23 in the First Methodist Church of Crossett. Vows were exchanged at 3 p.m. before the altar flanked with baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums against a background of white tapers.

Rev. C. M. Atchley performed the double ring ceremony following a program of organ music by Mrs. W. B. Anderson.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mose Pierce of Crossett and the late Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Johnson of Hamburg. Mr. Petrie is the grandson of the late Jessie Parker and Mrs. Essie Long of West Helena and Mrs. George Thomas Petrie Sr., and the late Mr. Petrie.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of bouquet taffeta and lace. The lace bodice was designed with taffeta midriff, portrait neckline and bracelet sleeves. The taffeta skirt was formed by inverted pleats and detailed in back with a floating lace drape, accented by a taffeta bow. Her shoulder veil of illusion was caught by a white peau de soie rose encrusted with seed pearls and she carried a white prayer book mounted with lilies of the valley and an orchid.

The bride's attendants were her sisters, Misses Carolyn and Sarah Johnson. They wore identical gowns of aqua organza over taffeta designed with scoop necklines, brief sleeves and modified bell skirts. Their circular veils fell from pillboxes and they carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations.

Bill Petrie of West Helena served his brother as best man. Wayne and Buddy Johnson, brothers of the bride, were ushers and also served as candlelighters.

A reception was held in Fellowship Hall of the church following the ceremony. Mrs. Wayne Johnson, sister-in-law of the bride, served the wedding cake. Mrs. Leon Strode poured punch and Miss Kay Craft persided at the bride's book.

For travel the bride wore a blue silk linen suit with white accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet. The couple will be at home in Dallas after a wedding trip.

ENGAGEMENT and approaching marriage of Miss Sandra Jean Graham and Mack W. Fife Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack W. Fife of Tullos, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Graham of Tullos. The wedding will take place Saturday, July 27 at 8 p.m. in the New Union Baptist church near Tullos.

APPETIZERS

Grape and ham appetizers are cool and easy to make. Just wrap strips of cold, cooked ham around seedless grapes and fasten each with a toothpick.

Three pedestal baskets of white gladioll encircled a candle tree which held spiraling white tapers to form a setting for the exchange of vows. On either side of the baskets were wrought iron candelabra also holding tapers and choir rails were garlanded with smilax.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Simms of Bastrop and Mr. Sprouse is the son of Mrs. Gertie Wells of Helena, Arkansas and the late H. L. Sprouse.

For her wedding the bride wore a waltz length gown of Chantilly lace and peau de soie over satin designed with long tapered sleeves and basque bodice. Detailed back interest featured a double bow of peau de soie with extended into a sash. The bouffant front skirt was appliqued with medallions outlined in pearls. Flower girl, Candy Simms, sister of the bride, wore a princess style frock of pink lace with pleated chiffon skirt and satin bow at the waist. She carried a pink basket of pink chrysanthemums and wore a veiled headdress topped with a single pink rose.

Jim Musick served as best man and Joseph Simms was groomsman. Ushers were Jerald Simms, brother of the bride; Butch Balis, Kenneth Estep and Dennis Roper. Danny Estep served as ringbearer.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Kraft Room of the Louisiana Motor Hotel. The bride's table was covered with a cream linen cloth and centered with a silver container filled with pink roses, dahlias and gladioli, flanked by pink tapers in silver holders.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

When summer arrives your feet become almost as important to your appearance as they are to your locomotion. Your feet are on stage at the pool or beach and even in sheer stockings if you wear this year's fashionable open sandals.

It takes a lot more than painted toenails to create a good-looking foot. This is especially true today because our toes have been squeezed together, over or under each other, and curled up in a sort of hammer toe position by the pointed-toe shoes we have worn. Even if your condition is not this extreme, you probably have a small corn or two and your toes do need regular stretching.

Many doctors recommend that we go barefoot as much as possible in the summertime for the health of our feet. Of course summer is the perfect time for this but even in winter you can wear a roomy pair of your husband's socks and no shoes while doing part of your housework. This will give your toes an opportunity to stretch into their natural position.

SPLENDID EXERCISES

Here are two more splendid exercises. Roll your foot back and forth over a small cylinder such as a tin can. Do this before the can is opened. Roll one foot for a while and then the other.

Place a pencil on the floor. Stretch your toes and pick the pencil up with the toes. Drop the pencil and continue. Stretch the toes well before picking up the pencil.

Long pointed toenails are unpleasant looking. They may also become ingrown and are certain to ruin your stockings. Nails should be cut only a little longer than the end of the toes and straight across the top. Here is a helpful little hint. When you are resting put small wads of cotton between your toes to separate them. This helps counteract the pinching which shoes provide.

UNSIGHTLY

Bunions, corns and heavy callouses, are not only painful but unsightly. Don't try to remove them with a razor blade. A qualified chiropodist or podiatrist should do this. A safe home remedy for temporary corn relief before you have the corn removed professionally is to cover it with a piece of moleskin to lessen the pressure of the shoe.

MRS. ERNEST LEE ARMSTRONG

Armstong-Mitchell Vows Solemnized In Virginia

Vows uniting Miss Janice Marie Mitchell, Alexandria, Virginia and Ernest Lee Armstrong, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, were solemnized Saturday, July 6, at 4 p.m. in Groveton Baptist Church, Alexandria. Rev. A. Lincoln Smith performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Laurence Mitchell of Durham, North Carolina and Mr. Armstrong is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Lee Armstrong of Bonita, La.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a short gown of white lace with a white satin cummerbund. Her shoulder length veil was attached to a crown edged with seed pearls and she carried a white orchid atop a while Bible.

Mrs. Sallie Jenkins, college roommate of the bride, Charlotte, N.C., was matron of honor and bridesmaid was Miss Nancy Gunter, Durham, N.C. They wore identical frocks of aqua taffeta and lace.

Wayne Overcash of Fort Belvoir served as best man and ushers were Frank White and Don Runyan, both of Fort Belvoir.

After a wedding trip in Louisiana the couple will be at home in Alexandria, Va. The bride was graduated from Durham city schools and East Carolina College, Greenville, N.C., and is presently employed by the Prince William County School Board of Virginia, teaching English in Gar-Field high school.

Mr. Armstrong attended Louisiana public schools and graduated from Northwestern State College. He is presently stationed with the U.S. Army at Fort Belvoir.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Honorable Citizen No Candidate For Trap

Dear Ann Landers: I am a heartbroken mother who needs some advice.

Our 21-year-old son is so handsome the movies would be glad to have him. He has been chased by girls since he was 13 and naturally he is a little conceited and spoiled.

Six months ago he started to go steady with a little dried up peanut whose father is a bus driver. I almost had a heart attack when he brought the girl home to dinner. She didn't say more than four sentences the whole evening. It was, "How do you do. Please pass the salt. May I have another roll?" — and "Thanks for dinner."

Five weeks ago our son told us he and the peanut had to get married right away. What could we say but "Go ahead"?

Last week he announced she had made a mistake and there is no baby on the way. He wants to get out of this marriage and we want to help him get out. We feel he was trapped. What can we do? — Mother Of An Honorable Boy

Dear Mother: No sympathy from this corner, Madame. You sound like a lovely group. I hold no brief for your daughter-in-law but if your son was such an honorable citizen he wouldn't be a candidate for the trap. See your clergyman and a lawyer about the possibility of an annulment.

Dear Ann Landers: Once again it is "cottage time." Please print this letter. Thousands of wives will be grateful.

Our cottage is our summer home. We welcome friends and relatives for weekend and holidays. We make salads, prepare steaks for barbecue and the bar is always open. We want our guests to relax and enjoy themselves. But why must they be so utterly helpless?

After a swim they walk in, soaking wet, leaving puddles in the hallways, the bathroom and the bedroom. Wet towels are left on the floor or on the beds. They saunter out to get some sun after lunch and when snack time rolls around no one lifts a hand except to reach for the cold drink and the sandwich.

At the end of the summer our friends are all brown as berries and I am as white as a lily. I've spent my entire summer inside—cooking, picking up after people, and preparing snacks and drinks. Please tell guests to pitch in and help the hostess. She's—Tired

Dear Tired: I suggest the hostess give all guests the short course on arrival. And those who don't understand the lesson the first time should not be asked to return.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Blue Ribbon Displays

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The last half of the blue ribbon award winners in the Artistic Design Division, Table Division, Junior Division and Horticulture Division of the Twin City Garden Club Council show "Progress of the Twin Cities" were featured on the T. V. and Garden Center program last Wednesday. Instead of further describing these designs our column today will contain an article written by Mrs. Rupert A. Stephens, nationally accredited flower show judge, listed on the Louisiana Garden Club Federation speaker's list.

Mrs. Stephens has completed a semester study at McNeese College under Professor O. D. Hyatt on flouriculture, horticulture and landscape design. Her home is in Lake Charles. "Beauty Bonus for Your Garden," is the title of this article:

"Louisiana native iris are attracting interest throughout the nation. Nature has lavishly given this bonus of beauty to residents of our state free for the collecting. Any gardener can have a variety by searching along ditch banks, ponds or streams.

PREFER LOWLANDS

"Although many varieties prefer to grow in marshy lowlands, bogs or along edges of shallow streams, others strive in pine highlands. It is fun to collect and exchange varieties.

"All native iris may be grown under garden conditions if a few requirements are met. Culture of iris differs from that of bearded iris in soil requirements. They prefer an acid soil, rich in organic matter. Barn lot fertilizer, decomposed leaf compost or peat moss may be used. Supplemental feedings of a complete fertilizer such as 8-8-8 or 6-12-6 should be added as they are heavy feeders.

"Native iris will thrive in a raised bed thickly mulched with bagasse or rotted leaves. When planted in borders, low-growing, flowering plants may be used during summer months for shade. Rhizomes should be covered lightly with soil to prevent sun scald.

"Weeding of beds should be done by hand to prevent damage to rhizomes. This can be kept at a minimum by using a heavy mulch. During dry weather iris beds should be watered often to prevent roots from drying out. They should not be planted where water stands, but rather where there is moisture with good drainage.

RAINBOW

"The name "iris" is a Greek word which means "rainbow." Truly they were aptly named. They offer a color range of white, light to dark blue, black-purple and lavender.

"There are pink, rose, wine, red, rust and bronze varieties to choose from. Some are clear yellow or dark gold. Breeders have developed bitones, bi - colored and flecked specimens.

"Amateur growers can have infinite variety of color by crown - pollination. Seeds should be collected at maturity before pods become completely dry. Many cork - like, disk - shaped seeds are found in each pod, often as high as 50.

"Seeds should be planted in flats containing a mixture of half sand, half garden soil, covered lightly and kept moist in a shady place until germination.

"The thrill of creating a new color adds interest to gardening. Since most native iris are the result of natural crosses, few seeds come true to the parent plant. Gardeners can create their own rainbow colors with time and patience.

"We can find many uses in our gardens for this free, wild plant. Dwarf varieties growing only four to six inches tall are useful as edging plants. Medium varieties look well in clumps used for color accent. Tall varieties reach five to six feet in height making useful background plants in borders.

NATURALS

"Iris are naturals for plantings around ponds or near pools. They may be used in damp spots or low places where other plants will not thrive.

"There are five types of irises found growing wild in our state. These are listed by Mr. J. R. Richard of L.S.U. as Rust - red (Fulva), Abbeville types which include the Abbeville Reds, Dwarf (Foliosa) which is found in prairie and bluff areas, Giant blues (Giganticaerulea) found along the Gulf coast and pine flat types (Virginica) found in pine flat areas from Calcasieu to Caddo Parishes.

"Outstanding bybridizers working with the wild varieties have developed many outstanding iris which may be added to collections. Among area residents well known in gardening circles for their work in this field are Miss Caroline Dorman of Saline; Dr. Ira Nelson, U. S. L., Lafayette, Mr. W. B. MacMillan, Abbeville; Mr. Claude Davis, Baton Rouge and Mr. Charles Arny, Lafayette. G. W. Holleyman, Lake Charles has developed many varieties working with the giant blues as parent stock.

MANY VARIETIES

"Gardeners wishing to add to their collections will like varieties of well known iris. Miss Dorman has developed Upstart (light crimson), Violet Ray, Mary Debaillon, The Khan (red - violet), Golden Sheaves and Green Tracery.

"Among the many good varieties developed by Dr. Ira Nelson are Bordeaux Red, Cherry Bounce, Plum Good and U. S. L. No. 9, a small pink iris.

"From the work of Mr. MacMillan has come Peggy Mac, Bayou Sunset, Rose of Abbeville, Mistis and Strutting Canary, a small yellow.

"Charles Arny has many outstanding iris to his credit. Among them are Chuck (rich red), Katherine L. Cornay, Gulf Surf, Pink Honey, Tessie Cook, Potatoe Chip, Puttytat, Charlie's Gold, Solar Light, and Bayou Blue.

"G. W. Holleyman of Lake Charles has perhaps one of the largest collections in the state which is the result of over 15 years of collecting and breeding.

"For beauty and interest, add the natives of Louisiana to your garden."

Mrs. Stephens has written another wonderful article, an idea for chrysanthemums: "A garden in a Basket," under the byline of Mae Webb Stephens, featured in one of the leading garden magazines, in June of this year.

This Week — Sprig and Twig Garden Club of Monroe will have the T. V. and Garden Center Program. Mrs. W. M. Rasberry is president of this club.

Stamp News

One of the most extraordinary series of postage stamps ever issued by any nation has been released by the Kingdom of Tonga in the South Pacific. The stamps are the first circular ones ever made and are by far the most expensive to produce because each has been individually die cut.

This unusual news was revealed by the London office of the Associated Press.

These stamps which commemorate the first gold coins produced for the Islands are also the first British Commonwealth stamps ever printed on a substance other than paper. These new stamps are on gold foil.

Another unusual feature is that they are the heaviest stamps ever made. The smallest weighs 10 times as much as the ordinary current British stamp, and the largest weighs 41 times as much.

There are 13 values in the set. Six are for regular postage, six for air mail, and one large size official air mail. Each size depicts the actual coin and they are exact replica in size and color of these coins.

Colombia has issued two new stamps depicting the statue of the Colombian heroine, Policarpa Salavarrieta. 35C stamps which show the same design as the previously issued 10 Centavos and the 34C stamps which show the woman carrying a child in one arm and a ballot for the ballot box in her other hand. The design symbolizes the political rights given to Colombian women. Both stamps are of the 45C value.

India has announced that it will issue a series of stamps depicting wild life of India during its Wild Life Week which begins Oct. 1. The stamps will feature pictures of rare Indian animals such as the white tiger, Gir lion, Himalayan Panda and the Indian bison.

There also will be an international exhibition of wild life stamps during that time in New Delhi.

Frank C. Sebastian of Hartsdale, N.Y., has won the award for a Christmas stamp design in a contest sponsored by the publication, "Fine Arts Philatelist." This design will be forwarded to submit it to the Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee.

Give Special Treatment To Berry Plants

After the fruit is gone from your strawberry plants, or if you have renewed your beds, fertilize liberally and prevent leaf damage from aphids and spider mites to check virus diseases. Among recommended treatments are applications of Kelthane, Tedion, Ethion and Trithion.

It is important to control weeds and grass in strawberries.

Plants Hit High Spots In Summer

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Plants have shot off into space this summer. They've hit the ceiling of porches, into green-houses. As one man said recently of his jungle-like surroundings: "I expect to see a monkey come swinging by at any minute."

Some plants have been moved from their indoor settings. And new ones are added. There are many advantages to the arrangement: The satisfaction of being surrounded by flowers and foliage, no matter the weather, and it's a lot easier than weeding an outdoor garden.

MANY CONTAINERS

Every sort of container is used, from those that are improvised like wire salad baskets or Easter-style baskets to wire, redwood, cedar or flower pot containers available at florists and other shops.

If you hang plants high in the air, remember they must be watered. The joy can go out of a project that requires removing 17 plants from brackets or ceiling suspensions for water. The best bet is to hang the majority of plants on walls within reach, with one or two strategically placed from the overhang of a roof or a ceiling of a porch. Newspapers could then be placed under plants to catch the excess water.

Ordinary flower pots equipped with the rigid hangers that may be attached to brackets are very good for this purpose. Wire baskets are pretty but filled with soil and moss, they are not quite so easy to maintain. The pot need not be the main attraction. A trailing begonia or weeping lantana hanging from the beams is the only eye arrester you will need.

SELECTION POINT

Plants should be selected for their tolerance to light, sun, shade. The weeping lantana with its masses of lavender, orange or rose flowers requires plenty of sun, and lots of room for its sprays. Begonias do well in partial shade and in an area where the temperature is above 50 degrees. These can offer profuse trailing blooms. Ferns and even philodendron may be interspersed with other plants. Variegated ivy may hang from a pot of ordinary geraniums. And this same effect may be achieved with dwarf petunias, if it is too late to latch on to the trailing petunias. Coleus is another lovely plant for a basket. And trailing Nasturtium thrives on poor soil.

In general it is a good idea to choose plants that are known to do well in your climate, rather than to experiment. And for foliage plants one might investigate those that grow near home, even in swampy areas.

THE MAX SKELTONS of Houston make tracks on hot summer days to their beach house, a railroad caboose the couple bought, moved and converted into a colorful, comfortable vacation retreat.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

A caboose, says the dictionary, is "a freight - train car, usually attached to the rear, mainly for the use of the train crew and railroad workmen."

A caboose, say the Skeltons is a beach house on Bolivar Peninsula overlooking the Gulf of Mexico at Galveston, Tex.

The Skeltons know what they are talking about. Their beach house IS a caboose. Furthermore, it's a red, white and blue caboose that has become something of a landmark in only one year.

START OF IDEA

The idea for this unusual weekend, vacation retreat started with an equipment hauler who had obtained the caboose from a salvage firm. Would Mrs. Skelton be willing to spend $100 for the old railroad car? She would. But first she'd have to consult her husband, Max, Associated Press correspondent at Houston. After he had stopped laughing, he began to see some merit in wife Keeter's plan to use the caboose for a beach house, especially when she convinced him it would be cheaper than buying or building one.

About one month and $350 later, a housemover had the caboose atop six-foot pilings on the Skeltons' sandy lot. At a salvage shop, Mrs. Skelton found railroad car light fixtures, hooks and shelves — solid brass at 35 cents a pound. Max was able to find and buy, at 4 cents a pound, a 400 - pound railroad signal post with red, green and amber lights for the front gate.

The cupola that sticks above the main roof was retained, but was converted into what probably is the coolest (eight windows) and coziest bedroom along the Texas coast.

The caboose is 34 feet long and 9 feet wide. There are two rooms, 18 by 9 and 6 by 9. Six closets are beneath the two rooms and beneath the cupola. The small room was converted into a complete bathroom with tile shower and electric water heater.

One side of the long room had two built-in bunks and a desk. These were ripped out and replaced with an apartment gas range, a double sink, a cabinet with eight electric outlets, and a breakfast nook.

The other side had been lined with three bunks. The center one was ripped away to provide space for a refrigerator. The other two were retained as daytime couches and nighttime bunks.

A 12 by 26 foot porch was tied across the front of the caboose. The area beneath the porch and the caboose was screened in on all sides, providing one large multipurpose room with four day beds, redwood table and benches, barbecue pit, and a large second-hand freezer Mrs. Skelton found for $20.

She was able to rescue about $300 in shrubbery from the paths of bulldozers clearing right of way for freeway projects. The 5,000 bricks that became the downstairs floor and the sidewalks were discards from Houston apartment projects that were being built of imported Mexican brick.

Moving the brick was the toughest job, and, with the help of a few friends and relatives, the Skeltons did all the work except the electrical and plumbing. It took about 24 round trips by pickup truck and automobile to move all the brick the 65 miles to Bolivar.

Twenty gallons of paint and plenty of elbow grease made the old caboose, built in the early 1900s, sparkle inside and out. If only her old railroad car buddies could see her now.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Colorful And Sturdy

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The red - hot pokers, those striking red - and - yellow, orange - and - yellow, or simply solid yellow or solid white torches from South Africa have come through the recent cold winters in the South without being killed. It would have been a shame if the cold winters had destroyed them because they are so bold and handsome in summer and autumn gardens.

We used to call these tall perennials "torch - lilies" or tritomas, and that is the way they are still listed in most American catalogues. If you look them up in horticultural books, you will see that they are Kniphofias, named for a German professor of Botany of the 18th Century.

WELL - SUITED

The red - hot pokers are eminently suited to southern gardens. They like our hot weather, our droughts and droughts in South Africa. The modern named varieties were created from many different wild South African species — some stream-side plants and some from the arid regions. The best way to treat these hybrids is to plant them in our ordinary perennial beds or in front of shrubbery and simply water them copiously when the buds begin to show.

In plantings of rampant feeders like daylilies, be sure to fertilize red - hot pokers so that they can compete with the other plants. Otherwise, the pokers may dwindle away. They can be left in large bold clumps for years and years without division. When the flowers begin to be produced sparsely, lift the clumps and divide them.

POPULAR

One of the most beautiful and popular of the red - hot pokers is Springtime, an early one that is very striking in cream and orange. Here in the South, it blooms just as the last spring flowers give over to summer ones. You may be lucky enough to have the old late summer and fall species, Kniphofia pfitzeri. If you do, take care of it because the catalogues do not list it any longer.

Catalogues are now listing an early poker called Coral Sea. This one belongs to the group of small and delicate varieties which contains Vanilla, White Fairy and the new Rosa Superba which is white with rosy tips.

There are many new summer red - hot pokers that are the boldest of all the spike-shaped perennials. The first of these to appear was W. S. Reeves, listed by Northern catalogues as "not hardy." Only in the coldest parts of the South has this proved to be tender. Maid of Orleans is a new white, and Rosea Superba is a new "red - and - white." Then there are all sorts of "hybrids" being offered. Since Kniphofias come easily from seed, you can get some of the new ones, plant your own seed and grow some fine varieties yourself.

Nematodes Controlled

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Many gardeners, especially those interested in preparing their beds for chrysanthemums, are perhaps interested in soil sterilization. Soil sterilization is a process designed to rid the earth of nematodes, soil borne insects and diseases, and weed seeds. Warren Meadows, LSU Horticulturist says that two of the most common materials for soil sterilization are methyl bromide and vapam. Methyl bromide is a gas and must be applied under a plastic cover. The process is somewhat complicated, but the grower can plant the soil about 72 hours after the gas is applied.

Vapam is simple to apply. It is mixed with water according to directions on the container and is applied with an ordinary sprinkling can. The grower must wait 14 to 21 days before he can plant anything in the soil.

One important thing to remember in using both chemicals is to follow instructions as to the proper soil moisture at the time of application of the chemicals. The instructions can be obtained at the same place from which the material is purchased.

MORE GARDENING

Now is a good time to make cuttings of your favorite plants. Cuttings that may be taken now are camellias, azaleas, photenia, and sasanquas. You may use a root inducing substance such as hormodin or rootone.

Be sure to remove and burn all dead iris foliage and you may fertilize iris by working in bone meal around the plants. And you can transplant those iris you want in another location now.

Your camellias are setting buds now for later bloom. If you want large blossoms then where you see two flower buds, pinch one of them off. However, if you want a real showy plant in your landscape then leave all buds. The plant will be covered with blooms, but the flowers will be smaller.

FROZEN FOOD

If your family is not on friendly terms with frozen foods, it could be the foods were not properly prepared for freezing. There is a great difference between quality frozen foods and foods merely safe to eat because they have been frozen. Foods must be top quality when placed in the freezer if they are to be tasty and nutritious when served. Frozen foods are attractive, flavorful and high in nutritive value when carefully prepared with strict attention to basic principles of freezing.

DID YOU KNOW?

The average man, woman, and child in this country ate an average of 15 quarts of ice cream last year, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

It takes 10 pounds of milk to make a pound of cheese, 21 pounds to make a pound of butter, 15 pounds for a gallon of ice cream.

Today an hour's work in a factory will buy nine quarts of milk compared to only six and one-half quarts in 1947-49, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

PEACHES

This is the time of year for all Louisiana homemakers to take advantage of the abundant peach crop. Louisiana tree ripened peaches are plentiful this year and they are among the more versatile of the summer fruits.

Weight watchers will be glad to know that peaches are low in calories. A medium-sized peach has only 46 calories and it will provide slightly more than one-fourth the vitamin A and about 10 per cent of the vitamin C recommended for the adult per day.

Peaches are popular for salads and desserts and are excellent for breakfast served either alone with other fruits or over cereal.

SICKNESS IN CHURCHES?

WESTWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Neurotics hold the reins of leadership in many church congregations and shape whole congregations in "their own sick images," the Rev. Robert James St. Clair, of Akron, Ohio, says in a new book, "Neurotics in the Church," published by Fleming H. Revell Co.

He says religious neurotics use "religious ideas to defend their positions at all costs" and capitalize on every disorder and irritation they find."

CURTAIN CALL

The first production of the Summer Theatre Festival, "The Desperate Hours", will open for a four-day run Friday evening, July 12, at the Strauss Playhouse on Lamy Lane. The Summer Theatre Festival is sponsored jointly by the Monroe Little Theatre and Northeast Louisiana State College.

Tickets for the play may be purchased in advance by calling the Little Theatre, FA 31235. The box office will be open Tuesday, from the hours of 1 until 8 p.m. and remain open at these hours through the run of the show. There will be no reserved seats and tickets may be purchased at the door. Tickets are $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students.

SUSPENSE STORY

This play is the thrilling suspense story of a family, held captive in their own home by criminals.

Richard Clark, director of the Little Theatre, announced the crew of "Desperate Hours" as follows; Francis Yeldell, assistant to the director; Bob Evans, Sharon Peters, Carolyn Friis, lights; Rachal Ober, Murray Burfford, Sue Parkerson, props; Linda Lee Martin, sound; Eastland Gray backstage; and Nancy Franklin, costumes.

The cast, as earlier announced, includes Stann Wyatt, Jr., Beryl Franklin, Walter Kotz, Sara Womack, Tommy Mulhearn, Claude Fuller, Mickey Burford, Bill Wells, Douglas Shaw, C. J. Fontana, Bob Evans, Phil Lisotta, and Linda Lee Martin.

Reports from George Brian, director of the children's play, "The Indian Captive", have us looking forward to the opening of that show. It should prove quite a treat to both children and adults. The adventure story will have a local setting which will provide interest as well as excitement.

Theatre goers will be interested to note that a national dramatic honor fraternity Alpha Psi Omega, has recently been installed on the Northeast State campus. Among the new initiates are names which will be very familiar to Little Theatre members. Some of the new members are Bill Wells, Sara Womack, Murray Burfford, Gail Shoudy, Ron Robinson, and Frances Yeldell. Faculty sponsors are Claude Fuller and George Brian.

TRYOUTS

Tryouts for the third show of the summer "Send Me No Flowers," have been announced by Richard Clark, for Sunday, July 7 at 2 p.m. The comedy calls for nine men and three women. It is the story of a commuter who is a hypochondriac. While this play enjoyed only a short run on Broadway, it has been very successful all over the country in little theatres and summer stock productions. Director Clark urges all interested persons to come to try outs at the Strauss Playhouse.

Our members will be especially interested in a report on "Bye Bye Birdie", as done by the Studio Theatre for summer audiences in Carmel, California. With a stage one quarter the size of ours, no provision for shifting scenery either overhead or side-stage, rudimentary lights and sound, a cast of 20 instead of 50, one piano in contrast to the Jazz Ensemble, and choreography limited by size of stage and chorus, it is a tribute to the vitality of the show that it can withstand such handicaps without losing its audience appeal.

The Studio Theatre is fortunate in having strong leads to play Rose Alverez and Albert Peterson, even though our correspondent admits to the prejudice of not finding them quite up to Betty Bandy and Jim Fuller. Despite a good voice, their Conrad Birdie does not look as authentic as our Bob Flanagan, while the professional actress of long experienes who plays Mae Peterson falls short of the sensational performance of Roz Haas.

In fairness to the Studio Theatre, they had only two weeks for rehearsal which even at eight or 10 hours a day leaves little time for polishing a show. The few rough areas will be ironed out in the course of its long scheduled run. Our reporter predicts that it will be the high spot of the summer entertainment season on the Monterey Peninsula.

Some of our own "Bye Bye Birdie" costumes have been rented for the Carmel production, making the fourth or fifth time that they have helped earn back their cost. Executive director Richard M. Clark put the Penn Station black-and-white coats and Roses' Shriner's Ballet costume on air express one day and they reached Monterey at noon the next. We are told they were greeted with enthusiasm by the producers and enhanced the scenes in which they were used.

HENRY FONDA is shown in one of the comedy situations which confront him in the family picture "Spencer's Mountain," which is showing at the downtown Paramount Theatre. Also starring are Maureen O'Hara, James MacArthur, and Mimsy Farmer.

Mr. John Lenard, instructor of Guitar at PAUL HEWITT MUSIC CO. 1312 Louisville Ave. announces a special 6 weeks summer course of lessons including the home use of a guitar. Students interested in enrolling for this course should call FA 5-3131.

Ellender Says Negroes Hiding Behind Color

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said Saturday he suspects that many Negroes "are attempting to use their color to camouflage their lack of capability."

"In other words," Ellender said in a talk recorded for broadcast in Louisiana, "When they cannot qualify to do a job they contend that they are being discriminated against because of their color."

Instead of demonstrating in the streets, Ellender said, Negroes should be preparing themselves to take full advantages of opportunities afforded them. He added that American Negroes have "the greatest opportunity for advancement that has ever been afforded to the members of their race."

For example, Ellender said, Negroes in Washington "have a great opportunity to exhibit their talents for administration, to show their capability and to uplift their race.

"Instead of advocating violence, why do they not band together and create a model city of our capital city? Instead, the City of Washington leads the nation in crime."

Ellender cited figures which he said show that the ratio of murders, rapes, robberies and burglaries in the capital is much higher than the national average. The latest FBI figures on the over-all crime rate place Washington 13th among the nation's 25 largest cities.

Negroes make up about 55 per cent of the city's population, but neither they nor the other residents have any voting voice in the local government. It is administered by three commissioners, appointed by the President and approved by the Senate. Congress controls the city's purse-strings and writes its laws.

Ellender noted, however, that more than 55 per cent of the District of Columbia employes and 70 per cent of its public school teachers are Negroes.

Ellender also reiterated a previous contention that Negroes haven't yet shown themselves capable of effective self-government."

The senator first made this remark in Africa last year and as a result was banned from new African countries. He repeated it in a recent television appearance and as a result some African ambassadors stationed here protested.

Ellender took note of this criticism and observed that the African diplomats "have gone so far as to suggest that the President censure me personally."

He insisted that Liberia, Ethiopia and Haiti—countries long governed by Negroes—"show the greatest evidence of inept government of any I have come across."

He said that if improvements made in those three countries by Europeans and Americans were removed "there would be little or nothing left to show by way of progress and improvements.

"It is a sad spectacle, to say the least, and it leads one to the inevitable conclusion that up to now the Negro race has not shown itself capable of effective self-government."

And, he continued, this is the problem in the United States today.

"It is a problem which will prove difficult of solution," Ellender said. "Education is part of the answer, and employment training is perhaps the most important factor.

"But the problem can be solved only in time, and through the good work of the Negroes themselves, leaders and followers. It will be a hard struggle indeed."

World War I Vets Organizing Unit In Monroe

Organization of a barracks, or post, for the Veterans of World War I of the United States of America, is being mapped for the Monroe area, Marion E. Dupont, acting commander and organization chairman, has announced.

The barracks will be in Monroe and open to all veterans of World War I.

Basic goals of the organization are to coordinate activities of World War I veterans for the mutual benefit, pleasure and amusement of all and to keep alive the friendships and memories of World War I.

The local barracks is being organized under a charter granted by Congress in July of 1958, and the Department of Louisiana organized in January of 1960. There are presently 14 barracks in the state.

Veterans interested are asked to contact Marion E. Dupont, 810 Alabama Street, Monroe, or telephone FAirfax 3-8579.

Classes At Lee Being Organized

Classes at Robert E. Lee Junior High School are being organized and registration is open to new students for the 1963-1964 session, according to Principal George Riser. Students who attended Lee Junior High last year and those from Georgia Tucker, Lexington, Sherrouse and Sally Humble Elementary Schools are registered and placed in classes, Riser said. Any other students who have not registered and plan to attend Lee Junior High are urged to register so they may be placed in classes for the opening of school.

The office is open from 7 a.m. to noon, Mondays through Saturdays and will be until the close of summer school on July 27.

Southern School Officials Support Court's Civil Rights Decision

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—More than a hundred Southern law school deans and professors gave their joint support Saturday to the U.S. Supreme Court's recent civil rights decisions.

Such rights are based on justice and order as guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution and federal laws, the group said in a statement signed by faculty members of 22 law schools in 11 Southern states.

The statement, released here by Vanderbilt University and by the other 21 law schools, chided those who would disregard national law when it conflicts with state laws.

The signees criticized public officials who violate the federal law and said "They inflict a grave injury to our country at home." Furthermore, the statement continued, "These men inflict an even greater injury on our country abroad. These thoughtless persons, while not in the camp of our enemies, do our enemies' work."

A spokesman at Vanderbilt said the "statement on law and race relations" resulted from a series of informal discussions among law professors in Southern institutions over the past several weeks.

"We felt that the issues involved in the current civil rights controversy required some kind of stand from those of us who are in the teaching end of the legal profession," said the spokesman, who asked that his name be withheld.

The statement rejected as invalid all the common arguments against imposing civil rights rulings on a state against its will.

"The equality of all citizens in the exercise of civil rights is guaranteed by the Constitution and by the principles of a free people on which our government rests," the statement said.

The doctrine of interposition—a state standing between the nation and an individual citizen—was termed another form of nullification.

"Its natural consequence, secession, led to the tragedy of the Civil War," the professors contended. "Its use by the 50 states today would pull our country to pieces. It is a backward doctrine that is as out of date as feudalism."

Referring to the argument that the Supreme Court has no specific authority for invalidating the separate-but-equal doctrine for racial segregation, the statement said:

"This argument leads on to anarchy for it implies that every person is entitled to interpret the law for himself and to act accordingly."

The Supreme Court of the United States is the final interpreter of national law, and not any state Supreme Court, the professors contended. They criticized political candidates who promise to resist national laws he may not like through the use of state laws.

"The reliance on the terms of a state statute is footless in light of the constitutional provision that the laws of the United States are the supreme law of the land," the statement said. "The appeal to a campaign promise is overriden by a greater oath.

"For the successful candidate when sworn into office takes an oath with the people as witnesses to uphold the Constitution of the United States. The official who would deny controlling effect to our national law violates his oath of office as well as our fundamental law."

The statement was signed by deans and law school professors in these Southern colleges and universities:

The University of Virginia, William & Mary, University of North Carolina, Duke University, North Carolina College Law School, University of South Carolina, University of Georgia, Emory University, Miami University, Florida A&M, University of Kentucky, University of Tennessee, Vanderbilt University, University of Alabama, Louisiana State University, Tulane University, Loyola of New Orleans, University of Arkansas, University of Texas, Texas Southern University, University of Houston and Southern Methodist University.

Soviet Arms Pointed At Guantanamo

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Cuban exile report Saturday said Soviet missiles are pointed toward the U.S. Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba from a nearby camp for use in case of an invasion.

The report, by Sentinels of Liberty, said: "It is urgent to investigate the zone of Yerba de Guinea, near Guantanamo, since there is a strange movement there of Russians dressed as civilians. No one is permitted to pass on the highway where they enter and leave.

"At this place, there has been installed a base of medium-range directed missiles to be set off against the Guantanamo base in case an invasion is started there."

Sentinels of Liberty also reported 15 soldiers of Prime Minister Fidel Castro were killed June 22 by guerrillas who ambushed them in the Escambray Mountains.

"Among the dead was Horacio Rodriguez, commander of the platoon," said the report, released by Luis Conte Aguero, president in exile of the sentinels. "The bodies were buried at La Moza."

The anti-Castro organization said 104 Castro men who fought rebels in west-central Matanzas province were hospitalized with a rare disease which doctors called "fungus of the caves."

The stricken, the report said, had pursued rebels hidden in caves near Jaguey Grande.

The refugee radio "Voice of the People" said Russians had taken over a base near the Managua-Mantilla highway southeast of Havana.

"Cuban militiamen there had to give up their uniforms and were sent home," the broadcast said. "The Russians took over their post and command."

Eight refugees who arrived by small boat from Puerto Esperanzas, in westernmost Pinar del Rio province, reported Soviets are building a new military base.

"It is 10 miles from the town of Vinales," said Jesus Sanchez, a fisherman. "Civilians have been evacuated from the area. The base is being constructed rapidly at a farm known as Malas Aguas (Bad Waters)."

Sentence Starts For Girl Slapper

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UPI) — A white man convicted of slapping a Negro girl who refused to move to the rear of a bus Saturday began 30 days on the county work gang.

Albert Samuel Boozer, 36, was ordered by City Judge T. Pou Taylor to pay a $100 fine or spend 30 days at hard labor. Boozer could not pay the fine.

The girl, 15, told the court she sat toward the front of the bus when she found the rear seats filled. She said Boozer ordered her to move to the rear and slapped her when she refused.

Police arrived and arrested Boozer.

RUNNING IN TWO DIRECTIONS

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Indecision caused a man to knock out his wife here, Patrolman William Dailey reported.

Dailey said he was speeding on a police emergency call with his car's red lights flashing when he spotted a couple in the middle of the street.

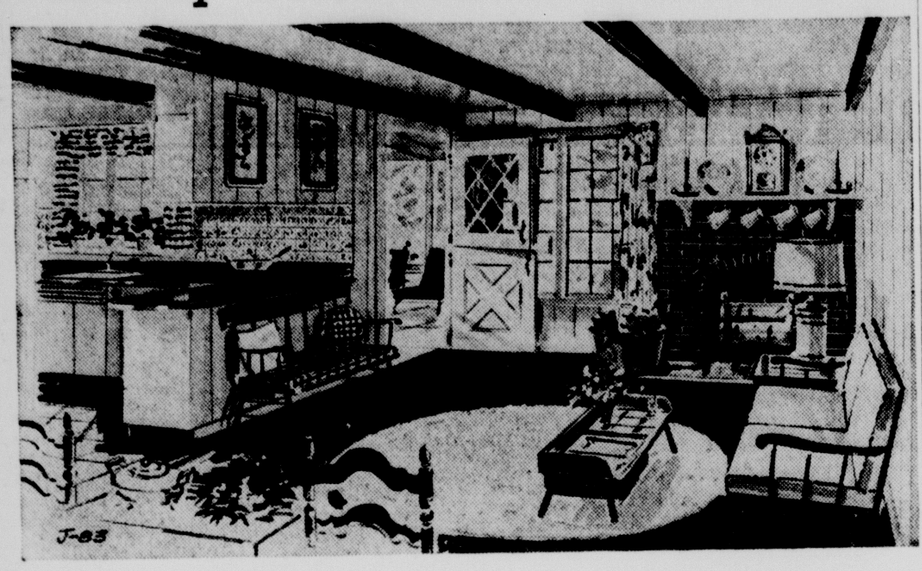

Each tried to run a different way. Then the husband tried to pull his wife by the arm the way he was going, but the sudden pull caused her to fall to the pavement.

THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK

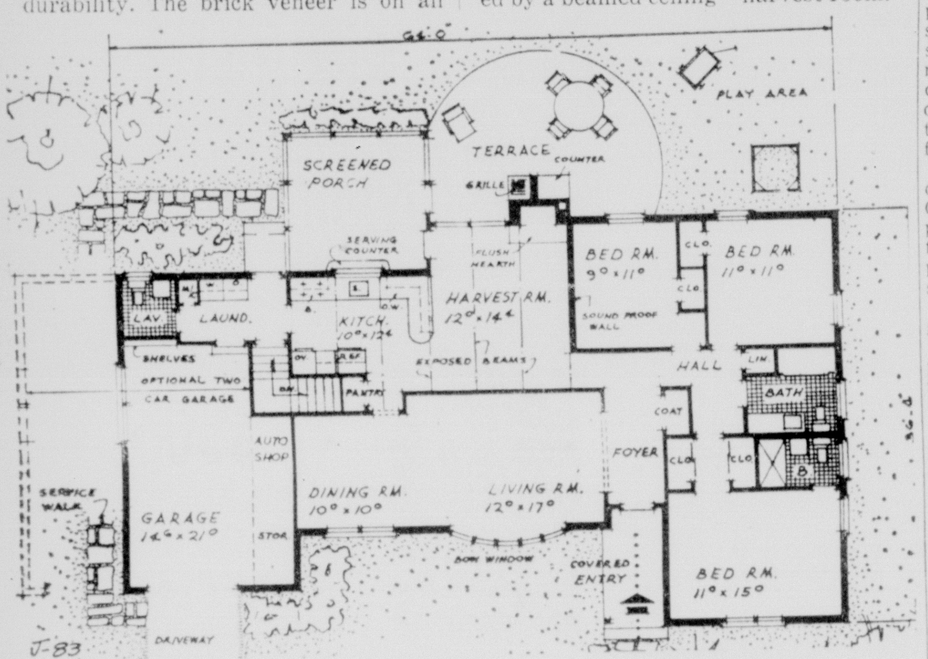

Harvest Room Reflects Early American Warmth

HARVEST ROOM: A beamed ceiling, panelled walls and a fetching corner fireplace add warmth to this comfortable family gathering area adjoining the kitchen. Dutch door leads to a screened porch and large windows overlook a rear garden terrace.

BEAUTY OF SIMPLICITY: Its straightforward design gives this three-bedroom ranch a facade of proven durability. The brick veneer is on all four sides, and wood shingles accent the gable walls. Inside, its main characteristic is a homey informality enhanced by a beamed ceiling "harvest room."

FLOOR PLAN: House contains 1,417 square feet of living area not counting the 280-square - foot garage. If desired, garage could be widened to two-car size. Living room bow window is floor-to-ceiling; screened porch has translucent plastic roof.

By JULES LOH

With an arrangement for everyday activities as warm and well designed as in today's House of the Week, a homeowner is bound to reap a rich harvest of comfortable living.

It's a cozy and inviting 12' by 14'4" family gathering place with a fireplace in one corner, a large window overlooking a garden terrace, and an exposed beam ceiling extending into the adjoining kitchen.

A screened porch is just outside a quaint Dutch door, and the combination of the three rooms — kitchen, porch and harvest room — form an informal area keyed to the tastes of those who like such things as wiener roasts, hi-fi music, going barefoot, crackling wood fires and midnight snacks.

The house, J-83 in the weekly series, is a three-bedroom ranch of traditional design with just enough early American flavor (such as the arched front portico) to complement the warmth of its fetching interior. It has brick veneer on all four sides with wood shingles accenting the gable walls. The simplicity of the exterior design perhaps gives it its greatest charm.

Best of all, the house is well within the reach of modest budgets. Its living area is only 1,417 square feet and over-all dimensions are 64' wide by 36'4" deep.

York's plans call for a garage of single-car width, but it's extra long to provide room for storage shelves and has a side alcove for a work bench, tricycles, garden hose and such. However, the garage could be widened to two-car size without hurting the architectural balance of the house.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

Working within limited space is the sternest test you can impose on an architect, and York has demonstrated no lack of skill in this design.

He has provided clear zoning of formal, informal and sleeping areas, excellent circulation to each of the areas from the central foyer, and has kept economy in mind throughout.

For example, the fireplace has a three-in-one chimney which also accommodates the furnace and outdoor grille flues. Another money saving detail is the back-to-back plumbing of the two full bathrooms. And the lavatory in the housekeeping area is on the same plumbing stack with the laundry. There are other less obvious economy measures, such as standard lumber lengths in all the rooms.

By combining the living and dining rooms the architect has produced a sweeping 27-foot formal zone enhanced by a floor-to-ceiling bow window. The impressive expanse is visible from the foyer.

In the bedroom wing York has made maximum use of every square foot. A soundproof wall isolates the small bedrooms; the other two have natural sound-proofing. All the bedrooms have adequate closets, and the master bedroom closets are in a vestibule, leaving the wall area free for furniture arranging.

Clearly the crowning achievement of the house, however, is the daily living area.

The screened porch, an integral part of this area, has a translucent plastic roof to allow natural light into the kitchen. Also featured is a serving counter which provides handy access from the kitchen. The Dutch door adds its element of flavor, and don't overlook the large pantry in the kitchen.

The laundry-mud room adjoining the kitchen serves as a "decontamination chamber," to use York's phrase. This is where you stop before entering the house proper after working in the yard or garage or basement — and it's an ideal location for the lavatory.

J-83 STATISTICS

Satellite To Aid In Eclipse Info

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Tiros 6 weather satellite will help provide special forecasts for scientists during the solar eclipse July 20, the weather bureau said Saturday.

The eclipse will be total along a 60-mile corridor extending from Japan across Alaska, Canada, and Maine to the Middle Atlantic. It will be visible as a partial blackout in all other states, weather permitting, except Hawaii.

The weather bureau said Tiros 6 is scheduled to photograph the area of totality throughout the entire period of the eclipse. Cloud maps based on its photographs will be available at weather stations.

TRIPPED OVER THE PAST

MAUMEE, Ohio (AP) — Ricky Gulvas, 15, appears to have stumbled, literally, over a relic of the War of 1812.

He stubbed his toe while playing along the banks of the Maumee River near his home. Looking down, he found a half-buried cannonball. The spot is across the river from the site of Fort Meigs, and Muamee historians think the shot may have been fired during a siege a century and a half ago.

Church OK's Protestants' Merger Plan

DENVER (AP) — The United Church of Christ authorized Saturday development of a plan to merger six Protestant denominations into a single church, possibly with as many as 25 million members.

The action came in a resolution passed by acclamation during the Fourth General Synod of the church, a two million member body created by a merger of Congregational Christian Churches and the Evangelical and Reformed churches.

Other churches involved in preliminary discussions of the union are the Methodist, United Presbyterian, Protestant Episcopal, Disciples of Christ and Evangelical United Bretheren.

The resolution is the first approved by any of the denominations to call for actual development of a merger plan.

Its passage came after one of the United Church of Christ representatives in the unity discussions said that progress in two years "has gone far faster than any of us would have dreamed at this start."

The spokesman, the Rev. David G. Coldwell of Washington, D.C., said he personally believes it will be possible to determine within four or five years whether a union of the churches will be possible or not.

Preliminary meetings were held in Washington last year and in Oberlin, Ohio., earlier this year.

The resolution is no way committed the United Church of Christ to final approval of a merger.

The Rev. Mr. Colwell, discussing the Synod action with a reporter, called it "tremendously significant." He said actual consideration of a merger plan cannot begin for several years because governing bodies of the other churches involved must authorize it and some do not meet for a year or two.

Dr. Ben Mohr Herbster, president of the United Church of Church of Christ, appointed 10 persons, three of them Negroes, to conduct the new race relations program voted Friday by the synod.

An additional appointee, a Negro, will be named later.

The synod voted to allow expansion of the committee to 11 members from the nine originally authorized.

The committee was formed under a resolution saying the church must become "radically committed to the struggle of the non-whites" for racial equality.

THIS DUCK, hatched with four webbed feet, is a special attraction to Tim Ellinghuysen, 6, Plainview, Minn., farm boy. SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Battle Is Raging Over Gas Market

Firing the latest barrage was Gulf Pacific Pipeline Co., Houston, subsidiary of Tennessee Gas Transmission. It fears Transwestern Pipeline Co., and El Paso Natural Gas Co., which already serve the market, are trying through the Federal Power Commission to set up deals that would knock its proposed Texas-California pipeline project into a cocked hat.

For this reason, Gulf Pacific has asked the Commission to consolidate pending Transwestern and El Paso applications with its own so the issues at stake can be aired publicly and swiftly.

The Commission has made no decision yet. In the meantime, it is writing the epitaph of a $151 million joint plan by El Paso and Colorado Interstate Gas Co. to pipe 475 million cubic feet a day into California.

This decision, made last May 1 but still being put in final draft form, seemed to give Gulf Pacific a new competitive lease on life. But Gulf Pacific now sees fresh dangers from El Paso and Transwestern.

SIGNED CONTRACT

To keep the picture in focus, it must be remembered that Gulf Pacific has signed a contract with Southern California Edison Co. and the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power to deliver them 865 million cubic feet of gas a day before July 1, 1965. This is contingent upon FPC approval of Gulf Pacific's pipeline project.

Edison and the city are now served by either El Paso or deliveries, even though Pacific Lighting Gas Supply Co. and its subsidiaries. Hence if Gulf Pacific can get a foothold, it stands to take over a multi-million dollar business.

Gulf Pacific told the FPC that as it sees it, El Paso and Transwestern want to step up their gas deliveries, even though Pacific Lighting can't use the gas right now, to pre-empt the market and keep Edison and the city from fulfilling their contract with Gulf Pacific.

It suggested that El Paso and Transwestern were indulging in delaying tactics because, if the Gulf Pacific project does not win FPC approval by June 30, 1964, Edison and the city will be free to walk out on their contract. "Time is of the essence," it added, and, saying this is but another reason why all pending applications should be consolidated.

THREE WEEKS RECESS

The FPC began hearings on the Transwestern application June 25 but recessed them for three weeks while it weighs Gulf Pacific's request.

Gulf Pacific filed its application early last spring. On June 7 it asked for a prompt hearing because the Commission staff was nearing the end of its review of the proposed project.

It told Commission that the Transwestern-El Paso applications called for gas supplies "obviously in excess of Pacific Lighting's requirements for its firm customers." It appears, it added, "that the proposed additional service is designed, at least in part, to meet requirements of Gulf Pacific's customers, Edison and the department (city).

"Gulf Pacific submits that Pacific Lighting and their affiliated suppliers may be buying an over supply of gas for the purpose of preventing Edison and the Department from obtaining a firm long-term daily supply from independent sources. Pacific Lighting has so acted in the past with regard to California - produced gas."

The next episode probably will be written by the FPC.

TRIES TO FLY KITE

JFK Enjoys Long Weekend Vacation

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy took to the water again Saturday in his long weekend vacation, and even tried flying a kite.

He didn't do so well—the kite dove into the water from a 50 foot altitude. A Coast Guard boat retrieved it.

And the model yacht, a gift of Italian President Antonio Segni, which the President sailed Friday along the shore near the Kennedy compound, got another trial.

The presidential party was so large it took a fleet of boats to ferry all the members of the family and their children and guests from the pier to the Kennedy compound to Lewis Bay, where they had a picnic lunch ashore on Great Island and the children played in the sand. Ideal weather prevailed.

Among those in the party were the President's wife, Jacqueline, and their daughter, Caroline, 5, and the President's brothers, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Others were aboard other boats owned by the family. The fleet of Kennedy craft was surrounded by Coast Guard, Secret Service and private craft with sightseers.

Sen. Kennedy water skied as well as swam, and took a spill during a fast tow behind the yacht Marlin.

Others in the party also water skied.

The attorney general and one of his children dropped over the side of the President's own sloop, Victura, and clatching ropes, were towed for a distance on the way back to the family landing.

It was at Great Island that the kite appeared, with the President's friend, K. Lemoyne Billings, New York advertising executive, manning the string. It was a big, yellow, black and red kite with a birdlike shape. Billings got it aloft on his second try at the end of a rod and fishing line.

Then the President took a hand and the kite promptly sliced into the water. Kennedy gave up and sat down to smoke a cigar in an easy chair on the sunny fantail of his yacht.

On the President's return to the family pier, the Coast Guard headed off two boats carrying White House correspondents and photographers, keeping them a half mile away from the dock.

But tourist boats slipped past the line as did a small speedboat containing some Boston newsmen who were able to approach closely to the presidential party.

Kuchel Doubts NASA Authority On Contractors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., Saturday questioned the authority of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to "dictate" the choice of subcontractors on space projects.

He said he had asked NASA Administrator James E. Webb the extent to which the agency directs prime contractors to select specific subcontractors on projects financed with public funds.

The Senate assistant Republican leader said he had received repeated complaints of the practice from California.

He said he also had called the complaints to the attention of Comptroller General Joseph Campbell and Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., chairman of the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Federal Expenditures.

In a letter to Webb, Kuchel said that use of contracting powers by the NASA to specify subcontractors might hvae "elements of favoritism or undesirable political influence." He added that NASA's prime contractors should be encouraged as much as possible to seek competitive bidding by subcontractors.

Neutralist Says Reds Attacking

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Gen. Kong Le reported Saturday the pro-Communist Pathet Lao made two attacks on his neutralist forces in the Plaine des Jarres area Friday.

One attack was an infantry assault in two-platoon strength that was beaten off, he said, and the other a two-hour artillery bombardment of a neutralist hill position. He said three neutralists were wounded.

Iowa Falls Off Liquor Wagon Without Notice

The general reaction in this "bourbon drinking country" was one of release — not so much from the 47-year long ban on sales of liquor-by-the-drink—as to the freedom of ordering a drink without checking first to be sure there were no vice squad members lurking in the corner.

"Great, I won't have to carry my suitcase with me any more," one patron said, referring to the long standing habit of lugging a bottle from which to pour a clendestine drink providing set-ups could be had.

Gone also was the necessity to carry a jug to a "key club" to be stamped with the members number. From these bottles "key club" operators have for years poured drinks, charging only for the set-up and service."

For the most part the prices were as high as for drinks now moving legally across the bar from the tavern's supply of hooch.

The departure from Iowa's old tradition of "voting dry and drinking wet" was slow starting. For many communities, including this capital city, it will be a week or two before any licensed taverns open.

Only 94 places — three of them railroads — received licenses for the first day the $100 to $1,000 per year permits were issued. More will come Monday and in the weeks ahead.

FOR HIS SERVICES

Navy To Honor Hawaii-Born Radio Operator

HONOLULU (UPI)—A Hawaii-born Japanese, vilified as a traitor even by his friends after the bombs fell on Pearl Harbor, will be honored this week by the U.S. Navy for the service he performed as a radio operator for many months after the sneak attack.

David Kiyo Enomoto will receive a certificate designating him as an honorary naval communicator. The presentation will be made July 10 by Capt. Glover P. Ferguson, chief of staff of the 14th naval district.

On Dec. 7, 1941, martial law was declared in Hawaii and all Japanese were considered suspects — especially radio operators.

But at Puunene Airfield, there was a small naval squadron that had no communications facilities. The commanding officer, Lt. (now Captain) Thomas Softh, knew Enomoto.

Moving quickly, before the Army could begin its roundup of Japanese, Softh sent a detachment of armed marines to Enomoto's home and gave him only a few minutes to load his transmitter and himself aboard a truck to be smuggled back to the air station.

There the former maintenance man for Kahului railroad company took an oath of allegiance and became the station's only radio link with the outside world for 15 months.

He kept the squadron in touch with areas ranging from Corregidor in the Philippines to naval headquarters in Washington — while his friends suspected that he had dropped from sight only because he had gone over to the enemy.

There were two favorite rumors while Enomoto was on the base, hidden even from most of the Marine guards.

Some people said he had boarded a Japanese submarine and gone to Japan after assisting in the attack on Pearl Harbor. Others said he was hiding out in the hills of Maui, supplying Japan with vital war information.

But Enomoto was spending his time at his radio transmitter, maintaining communications and even finding time to train some Navy men to take over. He went back to his old job with the railroad during the war and is a superintendent now.

Looking back over the episode, Enomoto, 53, recalls that he was "proud," but scared that some "trigger - happy Marine" might end his secret career.

Enomoto still is one of the best operators in Hawaii — but the transmitter which served him so well during the war years is finishing out its days in his garage.

Union Heads Will Reject Wirtz Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Union officials will turn thumbs down on Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz' last-ditch compromise effort to avert a nationwide railway strike, sources said Saturday.

In St. Louis, H. E. Gilbert, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, publicly declared he would reject the Wirtz proposal on grounds it would amount to compulsory arbitration. There was no immediate comment from Wirtz.

Wirtz has asked both sides in the long and thorny work rules dispute to reply at 4 p.m. EDT today to his proposal that two key issues be submitted to binding negotiation and that a two-year truce be called.

RESISTANCE EXPECTED

All indications were that the carriers would accept but that leaders of the five unions would buck.

A breakdown of negotiations would mean the railroads could put the controversial work rules into effect next Thursday, as scheduled, and the unions could call a strike.

President Kennedy has made it clear that a nationwide tie-up would force him to go to Congress for emergency legislation to deal with the situation.

Union sources contended that the Wirtz proposal, which would allow Asst. Labor Secretary James G. Reynolds to direct settlement, smacks too much of compulsory arbitration.

"It's something we just can't live with," one official said.

He indicated that some of the Wirtz proposals such as a two-year study of the work rule problems would be acceptable to the unions if the arbitration approach were eliminated.

If, as expected, the unions turn down the proposal, Wirtz will give a final report to the President on Monday. This would trigger an administration drive to speed special strike-stopping legislation to Congress, possibly on Wednesday.

Wirtz has declined to say what form the bill might take but it could require compulsory arbitration, seizure of the railroads, or a combination of the two.

Attend Assembly

Seven members of the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses are attending the "Around-the-World International Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses for 1963," which will climax today in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, it was announced by N. Panasenko, presiding minister.

Illinois Group, Including Negro, Cuts Visit Short

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — An Illinois Civil War Centennial delegation, including a Negro state representative, said Saturday it cut short a visit to a Mississippi battlefield rather than face segregation.

The delegation flew to Vicksburg Wednesday in Gov. Otto Kerner's state plane. Clyde Walton, State Historian, Ralph G. Newman, Chicago, and State Rep. Corneal Davis, a Chicago Democrat were the delegates.

Walton said Saturday that when the delegation learned in advance that segregation would be practiced against Davis, dean of Illinois House Negroes, the delegation decided against staying for three days as originally planned.

VAST COMPLEX

Red Guerrillas Trenches Found

BIEN HOA, South Viet Nam, (AP)—"This place looks like a combination of Normandy and Biak Island," aU.S. military adviser said Saturday.

"The Communist guerrillas who occupy these trenches and tunnels haven't got near the firepower of the Germans or the Japanese, but they will be just as tough to move."

The American, attached to Viet Nam's 5th Division, referred to a fantastic network of Viet Cong fortifications discovered in the last week in the jungles only 25 miles northeast of Saigon.

First to come to light was a vast complex of tunnels, reputed to stretch back at least 15 miles from the Saigon River. A Vietnamese armored column found the tunnels by chance when a tank sank into the earth roof of a subterranean supply depot.

Government infantrymen have started probing and destroying the labyrinth from the surface, but so far have covered only the fringes. The danger of mines and ambush deters a direct assault.

It has not been determined how many guerrillas man the communication tunnels and the depots and assembly centers they link. Government troops blow up the entrances they discover after pouring in tear gas, smoke and other chemicals.

Guerrilla snipers occasionally pop up from an opening and fire. These snipers have killed at least 10 men, including a U.S. adviser, and have wounded 50. But the smell of dead entombed in the blown tunnels testifies that guerrillas are dying.

An equally intricate system of trenchworks, deeper in the jungle, was the armored column's second discovery. The trenches looked as if they had been used as an overnight rest area by guerrilla bands on long marches.

"They were deserted when we got there," the American officer said, "but that doesn't mean the guerrillas won't come back."

The fortified area covers about 20 square miles. It lies south of Ben Cat, where the jungle is taking over long abandoned rubber plantations.

President Ngo Dinh Diem's U.S.-backed government has long been aware that the Communists were using the area as one of their major bases. But only in recent months has it felt its armed forces were strong enough to move in. A long, tough job lies ahead.

The tunnels are reputed to link dozens of caverns sheltering armed units and political cadres.

The tunnels average about nine feet below ground. In some cases are only three-feet high, just enough for a man to crawl through. Clean air is drawn underground through concealed bamboo pipes.

Advisers believe that guerrillas built the tunnels and trenchworks with the help of the local population, regorded as virtually 100 per cent loyal to the Communists. The figure the work took about eight years.

IN NON-PROFIT GROUPS

Architect Thinks Bet Being Missed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Noverre Musson is an architect, and he thinks many businessmen, builders and non-profit organizations alike are missing a bet.

Musson is senior partner of the firm of Tibbals, Crumley and Musson, Columbus, Ohio. He has won a first prize in a National Association of Home Builders competition for residences and is a lecturer and writer on architectural matters. His firm recently designed and executed the $5 million First Community Village, Columbus, as a residence community for the elderly.

It is in this field, he said on a recent visit here, that he believes private builders, church and labor union groups, and non-profit organizations can find much to develop.

"Even counting the activities in public housing—municipal and state groups—plus all private sources, we have built only about 100,000 units in recent years," he said.

"The population increase in this age bracket (over 65) is running to about 500,000 persons a year. Just to keep even would call for the construction of 25,000 units a year; a quarter to a half billion dollars a year should be going into providing this housing."

Good housing for the elderly, Musson said, is a far cry from the "old people's home" or from the back-bedroom where in past years many old people lived out their span of years.

"Remember," he said, "These must be designed as places to live, not as places to go and die."

The architect finds many ways to make living easier for the older person, Musson said.

"Lighting is designed for lack of glare," he said. "And allowances have to be made for guarding against too much echo in big rooms; many hearing aids magnify background noises.

"The very elderly have to be protected against drafts, yet many of them do not like air conditioning. They need to be warm in the winter, but not chilled in the summers."

In his most recent project, radiant heating was provided for the floors, but radiators were provided for general heating; the floor operation was designed only to keep things warm underfoot, not to furnish all the heating for the living unit.

"Elderly persons are more likely to lose their balance," he said, "particularly when ill.

"In the bathrooms, we allow for such things as extra firm anchoring of towel bars—something a person might grasp if he became ill or faint. We try to provide more things to hang on to, and to avoid sharp projections. We have as few protruding corners as possible."

No longer does the idea of having such communities "out in the country" make any sense, Musson said. They must be located within a reasonable distance of shopping and of transportation.

Tennessee Toll For July Fourth Climbs To 17

NASHVILLE (UPI) — The Tennessee holiday death toll had climbed to 17 as the 102-hour July 4th weekend passed the halfway mark Saturday.

Ten of those killed died in traffic accidents since the start of the holiday period at 6 p.m. Wednesday. Six other persons drowned, and one person fell to his death from a second-story window.

Four Columbia teen-agers, killed in a head-on car collision near Lewisburg Thursday: Woody R. McCrary, 19; Hubert Prince, 19; Jimmy Gilliam, 19, and Brenda Kelly, 18.

Two women whose car crashed into a bus at Knoxville Friday: Mrs. Ruth Underwood, 46, and Sara Croushorn, 58, both of Loyall, Ky.

James A. Wissing, 19, a Marine stationed at Millington, who died in a car crash Friday near Brownesville.

Charley J. Bates, 42, of Henning, victim in a two-car collision Wednesday night near Ripley.

Minister Says Tories Trailing Behind Laborites

LONDON (UPI) — Chancellor Maudling said Saturday the Conservative party is trailing far behind its Labor opposition but he said it was not because of the six and security scandals rocking the country.

Instead, he said, the Conservatives simply are "not with it" in appealing to the younger generation. Maudling, generally expected to succeed Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, said the gap could be closed by a new "vigorous and sustained political offensive."

At the same time, Labor party Leader Harold Wilson was telling a political rally at Oakengates that Macmillan's government seemed "singularly reluctant to have the truth disclosed" on the alleged security lapses arising from the scandals.

Maudling said the Conservatives' difficulties began long before War Minister John Profumo touched off a major scandal by admitting he had lied about his relations with call girl Christine Keeler, 21, who was having an affair with Soviet naval attache Eugene Ivanov at the same time.

He said the Conservatives must not allow "current distractions to obscure the real reasons for our difficulties."

Leopard Might Become Extinct

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Audubon Society Saturday appealed to American women to stop buying leopard skin coats, claiming the spotted animal may become extinct because of poachers in Africa.

"Although leopards are protected by law in most African nations," the society said, "poaching has gotten out of hand. Leopards are now being shot, speared and trapped at a rate 80 per cent faster than their capacity to reproduce. Unless the slaughter is checked, the species is doomed."

The statement was made by Cal W. Buchheister, society president, in a signed editorial in the current issue of the Audubon magazine.

Pope Schedules Weekly Audiences

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI will hold his weekly general audiences every Saturday at noon, the Vatican announced Saturday.

General audiences are open to all, but tickets must be obtained in advance through churches in Rome and Vatican agencies.

Seven Are Killed In Mississippi During Holiday

By United Press International

At least seven persons were killed in Mississippi accidents during the long July 4th holiday weekend, a United Press International survey showed Saturday.

The latest fatalities reported were William Brannon, 55, and Jerry Lee Hamilton, 3, both Negroes, who were killed Friday night when a pickup truck went out of control on a county road near Oxford.

Mattie Joye Pollard, a four-year-old Negro child, was killed Friday when she darted across Highway 61 south of Vicksburg in the path of an automobile.

At Baldwyn, an 18-month-old infant, Kathy Moneak Chism, was killed Friday afternoon when a car driven by Mary Ann Pope, 22, rolled over her.

Trudell Palmer, 12, drowned Thursday in Buffalo Bayou near Woodville after diving into nine-foot water.

Walter Goodman, a 55-year-old Negro, was killed Thursday when he was struck by lightning while chopping cotton in a field in the Glen Allan community near Greenville.

Appeal Of Court Order Is Planned On Segregation

MEMPHIS (UPI)—A U.S. district court order upholding a gradual plan for desegregation of city schools will be appealed, Negro leaders said Saturday.

Attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said they would appeal the order to the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

The order was signed Friday by Judge Marion S. Boyd, putting into writing a verbal opinion he gave May 24.

The school board began enacting gradual desegregation here two years ago, and more than 50 Negroes attended classes in grades one through three of several predominantly white schools this year.

Negroes, however, objected to the plan's minority transfer provision and sought an injunction against the board last month.

British Paper Attacks JFK On Trip To Europe

LONDON (UPI)—The Daily Express, in an acid attack on President Kennedy, said Saturday his trip to Europe only flattered the Germans, further infuriated France and left a dubious impression in Britain.

Chief correspondent Rene MacColl said Kennedy's "remarkable European invasion" was ill-advised and ill-time and that it was prompted only by the "calamitous fall in his popularity at home."

The Daily Express, which often voices an anti-American attitude in its special reports, is owned by Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook. Coincidentally or not he is reported to have lunched Friday with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Why should Kennedy have "insisted on deserting the White House, against a quantity of good advice, at a time when pressures and problems were piling up around him at home?" Maccoll asked.

He answered his own question: "... The calamitous fall in his popularity, as shown by both private and public polls, among the electorate" showed "an eye-catching diversionary operation of glamour and color was urgently necessary. Thus—Europe."

The Germans "screamed their appreciation in the hysterically rhythmic chantings" for U.S. aid and dreamed of the day "when they too will possess nuclear weapons," he wrote.

Kennedy's German speeches "had harsh anti-De Gaulle overtones . . . which revealed how sharply he resents De Gaulle's intransigence towards American polices and the Frenchman's massive threat to the American master plan for Europe's future."

"Repeatedly by inference Kennedy stressed and undoubtedly deepened the existing U.S.-French split," he wrote.

Budapest Envoy Seen Possible

BUDAPEST (UPI) — The United States may name a minister to Hungary next month, healing a breach dating from the 1956 revolution, informed Hungarian sources said Saturday.

A charge d'affaires has led the U.S. mission here since the Hungarian revolt of November, 1956, and Joszef Cardinal Mindszenty took refuge in the American legation.

The sources said the minister's first task would be the smoothing over — and possible settlement— of Mindszenty's position and the resulting frictions. The Roman Catholic primate has lived in self-exile within the legation since Nov. 4, 1956.

Contacts aimed at freeing the cardinal were established between the Vatican and Hungarian government some time before the death of Pope John XXIII last month. Vatican intermediaries to the Hungarian government were Vienna's Franziskus Cardinal Koenig and Msgr. Agostino Casaroli. They also met Mindszenty in his "exile" on the third floor of the legation building.

DEER HAVE A CHEW

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Tobacco chewing deer?

Yes, complained farmers in the Trammel community. Irate farmers were busy this spring trying to fence out or chase away wild deer they said nibbled tobacco plants in both the plant beds and the fields.

Goldwater's 4th Grandchild Born

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater's fourth grandchild was born Friday.

Mrs. Thomas Ross, daughter of the Arizona Republican, gave birth to a 7-pound, 13-ounce girl. Goldwater and his wife visited mother and child soon afterward at the Little Company of Mary Hospital.

Dr. and Mrs. Ross have three other children, Carolyn, 5; Cynthia, 4, and Thomas Michael, 2. Ross is a resident surgeon at Harbor General Hospital in this Los Angeles suburb.

DWARF THE PAST

Heavy Petroleum Demands Expected

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Demand for petroleum products the next two decades is expected to dwarf consumption of the past.

Experts estimate total demand between now and 1980 will approximate 270 billion barrels. World consumption since the start of the industry more than 100 years ago has totaled only 140 billion barrels.

Participants in last month's 6th World Petroleum Congress in Germany were confident this sharp increase in consumption can be met.

M. J. Rathbone, the keynote speaker and board chairman of the Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), said some people might be concerned because the 270-billion barrel estimate is not far below current world reserves of 300 billion.

"I do not share this concern," he said. "Ever since petroleum became a major fuel, proved reserves have been rising from one year to the next, through new discoveries and better methods of recovery, even faster than the increase in oil production."

Rathbone said there were 14 barrels of proved reserves for each barrel of production in the 1930s.

"Today the ratio is better than 30 to 1," he said. "It seems certain enough new proved reserves will be developed to provide for the rising oil consumption which we anticipate for many years to come."

Rathbone said new fields will be discovered and the percentage of recovery of oil in fields already known will be increased. He said refining technology will keep pace with production and meet product requirements of the future.

"We are constantly finding ways of 'squeezing the spone' a little harder and recovering a greater percentage of the oil which we know is there," he said.

The world industry now is recovering only about 35 per cent of the oil in existing reservoirs but scientists at the Frankfurt conference expressed hope research projects under way and being developed can boost this to as high as 60 per cent.

"This progress already has come to a point where the industry might well claim reserves one half again as great as those now stated," Rathbone said.

"Even this may be conservative in view of the still more advanced recovery techniques that will be developed."

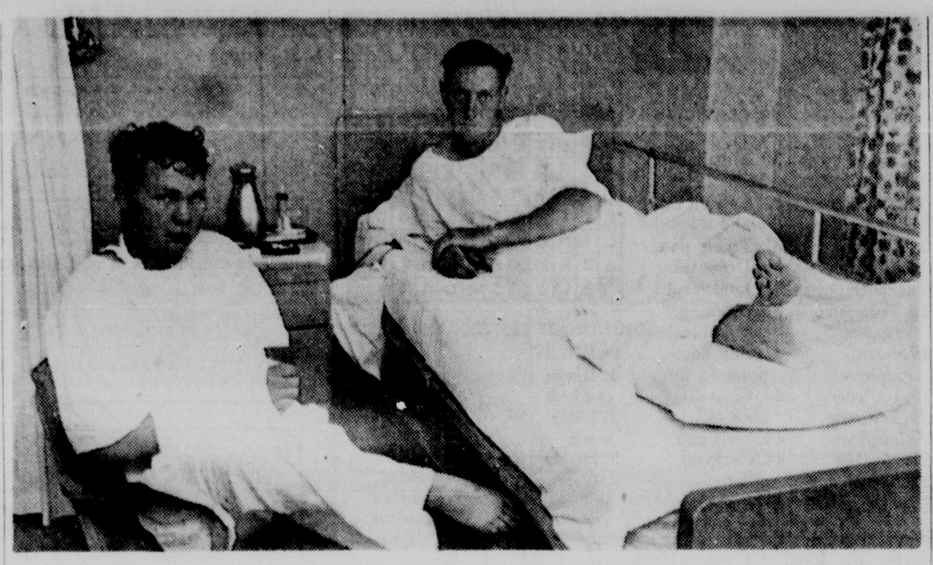

Rathbone acknowledged, however, the distant future probably will require use of petroleum which can be extracted from the oil shale and tar sands deposits of such areas as Colorado and Canada. The Canadian tar sands alone are believed to hold from 100 to 300 billion barrels of oil.

"All this will make continuing demands on our research, as well as our capacity to invest, but these are challenges which the industry is prepared to meet."

Integrationists Plan New Demonstrations

BALTIMORE (AP) — Integrationists plan renewed demonstrations today in protest of segregation at a privately owned amusement park in suburban Baltimore.

About 280 persons, including several nationally known clergymen, were arrested at Gwynn Oak Amusement Park on Independence Day in a massive demonstration sponsored by the Congress of Racial Equality and other organizations.

Most of the demonstrators were white. Among them were the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, chief executive officer of the United Presbyterian Church, New York; Bishop Daniel Corrigan of New York, director of the Home Department of the National Council of Protestant Episcopal Churches, and the Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., a chaplain at Yale University.

Walter Carter, former Baltimore chairman of CORE, said the pastors of Baltimore churches have been asked to urge their congregations Sunday to join another mass march on the park in Woodlawn that afternoon.

The Rev. Marion C. Bascom, pastor of the Douglass Memorial Church in Baltimore, said demonstrators would assemble for a rally at 3 p.m. at the Metropolitan Methodist Church, the same staging point used for the Fourth of July demonstration.

About 100 demonstrators were released from jail Thursday, after posting bond on trespass charges, and another 175 were released on their own recognizance Friday night.

All of those appearing before Magistrate C. John Serio Friday night at the Woodlawn police station waived preliminary hearings and asked for jury trials in Circuit Court. No dates have been set.

Seven Baltimore area clergymen among those arrested have announced formation of an "ad hoc committee to desegregate Gwynn Oak Park." Ad hoc means devotion to a single purpose.

James F. Price, one of three brothers who own the 68-acre park northwest of Baltimore, says the park has not been integrated for economic reasons.

"We are in an area where the whites have not accepted Negroes," he said. "It is a matter of economic survival."

Maryland's trespass law, the basis for arrests of integrationists, forbids anyone from entering another's property without permission.

Communist Lao Troops Stage Daring Attack

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Communist Pathet Lao troops staged a daring daylight attack behind the neutralist lines Friday, but the neutralists drove them back, it was announced Saturday.

The attack apparently was aimed at seizing control of the positions protecting the neutralists' supply lines, according to a report received here from neutralist commander Gen. Kong Le.

Kong Le said the attack took place on the Plain of Jars, where Pathet Lao and neutralist units have been fighting sporadically for many weeks.

BLUEPRINT OF UNITY

De Gaulle Policy Isolates France

BONN, Germany (AP) — Once the leader of the European unity movement, France today finds itself isolated by President Charles de Gaulle's insistence on his blueprint for unity. Even his close ally, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, won't go along.

Last January Adenauer traveled to Paris and signed a treaty with De Gaulle. It provided for close cooperation on European matters. That was an unfortunate moment for unity—De Gaulle had just announced he would not let Britain join the European Common Market.

Adenauer was criticized for signing just then. He strengthened the suspicion that he was much less eager to work with Britain than some members of his Cabinet—notably Ludwig Erhard, the man now scheduled to succeed him.

Adenauer and De Gaulle are considered "little Europeans." They like the Common Market as it is — France, West Germany, Italy, Holland Belgium and Luxembourg. All are Continental countries.

It could have been expected that Adenauer would swing West Germany toward De Gaulle's idea of non-Continental Britain and the distant United States, but distinctly separate and going its own way. It didn't work out.

An energetic generation of younger men and a set of stubborn economic facts made it impossible.

Leaders of the four other nations in the Common Market have pressed hard for contacts with Britain—regular consultations at least, so that policies do not draw too far apart. In Germany Erhard, 66, and Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder, 52, are sympathetic.

Less than two weeks ago West Germany echoed to cheers for President Kennedy. He is a man with a reputation in Europe for advocating the broadest kind of European and Atlantic unity.

At the same time it was becoming clear that West Germany could not now move closer to France on the main practical problem worrying the Common Market these days—farm prices.

France wants lower prices within the Common Market. West German farmers don't want to give up a pfennig and Adenauer supports them. France wants a bigger share of the Common Market for its grain and beef. West Germany doesn't want to antagonize its suppliers from outside the market area.

So when Adenauer and De Gaulle got together for their first talks under the new treaty last week they made no visible progress. Contacts with Britain were not even mentioned in their final statement.

Sugar Disposal Arrests Made

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — The Harrison County sheriff's office Saturday announced the arrest of six men and two teen-age boys in connection with the alleged theft and disposal of over five tons of sugar.

An investigation by Sheriff's Sgts. Gene Evans and H. S. Broachard overlapped into neighboring Hancock and Stone counties and led to the discovery of 2,540 pounds of the 10,600 pounds of sugar reported stolen from two grocery stores and a dairy products company in Harrison County.

Booked on three counts of breaking and entering and grand larceny were Bennie Necaise, 21, and Jessie R. Cuevas, 19, both of Gulfport, and two North Gulfport juveniles whose names were not released.

Booked on charges of accessory after the fact of grand larceny were Rodney Lewis Cuevas, 21, and Lonnie Cuevas, 20, both of rural Harrison County; Joseph N. Ladner, 49, a Hancock County farmer; and J. D. DeDeaux, 27, a farmer of near Perkinston in Stone County.

Starvation Threat Lingers In Bali

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Starvation still threatens 300,000 Balinese survivors of Mt. Agung's mid-March eruption, the Antara news agency said Saturday.

Antara said many who lived through the eruption that cost some 1,500 lives are suffering from malnutrition.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
When you buy detergents and bleaches in large plastic bottles . . . don't throw the empties away. Use them to make a game of "ten pins" for your children. Partially fill each jug with sand or water and replace the cap. Set them in the usual manner and use a large rubber ball to knock them over!

Our children play this game in our driveway. We put chalk marks where each pin sets and for the foul line. It's a new game to them and costs nothing out of the budget.

Mrs. William Sedor

SEW IT YOURSELF

DEAR HELOISE:
About those nylon dish rags you have made so famous . . . Here's the way I make mine:

Cut six or eight inches off the edge of a strip (width) of nylon (this will be 72 inches long).

Take a needle and some quite heavy thread and begin sewing and gathering the strip in the middle along the full 72-inch length. When you get to the end of the 72 inches draw it as tightly as you can and fasten it well.

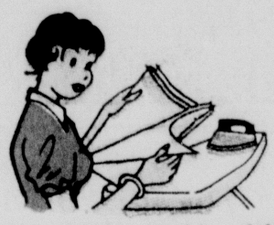

This makes a beautiful pompom or a pretty bow for your packages and can be used as gifts.

But it can also be used as a pot cleaner in your own kitchen. And it's great to wash dishes with.

LINEN NAPKINS

DEAR HELOISE:
We use linen napkins all the time in our house. Instead of sprinkling napkins one at a time for ironing I dip every third napkin in warm water, place it between two dry napkins, fold them and then roll them all up together. Let sit awhile and then iron.

MISTER BEATER

DEAR HELOISE:
We always keep from five to 10 pennies and a few nickels in our car glove compartment. It's very handy when you don't have the correct change for the parking meters!

COLOR IN YOUR LIFE

DEAR HELOISE:
For people who use color rinses on their hair and have no rubber gloves: I protect my hands from the dye by using two plastic bags!

Your hands will work freely inside the bags while you are applying the color rinse. When you are through you can throw the bags away. Result: No dyed hands.

Bright Eyes

FOR THE BIRDS

DEAR HELOISE:
We had birds constantly invading our patio with twigs and string while trying to build their nests.

I took a few small baby-food cans, washed them thoroughly, removed the labels and hung them by strings from the rafters. You can also use the lids by punching them full of holes.

The bright metal keeps the birds away and the cans may be taken down when nesting season is over.

This is a good idea for fruit trees, too. It keeps the birds from ruining apricots, peaches, and so forth.

FOR COFFEE LOVERS

DEAR HELOISE:
I keep a sponge wet with about two tablespoons of liquid detergent in a jar on my drainboard. I use this to wash out my coffee cups and then rinse them with hot water and let them drain dry.

We drink coffee so often that this saves much time. The same cups are ready for use next time without our even getting more down from the cabinet.

BISCUIT SCOOP

DEAR HELOISE:
When in a hurry and I want to have drop biscuits for a quick meal . . . I grease my ice-cream scoop, dip it in my biscuit dough and just drop my biscuits on the pan and bake as usual! The finger "flipper" releases the dough.

E. M. Carpenter

SNIP AND RIP

DEAR HELOISE:
When ripping a seam, I use a crochet hook.

Go along the seam and break the thread about every half inch. Now . . . on the opposite side of the seam slip the hook under the thread and pull up. This rips the seam and leaves very few thread ends to pull out!

TRICK OF THE WEEK

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a suggestion I would like to pass on:

I washed out my trash can, let it dry thoroughly and poured some melted paraffin in the bottom of the can. This keeps it from rusting.

Although we put paper bags in the can, it is the moisture that causes rust.

FOR CAR SMOKERS

DEAR HELOISE:
I put sand (from the beach or any place you can dig it up) in our car ash trays!

Now it is a simple matter for the driver of the car to snuff out his cigarette and no more still-smoking stubs to dig out!

DEAR HELOISE:
When the holes on my gas range are clogged up from food spilling over, I take one of those little pieces of wire that come twisted around vegetable bags and clothes from the dry cleaners, etc. This wire is covered with a little piece of plastic, so strip the plastic from it. It will then be so small that it will go through any little stopped up holes on your gas range.

If the hole is larger, you may take your scissors and either clip off part of the plastic on each side, or after the wire is completely stripped, double it over and use it.
